ADVANCES RENEWED ON TRADE EXCHANGE

Shares Start Week With Strong Upward Tendency—Rails Especially Show Strength.

NEW YORK, March 3.—The week in the stock market opened with another broad speculative inquiry, rails sharing liberally in the general advance, which assumed its usual substantial proportions, however, in specialties representing the motor industry.

United States Steel provided the market's firmest foundation, reflecting a more insistent demand than at any period since the extra common dividend was cut. Steel made an exceptional advance at 2½ points to 94¾, finishing only a fraction at the close.

Kelly-Springfield Tire made a new top on its further rise of four points to $1.15¾; General Motors fell most of its five point rise, and the pools in Baldwin Locomotive, Continental Can, Industrial Alcohol and Montana Power lifted those shares three to five points. Leather, tobacco, sugar and oil stocks yielded part of their one to four point gains. Mexican Petroleum and Royal Dutch falling back in the final hour, when the usual realizing for profits caused moderate reactions.

Low priced rails, including Western Pacific common and preferred, Rock Island, Colorado Southern and Pittsburgh and West Virginia, were no less strong than issues of the caliber of Reading and Canadian Pacific but shipping and coppers were backward.

Foreign bonds held steady but the several domestic groups, including liberty issues were irregular within restricted limits. Old United States bonds unchanged on call.

TULSA TO GET A NEW UNION STATION SOON

Plans for Remodeling and Increasing Frisco Station Are to Be Put in Effect.

Communication was received Monday by Maor C. H. Hubbard from Senator Robert L. Owen that immediate rapid progress in obtaining a union station for Tulsa is very likely. It is proposed that the old Frisco station be improved and used as a point of radiation by all the roads of the city.

Senator Owen states that last September the United States railroad administration approved plans of the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad for the expenditure of $100,000 on improvements for the station here. These improvements have been delayed pending the culmination of an agreement with the other roads touching Tulsa.

Senator Owen quotes an extract of the proceedings of the railroad administration on this subject. The Santa Fe has already agreed to the plan and the Midland Valley and M., K. & T. lines are expected to concede readily, which will locate Tulsa's union station at the present stand of the Frisco.

MASTER VIOLINIST THRILLS AUDIENCE

New York Sun, Oct. 27, 1918.

Some recitals have faded quickly into invisibility, but there was no sign of pallor about that of Jascha Heifetz at Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon. It was the first local appearance this season of the young master, and he was received by an audience which heard every number with rapt attention, and was both enthusiastic and discriminating in its applause.

The program began according to custom, with classic numbers. Tartini's G minor sonata and one of Mozart's D Major concertos. The second group was in the romantic vein with Beethoven's F major romanza to begin it and Moszkowski's glittering "Guitarre" to end it. Mr. Heifetz played again with astonishing authority, with poise and finish.

In short, there is unceasing delight from the beginning of one of his recitals to the end. Yesterday's audience elected to make a special demonstration of pleasure after a minuet by Beethoven. The students and violinists had their moment of rapture after the "Guitarre."

Heifetz will appear in Convention Hall tonight at 8:15.

Mysterious Death of Nun Under Suspicion

Isadore church; arrow points to spot where Sister Mary was buried under church.

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., March 2.—Sister Mary John, member of the Felician sisterhood, whose bones were found recently under the Holy Rosary church at St. Isadore, 11 years after her disappearance, lived in terror of Mrs. Stanislaw Lypehinski, housekeeper for the Rev. Father Bienodeski, pastor of the church, according to evidence obtained by authorities in charge of the case. Warrants for the arrest on a murder charge of the priest and his housekeeper were issued some days ago. The latter has been arrested and is enjoying her liberty under bail furnished by the priest.

Mrs. Stanislaw Lypehinski, it appears, "ran" the neighborhood about the church. To incur her displeasure was to receive a public condemnation from the lips of Father Bienowski in church the following Sunday.

"She is boss here," is the way leading parishioners of Holy Rosary church put it repeatedly. They told of the women's fear of her. Wives of parish officials today declared Sister Mary John was a special object of the housekeeper's hatred.

"Mrs. Lypehinski has told me time and again that Sister Mary John was not fit to tread upon the holy ground of the church and the school; that she was an unworthy woman; that she was no good," said Mrs. Jacob Flees, wife of the sexton of the church today. "I was afraid of her, we were all afraid of her because of the things she said. She told my husband, too, that Sister Mary John was no good."

