More Honor For Tulsa.

C. E. Stroupville, well-known oil producer of Tulsa, has recently been appointed as manager for the Oklahoma and Louisiana properties of the Savoy Oil company. This action was taken at a meeting of the directors of the company held in New York city on March 9.

Mr. Stroupville has for years been closely associated with the late Manuel Hicks, president of the Savoy Oil company, who died suddenly here a few weeks ago.

In this connection it might be said that the will of Col. Hicks was filed for probate last Saturday by Aby & Tucker. In the will Mr. Stroupville is named as administrator.

In the Healdton Field

RINGLING, Okla., March 15.—(Special.)—Oil companies 1-4 Smith No. 3 in section 4-4-2 are drilling at 400 feet.

Collins Oil company No. 2 Hickman Willis, building a rig.

Highland well 1-21-4-2 is shut down.

Gulmer Oil company No. 2 on Herndon lease in 4-4-2 was finished at 1,347 feet is making 200 barrels of oil and 12 millions of gas. Lynch Walker are building a rig for No. 4 on the same lease.

Apple-Franklin well in 22-4-2 near Overpool, is drilling at 850 feet.

L. C. Hinck in 15-4-2, in the big gas area, is shut down on top of the sand at 1,010 feet. Mr. Hinck made a record time in gas conservation by having the well completed, shut in within 14 minutes after the drill stopped. The well was increasing its flow of gas at a rate of one million feet every five minutes. It promises, when drilled in, to equal the Hennessy Colbert well that made something over forty millions.

Bay City Oil & Gas Co. in 33-4-1, is drilling at 625 feet.

Cleveland Forman are drilling deeper their No. 2 John Davis and their No. 2 T. H. Meyer both of which are in section 4-4-2.

Young Democrats Meeting

Special to The World.

CLAREMORE, Okla., March 15.—At a special meeting of the Young Men's Democratic club of Rogers county held at the district courtroom of Saturday night a greater portion of the members were present. After the regular business session had been concluded, Attorney Richard Willis gave a full report of the convention of the state Young Democratic league held at Muskogee on the 22nd of February, and concluded his remarks with the declaration that the Rogers county club should feel highly elated over the honors bestowed upon it by the state league in the election of the state secretary, Fred Capshaw, first congressional district chairman and secretary, I. S. Robson and Crawford Cameron, respectively, from the managed county organization of the state.

The Foster Lease.

The hearing held in Secretary Lane's at Washington to determine what action shall be taken on a renewal of the Foster lease to the present holders, brought out the usual differences of opinion, says the Oil City Democrat. There were heard almost wholly on the personal interests of the persons testifying. Those interested in the present lease urged that its terms undergo certain modifications and regulations be continued. The first point made in this was that it has become a custom in the oil industry for the land owners to renew leases to the operators. This rule has been broken rarely, and then only when some antagonism existed between the parties concerned. It is generally conceded that the work done by the producers in opening a new field or testing a territory deserves that his ownership should be continued. It is also true that knowledge of the wells, the experiments tried upon the sands, and the best methods of conserving the production, is best known to the operator who has had the most experience with any territory, and this is an advantage to the land owner as well as to the producer. Those who protested against the extension of the lease failed to offer any convincing arguments for their side, because their purpose was plainly a selfish one. Each wanted a portion of the land or all of it. Put conditions back to where the first well was drilled on this property, and it is not probable that any of those who now oppose the lease would have been willing to invest their money in the development. Now that it has been tested and its value to a certain degree proven, these parties are looking for "easy money." Judging from Secretary Lane's remarks, the motives which actuated those who opposed the renewal were fully appreciated.

It was ordered that definite proposals for leasing should be submitted to Commissioner Cato Sells on March 22. The terms must be plainly stated, and the names of the principals must be given in all cases.

May Be New Pool.

By far the most interesting news of the week is that which comes from the Vance Bros. of at feet drilled in the southeast of 29-15-13. It is about a 25-barrel natural well in sand found at 1,977 feet following a short break under the gas, which was struck at 1,861 feet. It is drilled in the sand below the break about eight feet. It looks like a lead to something and Messrs. Vance and associates appear to be in it right as the lease is in a quite plentiful block of stuff. This and the Kingwood gasser in 22, a full two miles northeast, make Natural look like a possible coming field.—Okmulgee Democrat.

Sub-Lessees.

The decision of Secretary Lane to have new proposals for leases in the Osage, in lieu of the Foster lease, will give the sub-lessees an opportunity to present their side of the case in more complete form on March 22.

The Indian Territory Illuminating company seems to be in the position of merely a broker, and is getting a pretty good commission, reserving as it does all the gas rights, and also making a profit of the amount of royalty paid.

It occurs to us, from this distance, that each sublessee should be given a renewal of his lease on terms that have been established by custom.

