THAW BACK AT MATTEAWAN

Promises to Supply Prisoners With Tobacco; Acts As Judge in Parade.

BEACON, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Harry K. Thaw was back in Matteawan state hospital for the criminal insane today three weeks after his escape. He was met at a ferryboat landing here by a large crowd of Sunday excursion people.

He remarked that he knew the prisoners were too poorly supplied with tobacco, and that he would see that they had a liberal supply in the future.

Thaw came here from Pittsburgh to make a Republican speech over a very whole, and acted as judge of the parade of Republican clubs and organizations. He left again for Pittsburgh at 7 o'clock, accompanied by Francis K. Johnson, his personal lawyer, and Charles Rice, his secretary.

MARKETS

Iron and Steel Review.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Steel mills made small bookings last week against accumulated orders.

The domestic demand for steel is greater than for several months, some of the railroads have contracted rails amounting to 100,000 tons for shipment during the first quarter of 1918. Car builders have just consummated contracts for 100,000 tons of bars, plates and shapes, and locomotive builders for 100,000 tons of rollers and forged steel to cover contracts placed by domestic and foreign roads.

Inadequate supplies to meet the pleasant demand is expressed in still higher prices. Sales of pig iron since October 2 have been 300,000 tons, half for export.

New Orleans Cotton Review.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 15.—Fluctuations of more than half a cent a pound on the most active months featured the trading in cotton here week. Monday's slump of from $2 to $3 a bale following the German submarine raid off the American coast, was succeeded by an advance to new high levels for the season. The December option traded up to 17.15c, the highest quotation ever recorded on that option. Middling was raised to 16.81c, a record price at this time of the year for spots. At the lowest of the week the active months were 50 to 65 points under the previous week's close; at the highest they were 30 to 45 points over. Prices moved over a range of from 80 to 108 points, last prices were at a net gain for the week of 12 to 18 points.

The main stimulating features of the week were the spot demand, reports of less liberal spot offerings and accounts of huge sales ahead of cotton goods at very high prices.

This week the trade will be chiefly concerned with ginning returns, since the present ginning period will end Tuesday. The weather map will be rather more closely watched than usual because the average date of the first killing frosts have been passed without bringing a cold spell of importance.

New York Cotton Goods Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Cotton goods markets continue very strong, with further advances reported in both gray and colored lines. For a time on Monday, following the submarine developments, trade was at a standstill, but it resumed quickly on Tuesday and Wednesday. Bleached muslins, print cloths and converting, cotton duck and giant duck cloths were advanced again. New England mills are now threatened with new demands for wage advances, and scarcity of labor continues to restrict the output.

Jobbers report the largest advance business booked by retailers ever known and the current trade is active. It was agreed among duck manufacturers during the week to revise the current duck list 20 per cent upward, this acting being made necessary by the high plane of cotton values and the fact that many numbers were already selling at price levels at the fall list prices.

Price quotations are as follows: 28-inch, 64x64s, 7c; 28-inch, 60x48s, 6½c; 28-inch, 64x60s, 7½c; brown sheetings, weathers standard, 19½c; drills, 2.30-yards, 19c; common brown sheetings, 7½c; prints, 7½c; staple gingham, 8½c; dress ginghams, 11½c.

New York Financial Review.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The prevailing phenomenon of the market last little of its forbidden kind, but sentiment experienced a pronounced change, despite the slaughter of quoted values. Extreme recessions in leading stocks ran from five to ten points, and in less active issues greater losses were sustained, with partial recoveries later.

Most attentated ball accounts were those of in the heated trading of Monday, when Wall street received its first news of the extension of Germany's submarine activities to American waters. This was followed by general liquidation. Investment issues were confident's taken, but mainly at marked concessions.

Fundamental conditions it was almost universally agreed, remain inherently sound, except for further deterioration of certain foodstuffs as indicated by the latest government crop reports. Bank clearings rose to unprecedented proportions, earnings of railroads and various industrial companies were of like character, and fabricated iron and steel products underwent further upward price revision.

LEGISLATIVE NOMINEE QUITS.

Walter Eaton of Muskogee Will Devote Time to Personal Business.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 15.—Walter R. Eaton of Muskogee, one of the democratic nominees in that county for the lower house of the legislature, has withdrawn owing to pressure of personal business. The county central committee of Muskogee has placed on the ticket in his stead the name of Robert H. West of Warner. Mr. Eaton was one of the men most frequently mentioned as a probable speaker for the speakership. His experience in the legislature has been valuable and his friends are many.

Mr. Eaton is engaged in the real estate business and his interests have grown to such an extent that he is unable to devote the necessary time to lawmaking that he believes a member of the legislature should accord to his official duties. Mr. West was the unsuccessful candidate for the nomination in the August primary.

WORLD IS FULL OF ANCIENT SAWS

Proverbs Embrace Wide Sphere of Human Existence and Full of Truth.