Flees corroborated his wife's statement, as did the lone storekeeper at Isadore and several of his neighbors.

Martha Miller, whose confession of her illicit relations with Father Podleszwski brought to light the gruesome story of Sister Mary John, is frank in her declaration that she still wishes to see him back. He is now in Detroit. She speaks freely of her trip last Thanksgiving to Ann Arbor with the priest, when she gave birth to a baby.

When Father Podleszewski took her back to Isadore he told her about the burial. She asked him who had told him, but he refused to answer. Then, a few weeks ago, the girl told her father the secret of Sister Mary's burial place.

Father Bienowski, interviewed in his parish home at Manistee a few days ago, said he did not believe the bones dug up were those of Sister Mary. He said he was fishing on the day of her disappearance.

The announcement from Bishop's Administrator Lefebvre of at Dallas, in charge of the diocese, that the church would do everything possible to help solve the mystery and punish the guilty parties, is taken by officials as their greatest asset.

ANDREW AND IMOGENE

By ROE FULKERSON

SHE came over where he was reading his paper and pushing it aside, sat down on the arm of his chair. She ran her hand caressingly over his head.

"How much?" he asked, reaching for his pocketbook.

"What?" she asked.

"How much?" he demanded again.

"I don't understand," said Imogene, flushing up.

"Go on; I like it," she replied, "but I just wanted to know how much it was going to cost me. When you come purring around me this way I know there is going to be a lowering of the high tide of my financial affairs."

"Andrew," she pulled back from him, "only cats purr!"

"I retract the purr," he said. "I meant coo."

"I am not a dove, either," she snapped.

"No, dear, you are that sweetest of all sweet things—a woman; and being a woman you take of all the nice things of life. You purr like a fluffy little kitten when you are happy; you coo like a dove when you are pleased, and all that sort of thing, don't you know." His finish was lame.

"In other words, I am a brainless parasite, an ornamental nothing, a toy, a pet, a thing with which you amuse yourself."

"Now, look here, we're having a perfectly good time when you commenced to put words in my mouth," complained Andrew.

"And I was perfectly happy until you began to ascribe mercenary motives to my little acts of affection," she countered.

"I am sorry, dear," he said. "I was only kidding you."

"I do not mind your jokes, Andrew," she said gravely, "but I was just thinking when I came over here to you how happy we had been all these years and how kind and good you had always been to me since we first came to the big city a bride and groom."

"You were wishin' we were as rich since we got rich as we used to be when we were poor" asked Andrew, kindly.

"Not exactly that," said she, "but I know what you mean. We did used to have fun in those old days when we had just two rooms and your small salary, didn't we?"

"Do you remember the little hallroom kitchenette where I learned to cook and when we had company they used to have to sit on the ice box?"

"My, it was fun to plan the meals when we only had just a little bit to pay and it took so much contriving, and how we used to go to the market together and save a little on this and on that, so we could have a treat on some other things! My, it was fun!"

"You bet it was, kiddo! You certainly was a brick! You stuck like the good little sport you were and made every dollar stretch to $1.25.

"I shall never forget it, and while we are not rich now as some people figure money, we are on Easy street, and that's the reason I am so glad to come across on any old proposition you have that takes a little of my money.

"Now, honey, I want you to feel now as then that everything is ours and not the property of either one of us, and I love to give you the things you want."

"Honest?" she asked, pulling his ear.

"Honest Injun."

"I would like money for a new dress," she smiled.

He laid a fat wallet in her hand and she ran out of the room with it. He rubbed his nose meditatively a minute in a puzzled way and wondered and wondered as men have ever wondered in their affairs with women. Had she or hadn't she?

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmothers time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

Not brewing at home is musty and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.—Adv.

ROBBERS ENTER AN OFFICE AND STEAL TYPEWRITER

Thieves entered the office of A. B. Thomas, local oil producer, 17 East Eighth street, late Sunday night and carried away a Remington typewriter and other office equipment. The thieves entered the building by forcing open one of the side windows, having unlatched the window catch, just how the catch was unfastened has not been ascertained. The window had not been broken or were any "jimmy" marks visible on the window.

The robbery was reported to the police headquarters early Monday morning and Detective Jack Branns was sent out on the case. After investigating the case Branns was lead to believe that the robbery was committed by a man and a woman, several clues to that effect having been left in the office. The thieves left by the front door, leaving the door open.