They certainly are entitled to a fair show on their investments already made, and should be given an opportunity to get that investment back, and we do not believe the policy of the government will be to work a hardship on any of them.

Gasser at Mineral Wells.

Special to The World.

MINERAL WELLS, Texas, March 15.—Another large gas well was brought in a few days ago, estimated to be ten million feet. There is great excitement among the oil men and they are flocking into this city trying to secure leases. A number of well rigs are being shipped into this territory, and a number more have been contracted for and are to start within sixty and ninety days. The W. G. Chapman Real Estate company has secured a great number of leases which they are figuring on turning over to promoters who will develop the field. They have large holdings here which they believe will increase their values with oil developed. It is reported that there are seven producing oil wells in the field and it is expected that two or three more will be brought in within the next few days.

Three Hundred Cars Tank Material.

OLLTON, Okla., March 15.—Three hundred and seven cars of tank material are expected to Ollton at the present time. Two hundred of these are for the Carter Oil company, which recently purchased the John H. Markham, R., oil properties on the Luther Manuel and Eliza Yarbola leases, and the other seventy are for Frank Brown in Independence, Kan., for tankage on his river-bed lease, one and one-half miles southwest of Ollton. Recently Brown has drilled one of his river-bed wells to the Bartlesville sand and it is now making 200 barrels an hour.

Brown is one of the new owners and is president of the Oil Belt Terminal railroad now building into Ollton from Jennings. He went over the line yesterday in an automobile and says construction is progressing rapidly. With no weather interference the road will be into Ollton within two weeks. In coming through in his machine yesterday, Brown twice hired mule teams to pull him out of mudholes.

The Carter Oil company is planning a vast amount of facilities in the field just south of Ollton. In addition to the tank material now en route for the construction of 85 additional tanks of 55,000 barrels capacity each, the company is said to have taken over 100 such tanks from the White-Sinclair interests, 26 from the McMan company, 7 from the Devonian and 12 from the Markham. The 85 new tanks are to be built on Euchee creek, two and one-half miles southwest of Ollton, and are for the production from the Eliza Yarbola lease. On the Luther Manuel lease, three-quarters of a mile southeast of Ollton, a well is now being drilled to the Bartlesville sand.

Daily Trains Tulsa to Ollton.

OLLTON, Okla., March 15.—A "coal oil Johnny" train is to be put into service with the completion of the Oil Belt Terminal railroad into Ollton from Jennings, making the round trip daily from Tulsa to Ollton and taking the place in great part of the oil trains for passengers now being run out of Tulsa by the Katy. It will be run via Frisco and Oil Belt Terminal. The Frisco will establish an uptown ticket and business office in Jennings, with Western Union uptown telegraph office. All these arrangements have been completed. Beginning today a Frisco train will run into Jennings daily making connection with all trains east and west from Tulsa, Bristow, Enid and other points.

Well Spudded in at Jennings.

JENNINGS, Okla., March 15.—L. S. Metz today spudded in the initial well on the Rinehart farm, joining Jennings on the north, for the Republic Oil & Pipe Line Co. which has bought all the interests of John Grieves of Bartlesville in the leases and rig. It is expected to complete the well within 60 days, according to P. E. Hart of Chicago, secretary-treasurer of the company. The well is being drilled at the north end of Main street of Jennings and if oil is found it will make the entire Jennings townsite valuable oil property.

Gillespie Wins Protest.

In making returns of gross income tax to the government, if you are an oil man, deduct the cost of drilling wells and the cost of shooting them.

These items are legitimate expenses, according to a decision of Washington officials reached yesterday, in upholding Frank Gillespie in his position that the hole in the ground does not belong to the lessor, an easement right only being conveyed to him.

The Oklahoma City branch office refused to take this view of the case and likewise a special investigator declined to agree with Gillespie. It was then taken up by Gillespie, through his attorney, with Washington officials.

The decision means that annually hundreds of thousands of dollars will be saved Oklahoma producers.

Federal Census Sought By Tulsa

direction of the census department of the United States government.

This was decided yesterday by the directors of the Commercial club who voted to instruct the secretary to inform the census department that Tulsa wanted this special census taken within the next 30 days if possible.

Nearly a year ago the movement for a special census was started here and it culminated in Senator Owen securing from President Wilson the authorization for such a census. The matter dragged along until recently when the Commercial club took up the matter resulting in the decision made at the noon-day luncheon yesterday.

The government, under the president's proclamation, will send a representative of the census bureau to Tulsa who will organize and supervise the work of collecting the data. The Commercial club will bear all the expenses, which it is said will amount to about one thousand dollars.

That a federal census taken at this time will be of inestimable value to Tulsa is admitted by all. In the midst of a nation-wide business depression Tulsa is probably the only city in the country that would dare ask for such a census but the business men here believe that now is the opportune time for Tulsa to have its people counted.