"Proverbs embrace the wide sphere of human existence; they take on the colors of life, they are often exquisite strokes of genius, they delight by their airy sarcasm of their caustic satire, the luxuriance of their humor, the playfulness of their turn, and even by the elegance of their imagery, and the tenderness of their sentiment."

How many proverbs there are in existence no man could say. To Solomon alone are attributed no fewer than three thousand proverbs and though it is noted that Americans have few proverbs of their own, owing to the newness of the country and the fact that people from every land enter into the national life, their weather proverbs alone collected by the United States government some years ago, made a book of no fewer than 148 pages.

Animals Prominent.

It is singular, at first sight, how largely animals are referred to in proverbs, but since proverbs are built on men's lives and their observation, it is really not so odd. As the compiler of this book well observes, whatever the prevailing employment of any community, the people are always acquainted with animal life, and are quick to observe in the appearances and traits of beasts and birds, and even fish, reptiles and insects, resemblances to men.

The docile sheep reminds them of obedient children or tractable servants; the strutting peacocks, with their large and beautiful tails, of gaudily dressed women; the rock-climbing goats, of bold adventurers; the cunning foxes of unprincipled and shrewd tradesmen; the chirping crickets of carefree merrymakers, and the slippery eel of unreliable employers or dependents.

The readiness to see resemblances everywhere shows itself in proverbial similes and comparisons—the man with a slavish mind is "as stupid as an ass;" a cheerful companion is "as happy as a clam;" the headstrong youth "as wild as a hawk;" the diligent workman is "as busy as a bee;" the courageous soldier is "as brave as a lion;" the neighbor who is lean and tall of stature is "as gaunt as a greyhound."

One obtains historical glimpses in proverbs. The familiar "Robbing Peter to pay Paul," is said to derive its origin from the fact that in the reign of Edward VI the lands of St. Peter at Westminster were appropriated to raise money for the repair of St. Paul's. "Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones" is claimed as based on the fact that a party of incensed Scotchmen once smashed the windows of the Duke of Buckingham's mansion, which stood in St. Martins field, and had so many windows that it went by the name of the "glass house," and that when the court favorite complained to his king the monarch replied, "Steenie, Steenie, those who live in glass houses should be fearful how they fling stones."

The proverb is probably older than James I, who merely quoted a saying current at the time. If it were founded on a historical anecdote, how comes it that this proverb is found in many languages?

Proverbs undoubtedly have a tendency to travel; they are carried from one land to another by emigrants, tourists, missionaries, tradesmen and seamen; but many which are closely similar doubtless owe their origin to no common stock, but to the common experience of mankind. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" has its counterpart in practically every language.

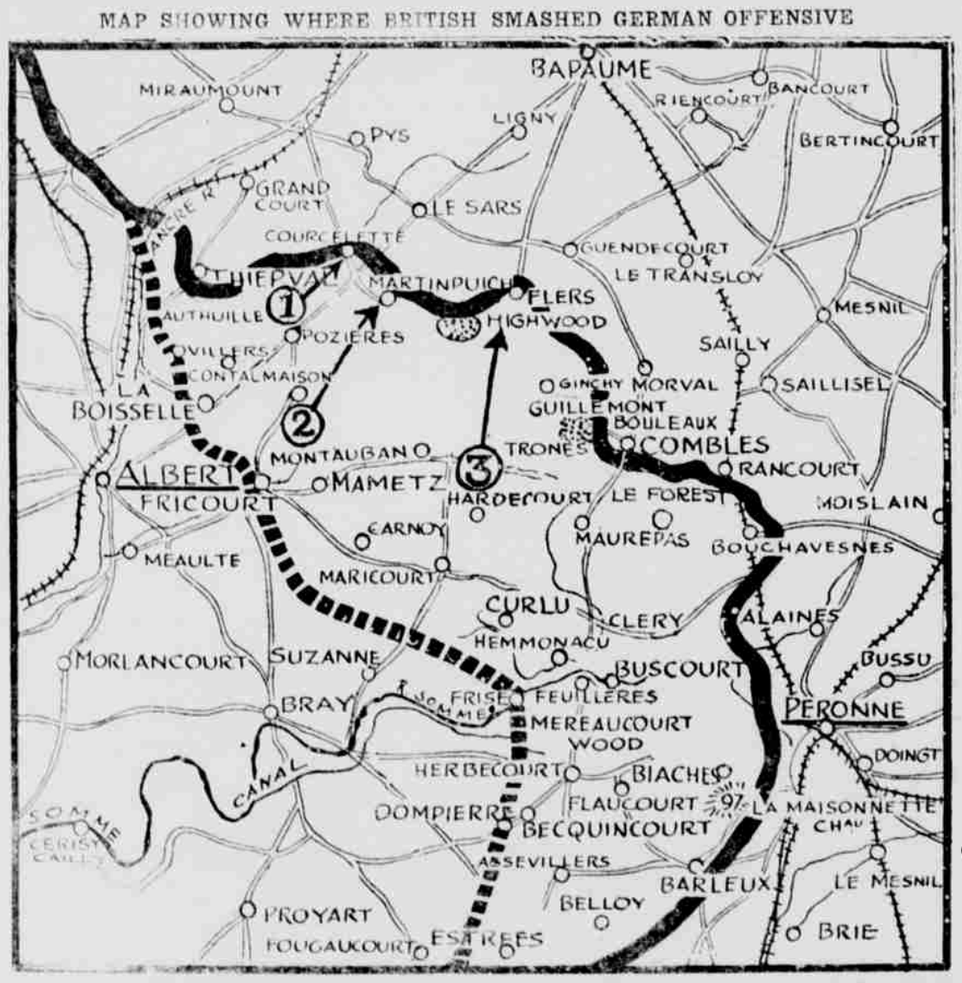
MAP SHOWING WHERE BRITISH SMASHED GERMAN OFFENSIVE



