TULSA TROOP 45 MEN UNDER WAR STRENGTH

postofficing, frequently a popular diversion among newspaper men. At the rise and fall of Armageddon Captain Calstrap became a deputy postmaster. He has long been one of the influential members of the guard. Lieutenant Mathews has also been in the postage stamp business, being a letter carrier. Lieutenant Embry is a lawyer and a Republican candidate for county judge, but is doing no political campaigning now. Another lawyer in the company is Cary Mehrbacher. The farmers predominate in this company, but there are many trades represented.

Company C, Tulsa.

Captain, Alva J. Niles; first lieutenant (to be named); second lieutenant, James A. Carroll jr.

Captain Niles is possessed of a wonderful experience in military affairs. When the Tulsa company was organized and there was some doubt about that company being accepted, the officers over the state excited every influence for Captain Niles' company. They not only wanted him badly, but they said that they needed him. He was formerly adjutant-general, and was a cavalry officer for several years. There was a jollification in every company in the state when his company was selected to fill the vacancy.

Lieutenant Carroll has had several years' experience in Mexico. He is possessed of many qualifications which will be of value to the company. He knows Mexico like a book. There has been no sickness in Company C except here and there an occasional cold-gray-dawn headache, but that happens in every company.

The announcement of the first lieutenancy of Company M will be made quickly. He will be an experienced army officer, one who will help Captain Niles materially.

Company C boys love tobacco. They run out of it every day almost. The other night Captain Niles went to the bank and got a bag of silver dollars, and the boys lined up and each made a touch on the bank for a dollar. The Company C mess has been unusually good, thanks to the Tulsa people who contributed to the company fund. Down on the border there will be need for more of this, and it is good news to the boys that the people of Tulsa are still interested in the work of keeping the company fund healthy by large and small subscriptions. It is the finest thing you can do for the boys.

Company D, Newkirk.

Captain, Charles W. Richards; first lieutenant, Edward A. Hodges; second lieutenant, Moses Belnard.

Captain Richards is a physician. Lieutenant Hodges is a dentist and disciplines the men with a threat to use his instruments of torture. Howard Burns of the company is editor of the Newkirk Democrat-Herald. Stanley A. Sharpe is a school teacher, as is George L. Hall.

Company E, Pawnee.

Captain, Charles H. Johnson; first lieutenant, William Ohl; second lieutenant, I. C. Johnson.

This company has 25 Pawnee Indians, most of whom have seen active service and have been under fire. Joseph V. Pitts, Clifford A. Smiley and Joseph Grimsley are teachers. George H. Davis is a postoffice clerk. There are four Ohls in this company, every one of whom will fight like a German.

Captain, J. L. DeGroot; first lieutenant, G. C. Hinkle; second lieutenant, Charles N. Wollaver.

The first bloodshed was in this company. Private Keenan was examining a small revolver. He shot himself through the hand. Said he didn't know it was loaded. He is in the field hospital. Corporal Birtciel was stung in the ear by a small sweet bee. The dead bee was taken out at the field hospital, where Corporal Birtciel is confined, and he will get along all right.

Private Robinson of this company, who lives at Fort Gibson, had gone to Braggs to start a newspaper. He had bought an outfit and had his first newspaper set up and ready for the press when the call came. He left the forms locked up, closed the office door and joined his company. He intends to go back there when the war is over and to issue the first paper from those forms, giving the news of the week before the war.

Company G, Wewoka.

Captain, William S. Key; first lieutenant, Earl Whitney; second lieutenant, Richard Harrison.

This splendid company comes from the smallest town having a company of the Oklahoma national guards. It was the first to entrain, the first to reach mobilization camp at Oklahoma City, the first to reach mobilization camp here. It required Captain Key just 17 hours to mobilize. It was the first company to be examined under army regulations. It was the first company to be inoculated for typhoid protection.