Under the last federal census taken in 1910 the population of this city only showed a little over 18,000 but since then the city has made a wonderful growth and no one believes that there are less than 25,000 persons now living inside of the city limits. The fact that the last census only showed 18,000 persons here has been a detriment to the town in many ways as it is hard to convince any one who has never seen Tulsa of the wonderful gains made here.

All of these points were considered at yesterday's meeting of the Commercial club and it was the unanimous opinion that such a census be taken as soon as possible.

ALMOST CRAZY WITH ITCHING AND BURNING

Seattle Wash., Jan. 28, 1915.—"My face and body were a solid mass of little sores which itched and burned me so badly that I almost went crazy. They started in the form of little pimples which opened and formed sores. I could not sleep at night and at work if I become overheated it would itch something terrible. I used all kinds of soaps, salves and prescriptions that did me no good. I had this skin trouble for a year or more before I used Resinol. As soon as I started using Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap the itching and burning stopped at once and in five weeks my face and body were as clear and soft as could be. I used only two jars of Resinol Ointment and three cakes of Resinol Soap.

"A friend of mine had a bad case of skin trouble. His face was broken out so badly he was ashamed to go out on the street. I told him to use Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and in four weeks he was all well and one could not tell he ever had a pimple or sore on his face." (Signed) August E. Press Enters Into Rate Case Hearing have increases in rates on fresh meats and packing house products amounting to about three and one-half cents a hundred pounds.

Mr. Leland had testified that the packing house interests had maintained an organization to seek preferences in rates and special facilities, saying that when the special facilities asked by the packers were not granted by the railroads, the tariff organizations of the packers shifted the patronage to other roads.

Luther M. Walter, attorney for the packers, referred to a headline published in the Chicago Tribune on March 14 and asked Mr. Leland if he had read it.

Commissioner Daniels said that witness need not answer the question.

Mr. Walter then said, "May I resume my inquiry a little further and I will state the purpose of it. The publication in the daily press reaches the public generally. That is the only way they know as to the testimony that is going on. If there is an organized effort to take testimony that has been delivered here before you and corrupt it to show for more than it shows here, it is something that ought to be stopped."

An Impossible Task.

Commissioner Daniels said, "Mr. Walter, if we should go into the question of how far the version in the press correctly represents the percentages before us with something like twenty-four thousand daily papers in the country, we should have something of a task. That is quite impossible. We are trying a case here. As a matter of fact, I personally do not know what it is you are referring to, so I cannot be affected by it."

Mr. Walter—"It is not the effect upon yourself or upon the commission, but it is fair to the commission that the people of this country should know something of the facts and if these gentlemen are not fair to the commission, not fair to yourself, we ought to be able to see who is paying for it."

Commissioner Daniels—"I do not think you want to let that stand."

Mr. Walter—"I won't say paying for this, but who inspired the articles. I will put it that way."

Mr. Walter then read a headline into the record: "Charge packers bully rail lines in giving rates."

Commissioner Daniels ruled that the witness should not be interrogated further on the subject, after saying: "From both sides now there have been suggestions that the press is being used as an engine influencing public opinion. We cannot go into that. We will not go into it. Let us go ahead and try the case on its merits."

First Six Months Of War In Detail

of German forces, the general-in-chief ordered our troops to occupy Mulhouse, to cut the bridges of the Rhine at Huningue and below, and then to flank the attack of our troops operating in Lorraine. This operation was badly carried out by a leader who was at once relieved of his command. Our troops, after having carried Muelhausen, lost it and were thrown back on Belfort. The work had, therefore, to be recommenced afresh, and this was done from August 14, under a new command.

Muelhausen was taken on the 19th after a brilliant fight at Dornach. Twenty-four guns were captured from the enemy. On the 20th we held the approaches to Colmar, both by the plain and by the Vosges. The enemy had undergone enormous losses and abandoned great stores of shells and forage; but from this moment what was happening in Lorraine and on our left prevented us from carrying our successes further, for our troops in Alsace were needed elsewhere. On August 28, the Alsace army was broken up, only a small part remaining to hold the region of Thann and the Vosges.

The Operations in Lorraine.

The purpose of the operations in Alsace was, namely, to retain a large party of the enemy's forces far from the northern theatre of operations; it was for our offensive in Lorraine to pursue still more directly by holding before it the German army corps operating to the south of Metz. This offensive began brilliantly on August 14. On the 19th we had reached the region of Saarburg and that of the Etangs (lakes); we held Dieuze, Morhange, Delouno and chateau Salins.

On the 20th our success was stopped. The cause is to be found in the strong organization of the region, in the power of the enemy's artillery, operating over ground which had been minutely surveyed and, finally, in the default of certain units.

