DISCHARGE MACHINES OPERATING SMOOTHLY

Secretary Baker Well Pleased With Demobilization Work Throughout Nation.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Upon his return to Washington today from a swing around the country visiting army demobilization centers in company with General March, chief of staff, Secretary Baker said he had found that the best record generally of discharge for men from overseas after their arrival in camps in the United States was 48 hours. The secretary told of one small camp where the men were released on the same day of arrival and said that in none of the camps visited did the period exceed six days.

Examination Thorough.

Mr. Baker gave a detailed description of the processes of demobilization, including the examination of each man by from 10 to 13 doctors to determine whether the men had suffered any injurious physical effects by reason of their service with the fighting forces. Each doctor, the secretary said, is a specialist in a certain line and where an ailment is found a board of review consisting of three doctors makes further examination. The secretary said he had talked with a great number of soldiers both in the camps and on the trains and that he did not recall a single instance of complaint because of failure to receive full pay.

During his visits to the camps, the war secretary noted that agents of the department of labor and other government agencies interviewed each discharged man to determine whether he had a job and if not, what his qualifications were and what work he desired to take up.

Duringhis trip Mr. Baker had, by invitation, spoken before chambers of commerce or similar bodies in many places. In these addresses he said he generally spoke of the league of nations proposal as being to his mind a world necessity because of the nature of modern warfare. Mr. Baker added that without exception he had found his hearers in agreement as to the necessity of establishing some means of substituting arbitration and peaceful settlements for force in international disputes.

Mr. Baker's plans for a visit to Europe at an early date have not been changed and he hopes to sail next month.

NAVY PLANS PEACE TIME DIRECTION OF DESTROYERS

WASHINGTON, March 26.—With approximately 300 destroyers to be in commission by the end of the year, the navy department is working out plans for the peace-time handling of this force. The first suggestion made was to place 200 of the ships in reserve, but it was learned today there was a movement taking shape toward keeping the entire force in active commission, even if it would be necessary to put a larger number of older battleships and cruisers in reserve to obtain the necessary personnel.

Officers who favor keeping the destroyers in full commission believe the training received aboard these vessels by both officers and men would be more valuable than the same experience aboard the larger ships.

They feel, also, that the naval events of the great war point the way toward stressing the future development of the destroyer force. For these reasons the officers are opposing vigorously the proposal of retiring two-thirds of the force to the reserve.

Some of the old torpedo boats and destroyers undobtedly will be sold in the near future.

ALABAMA COTTON GROWER TAKES RAP AT GOV. ALLEN

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 26. "Henry J. Allen, governor of Kansas, in his telegram to the chairman of the Cotton Growers association of South Carolina, as reported by The Associated Press, uttered a mean stricture on the cotton growers of the south," declared J. O. Thompson, president of the Alabama Farmers Protective league, today. "His claim that the wheat growers are doing all they can to increase the wheat yield that every man may have bread is amusing. Governor Allen knows that the wheat growers have made a good bargain with the government and he knows that they have tremendously increased their acreage at the expense of corn.

"No one believes that the wheat growers have so tremendously increased their wheat acreage because of their desire to feed the world. They are planting it because they have sold at an exorbitant price.

"Mr. Allen speaks of 35 cents the farmer is receiving for his cotton, when he, as an intelligent man, should know that we can not get within 10 cents of that price."

To Cut Prices.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Progress toward probable reduction in prices was recorded by members of the industrial board of the department of commerce today after conferences with representatives of the coal, cement, building, hardware, box board and glass industries. It was said, however that it was unlikely that price schedules for commodities produced by any of the five industries would be completed without further conferences.