Lieutenant Whitney is a candidate for county judge. First Sergeant Noe is assistant cashier of a bank. Court Clerk Dunaway, who is also a lawyer, is a member of the company. As is Sergeant Ford Harrison, editor of the Democrat. Captain Key is a prosperous hardware merchant. The company has five lawyers, Lieutenant Whitney, Corporal H. G. Sebastian, Private W. M. Haulsee, Irvin L. Wilson and Dow Dunaway. First Sergeant Henry Welch is a Swiss and saw four years of military duty in the Swiss army.

Company H, Durant.

Captain, Walter Veach; first lieutenant, Highan Mitchell; second lieutenant, Lewis Paullin, jr.

Captain Veach is a Choctaw Indian and there are 12 Choctaws in the company. The men are in splendid shape. It is a company of farmers, well seasoned and able to withstand the hardships.

Private Sim Lyles is in the hospital at Fort Sill, the regular army hospital. He has a bad attack of fever and it was felt that it would be better to send him there for the time being. This company will render a good accounting of itself. There was great anxiety among all of them to take the oath.

Company I, Stillwater.

Captain, James E. Berry; first lieutenant, Carter C. Hanna; second lieutenant, Roy C. Brock.

Captain Berry is a banker. Lieutenant Hanna is one of the owners of the Bishop Clothing company at Stillwater. Lieutenant Brock is in the postoffice. Private Albert S. Lee used to be editor of the Yale Democrat, and will go back to newspapering. He likes it. Among the members of the company William M. Howell is financial secretary of the A. & M. college. Corporal Harry C. Hildebrand is captain of the college company. There are numerous graduates in the company.

Company L, Antlers.

Captain, Ben Davis Locke; first lieutenant, Benjamin H. Hicks; second lieutenant, Carl Edmonds.

There are 45 Indians in this company, all of them good ones and not a dead one among them. Captain Locke is a brother of Chief Victor Locke of the Choctaw nation, a man of long military experience and for many years a valued and ambitious major of the First Infantry. Lieutenant Hicks is a regular army man of recognized ability. He was detailed by the war department to instruct in the national guard. Carl Edmonds, the second lieutenant is connected with the Antlers News-Review.

Company K, Enid.

Captain, Ralph R. Jarboe; first lieutenant, Harry A. Richards; second lieutenant, George A. Barnes.

The company is in splendid health and spirits and is one of the best of the regiment. It is well officered and has a fine standard of men.

Company M, Oklahoma City.

Captain, Otto Harold Lee; first lieutenant, Raymond S. McLain; second lieutenant, Albert R. Harris.

Company M is one of the largest in the regiment, and they are all hard workers. Captain Lee and his lieutenants have given much time to their military development and the work is showing.

Captain Lee is municipal judge of Oklahoma City and is a good lawyer. He is with his company most of the time, and is determined that it shall be a first-class organization in every respect. Efficiency is written almost everywhere in Company M.

There are three lawyers in Company M, all of whom know the rule in Shelley's case. They are R. E. Gish, J. J. Todd and D. C. McCaleb. First Sergeant Robert M. Carle is a physician, but if there is any sickness in Company M it is merely tapeworm. Albert K. Tillotson and A. A. Warlick of Company M are teachers. Company M has three men who can deal from the middle of the deck as well as from the top and bottom. They will take a post graduate course with the Rex. Lieutenant Charles H. Barnes, the regimental chaplain, who spent some years in the regular army and was able to retire.

The Band.

The regimental band is conducted by R. E. Flynn. The band concerts are attended by many people of Lawton. The band is high class in every particular.

The Engineers, Norman.

Captain, Frank B. King; Henryetta; first lieutenant, Guy V. Williams, Norman; second lieutenant, J. B. Bennett, Norman.

This is a wonderful organization of efficient men. Many of them are graduates or students of the State university. J. B. Bennett, the second lieutenant, is county engineer of Cleveland county. Thirty Lawton boys joined this company.

Field Hospital Corps.