On the 22nd, in spite of the splendid behavior of several of our army corps and notably that of Nancy, our troops were brought back on to the Grand Couronne, while on the 23rd and 24th the Germans concentrated reinforcements—three army corps at least—in the region of Luneville and forced us to retire to the south.

This retreat, however, was only momentary. On the 25th, after two vigorously counter-attacks, one from south to north and the other from west to east, the enemy had to fall back. From that time, however, between the Germans and ourselves a sort of balance was established on this terrain. Maintained for 15 days it was afterward, as will be seen, modified to our advantage.

The Operations in Belgian Luxembourg.

There remained the principal business—the battle of the north—postponed owing to the necessity of waiting for the British army. On August 20 the concentration of our allies was finished and the general-in-chief gave orders for our center and our left to take the offensive. Our center comprised two armies, our left consisted of a third army, reinforced to the extent of two army corps, a corps of cavalry, the reserve divisions, the British army and the Belgian army which had already been engaged for the previous three weeks at Liege, Namur and Louvain.

The German plan on that date was as follows:

From seven to eight army corps and four cavalry divisions were endeavoring to pass between Givet and Brussels and even to probing their movements more to the west. Our object was therefore in the first place to hold and dispose of the enemy's center and afterward to throw ourselves with all available forces on the left flank of the German grouping of troops in the north.

On August 21 our offensive in the center began with 10 army corps. On August 22nd it failed and this reverse appeared serious. The reason for it was complex. There were in this affair individual and collective failures, imprudences committed under the fire of the enemy, divisions ill-engaged, rash deployments, precipitate retreat, a premature waste of men and finally the inadequacy of certain of our troops and their leaders, both as regards the use of infantry and artillery.

In consequence of these lapses the enemy turning to account the difficult terrain, was able to obtain the maximum of profit from the advantages which the superiority of his subaltern complements gave him.

The Operations Between the Sambre and the Meuse.

In spite of this defeat our maneuver had still a chance of success, if our left and the British army obtained a decisive result. This was unfortunately not the case. On August 22 at the cost of great losses, the enemy succeeded in crossing the Sambre and our left army fell back the 24th upon Beaumont-Givet, being perturbed by the belief that the enemy was threatening its right.

On this same day, the 24th, the British army fell back after a German attack upon the Maubeuge-Valenciennes line. On the 25th and 26th its retreat became more hurried. After Landrecies and Le Cateau it fell back southward by forced marches. It could not from this time keep hold until after crossing the Marne.

The rapid retreat of the English, coinciding with the defeat sustained in Belgian Luxembourg, allowed the enemy to cross the Meuse and to accelerate by fortifying it, the action of his right.

The situation at this moment may thus be summed up:

Either our frontier had to be defended on the spot under conditions which the British retreat rendered extremely perilous, or we had to execute a strategic retirement which, while delivering up to the enemy a part of the national soil, would permit us to resume the offensive at our own time, with a favorable disposition of troops.

Trade Commission Organizes Today

years and who will undoubtedly be the first chairman of the commission, said the first formal meeting would immediately follow the induction of the members into office. From that time on the commission will be in daily session, setting its machinery in motion.

Have Definite Program.

No announcement as to the first problem to be attacked has been made, but Commissioner Davies has been in frequent conference both with the president and Attorney General Gregory and it is certain that a definite program of action has been suggested.

Through the absorption of the bureau of corporations in the commerce department by the new commission, its work of organization will be greatly simplified. The office staff and records of that bureau are transferred to the commission and furnished a working force already organized and equipped with much information as to the corporations with which the commission will deal. It will be the duty of the commission to classify these corporations and formulate regulations and rules as provided for in the trade commission act, the declared purpose of the act being to establish regulated competition among concerns engaged in interstate transactions.

The act also authorizes the commission to investigate trade matters in foreign countries as they may affect the foreign trade of the United States. In his speech at Indianapolis two months ago President Wilson called attention to this provision, saying it endowed the commission with the powers of a staff board among its other duties. While there has been no indication that the commission proposes to invoke these powers immediately and begin a study of tariff problems generally, it is possible that efforts will be made to advise the next congress as to the effect of certain specific schedules in the present tariff law.

Rublee Not Confirmed.

With the exception of Mr. Rublee all the commissioners have been confirmed by the senate. Mr. Hurley will hold office six years, Mr. Harris five years and Mr. Parry four years. Mr. Rublee's nomination failed of confirmation, but he takes office under a recess appointment subject to confirmation by the next senate.

OIL LEASES FOR SALE

The owners of the oil leases listed below offer them for sale. These lands were selected by men of practical experience after careful consideration of the structural geology of the territory in which they are located.

Select the ones you desire and make an offer for the bunch and your offer will be accepted or rejected by return mail. No abstract furnished with leases selling for less than five hundred dollars. Leases on Indian lands approved by the Secretary of Interior are indicated by the word Department, all others are Commercial.