A map showing where the British penetrated the German third line of defense on the Somme, capturing the villages of Flers, Martinpuich and Courcelette, as indicated by arrows. The broken line is the original battle front of July 1, when the Somme offensive began. The black line is the present front. The line from Courcelette to Cinchy, which the British now hold, is considerably down the further side of the high ground which the Germans held on July 1 and which the British have just entirely occupied. At Flers, captured yesterday, the British are out four miles from Bapaume, their objective, while the French are about a mile from Peronne, their objective. The bulge just south of Rancourt marks the French victory of Tuesday. The map shows how the British and French are gradually surrounding Combles from west and east. Combles is the middle point of the German line from Bapaume to Peronne.

O.U. News Notes

Special to The World.

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 15. — One hundred and thirty-four men who received their training and degrees from the school of medicine of the University of Oklahoma are now practicing medicine. The first degree was granted in 1907. Sixty-one graduates of the university are practicing in this state, the remainder scattered throughout the world. A member of one graduating class is now engaged in the practice of medicine in Shantung, China, and another man is practicing in New Brunswick.

The geology department of the University of Oklahoma is larger than that of any other university in the world. More than four hundred men and women are enrolled in the course.

Davis Hillis, president of the freshman class of the university and enrolled in the college of arts and sciences, has been compelled to give up his studies and return to his home in Sapulpa on account of the death of his father.

Dress distinction has undergone several changes with the approval of the student council. The seniors have discarded the cane and black Windsor tie in favor of wide-brim Stetsons of the range model. Juniors wear durable trousers of khaki and brown flannel shirts. The sophomores wear corduroy trousers and gray flannel shirts. In addition to the compulsory red cap freshmen wear white trousers and heavy red sweaters. This dress attire is compulsory until the last football game of the season is played November 30, but with few exception, which be worn until spring, the red cap of the freshmen alone being discarded.

Miss Elizabeth Eagleton, B. A., '14, and Raymond Courtright, B. A., '14 were given a university wedding this week at the home of the bride's parents, Judge and Mrs. William L. Eagleton. Members of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and Sigma Chi fraternity were present. The groom is the famous "Corkie" of the Sooner eleven. He won his letter in each of the four major sports, football, baseball, basketball and track. Last year Mr. Courtright was athletic coach at the university preparatory school at Tonkawa and this year is engaged as coach of the state normal school at Pittsburg, Kan.

Plans are being made for the biggest home-coming in the history of the university October 28, the date of the Missouri-Oklahoma game, which will be played on Boyd field. A special section of the grandstand will be reserved for alumni. A reception will be held for students and alumni before the game and a big banquet is being planned for alumni after the game.

Joshua Lee, a student of dramatic art, will represent Oklahoma in the national contest of the intercollegiate association held at Lexington, Ky., December 28. Last year Lee defeated representatives from Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, North and South Dakota and Minnesota. The right to compete in the national contest is secured by the contestant winning in the state and in the district contests.

President Straton D. Brooks is deeply interested in the proposed plan for establishing a Brewer memorial loan fund for students in the university. The Mary E. Brewer Memorial association of Muskogee has made arrangements with the university board for the student loans.

"He Kept Us Out of War."

A list of the names of 285 Americans killed in Mexico between December, 1919, and September 1, 1916, is given by Senator Fall of New Mexico. This is exclusive of the officers and men killed at Carrizal and thirty other persons killed in Mexico, but regarding whom details could not be obtained.

Three hundred Americans killed, almost at our doors, and with hardly a protest on the part of this government! Three hundred murdered, some of them by bandits, some by federal soldiers, some by Villistas, some by Carranzaistas. There were nothing like so many killed in the war with Spain.

Three hundred killed, the militia sent to the border for months, an expense that seems likely to amount to a billion dollars incurred—

Yet there are people who say approvingly, "He kept us out of war!"

Berlin Admits Reverse.