One of the finest sights I have ever seen in my life is the portion used by the field hospital corps, under Major Floyd J. Boland. With Captain Lewis E. Inman and Captain Rex G. Boland, Lieut. F. B. Sorgatz, Lieut. A. C. Hirschfield and Lieut. Jesse Pemberton and a wonderful complement of noncommissioned officers, everything possible is done for the sick and to safeguard every patient who comes into the department.

Cleanliness is everywhere. Everything is spick and span. I want you mothers, you wives and you sisters to know that the boy who gets sick or hurt receives scientific and sanitary treatment. The tents of the field hospital are proving very attractive.

Quartermaster Corps.

No more active men can be found than Maj. Ellis Stephenson and Capt. E. R. Waite of the quartermaster corps. The are on the job every minute.

Medical Department.

Maj. E. R. Racer of Woodward is in charge of the medical department and give pleasant pellets for palpitating privates—as well as officers. Dr. Edwin D. Meeker of Lawton is the first lieutenant. Dr. William E. Busby of McAlester is the dental expert of this department.

Field and Staff.

Col. Roy Hoffman, Oklahoma City; Lieut. Col. E. H. Jayne, Edmond; Maj. Winfield Scott, Enid; Maj. Charles Barrett, Oklahoma City; Capt. Mark W. Tobin, regimental adjutant, Oklahoma City; Capt. A. L. Emery, regimental commissary, Watonga; Capt. Gus Hadwiger, regimental quartermaster, Alva; Capt. Ross R. Way, assistant inspector small arms prictice, Walter; Lieut. Charles H. Barnes, chaplain, Hennessey.

IS KILLED WHEN WIRE BREAKS

Young Oil Worker Is Dashed 100 Feet to Ground; Was Bartlesville Boy.

Special to The World.

BARTLESVILLE, July 1.—Ralph Beasley, 22 years old, formerly of Bartlesville, was killed instantly on a drilling well near Coffeyville, Kan., on a lease owned by his father. Beasley was working with a drilling crew rigging up. One of the drillers told Beasley to go to the top of the "mast" and place another guy wire on top. Half way up the "mast" the only guy wire holding it snapped and the "mast" tipped over. Beasley was hurled a distance of one hundred feet and when picked up he was dead. Beasley was a son of H. A. Beasley, formerly mayor of Bartlesville. The funeral will be held in Coffeyville tomorrow.

DEMOCRAT METHODS KILLING THE PARTY

Some 250 Bartlesville Voters Pull Out After Watching State Activities.

Special to The World.

BARTLESVILLE, July 1.—There is not much encouragement for people to save money or accumulate property in Oklahoma, not so long as the Democrats are in office, for taxes are so high property is virtually confiscated in paying taxes, according to 250 Democrats who have deserted the party and have registered as Republicans.

Here is a concrete example of what the Democratic system of taxation is doing to the people of Oklahoma, they say. On the first of the present year a Bartlesville man had $5,000 in a bank, money which represented income from oil production. That man had to pay 1 per cent federal income tax, 1 per cent state income tax, 3 per cent gross production tax and $31.60 per $1,000 personal tax. He had been a Democrat all his life, but he declares he has voted the ticket for the last time.

Because of the fact that the attorney-general hasn't approved the bonds recently voted, however, no contract was awarded. J. J. Payne of McAlester was the low bidder at a price of $21,421.83.

Doctors Recommend Buttermilk

DRINK BUTTERMILK if you are troubled with bowel complaint or diarrhoea. Don't drink much water.

If you happen to be troubled with such complaints as bowel trouble, flux, or diarrhoea, very little plain water should be drunk. The best plan is to drink buttermilk in small sips. Small quantities of this nourishing drink prove very satisfactory. A teaspoonful of extract blackberry bark compound mixed with a small quantity of water will usually relieve the worst attacks of bowel complaint in a few hours. Be sure to get the extract blackberry bark compound which your druggist keeps in original sealed diamond-shaped bottles, so as to prevent mistakes from the ordinary blackberry cordials which have been always used for bowel trouble. Take a teaspoonful of this extract in a wine glass of water every hour and you will soon be rid of this troublesome and sometimes dangerous sickness.
