Three trains will leave the station near Remagen daily until April 11, when the tail end of the Rainbows will see the last of the Rhine. It is estimated that the entire division will be on the Atlantic a few days later.

"There is nothing worth while mentioning the matter with me. I'll be all right in a short time," he said.

Ambitions Were Born and Many Died in Seventh Legislature

By JERRY BAND.

The close of every legislative session brings the political resume which tells of the hopes and designs of those who nourish ambitions to climb the political ladder still higher, as shown by the course of events and by the conduct of the men who hold to these hopes and designs. It is all very facile. But actions speak louder than words and when a man has an ambition it is a difficult matter for him to conceal it.

The seventh legislature saw many of these political ambitions in their germ stage after the session had started incubation. It also saw a political creature come into being. This was nothing more than a machine which was fashioned to weld allegiance to the Robertson administration and, it is charged by critics of the administration, a club with which to force into the background those who have not at all times been faithful to the Robertson cause.

Severe Punishment Dealt.

Administration critics say that the legislature was used to carry through this plan of "punishment" in the enactment of numerous local measures whose effect extends even to the grass roots. It is charged that the aim was to remove from office certain city and county officials who had not been faithful to the administration. In Muskogee county, for instance, legislation aimed to remove from office certain city and county officials who were not acceptable to the administration, was rushed through at the last moment. Also, it is charged by many Muskogeeans, another measure which was designed to remove two members from the city board of education was hurried through. This is regarded in Muskogee more as a spite than a retributive measure prompted by certain unpleasantness of a member of the board who is friendly to the governor. Whatever may have been the purpose of this legislation it went through and its effect is being felt by men who are known to have opposed the governor in the primary.

To offset talk of this kind, friends of Governor Robertson point to the administration's legislative program which placed Paul Nesbitt, a Bill Durant follower, in the chairmanship of the house committee on roads and highways and made Ben F. Harrison, staunch friend of William H. Murray, chairman of the house appropriations committee. But it should not be forgotten in this connection that without Harrison and Nesbitt there was little likelihood that the administration's program could have been put through and friends of the administration knew it. So this might more properly be regarded as conciliatory action than as evidencing a desire to forget the past, for if the support of any two men were needed in order to insure the success of the administration program it was the support of Harrison and Nesbitt. In fact, without the support of these two powerful members it is more than likely that the administration ship would have gone on the rocks early in the session.

Political Hopes Born.

As to the political hopes that were born of the session, they are talking about Lieutenant Governor Trapp and his ambitions. It was frequently remarked that Trapp's conduct was shaped "with an eye to the future" and that his aim was to establish a record upon which he might make a race for office higher than that of governor. One thing is certain. Trapp is the first lieutenant governor since statehood who has made his office something more than a soft chair berth and whether or not the charges that he is a czar as presiding officer of the senate, are to be sustained by public opinion, there is no question that as a presiding officer the state has never seen his equal.

Then, there is Elmer Thomas. A great many observers point to his speech in favor of his good roads bill as his first bid for higher honors four years hence. He could not have staged his effort more dramatically or more effectively. And this much is certain. Although Thomas is outside the administration camp, his influence was felt in the senate and the remark was frequently heard: "That speech is likely to make him governor some day."

The chances are that a score of others nourish ambitions which will bring them out some day. Who they are and in what direction their ambitions lie remain to be seen. At any rate, there were many who set out to establish records and whose conduct showed more plainly than words that they were looking to the future.

REANEY HEARING GOES OVER UNTIL WEDNESDAY

DETROIT, Mich., April 5.—The hearing of Thomas J. Reaney, Dallas, Texas, charged with the murder of his wife here February 25, was adjourned today until next Wednesday, when Justice Stein in police court will decide whether Reaney is to be held for trial.

Among witnesses examined today was Dr. Albert R. L. French, county physician, who helped perform an autopsy over Mrs. Reaney's body. He said death was due, in his opinion, to acute nephritis, "which may have been caused by poisoning." On cross examination Doctor French admitted that it might have been brought on by alcoholism or various germ diseases.

Reaney is charged with killing his wife by poisoning.

TO ACCEPT BIDS FOR MORE COUNTY ROADS

County Commissioners at Session Monday Will Let Contracts for 17.15 Miles of Highways.

Advertisement for bids for hard surfacing 17.15 miles of Tulsa county roads will be authorized at the bi-monthly meeting of the Tulsa county board of commissioners Monday. The new highways, now either completed or under construction as to grading are as follows:

From east end of the C. O. Frye & H. Frye contract, at Rose Hill cemetery, north 1.3 miles and west 35 miles to Dawson.

From east end of C. O. & H. Frye contract, Rose Hill cemetery, east 3 miles, north 7 miles, east 5 mile to Owasso.

From the Tulsa-Bixby road, east to Broken Arrow, 5 miles.

The authorization of the advertisements for the construction of these roads will allow the county commissioners to call for bids on these sections and also on five sections of roads, running north, east and south of Tulsa, a total of 58.65 miles upon which bids will be received April 21. With the acceptance of satisfactory bids the board of commissioners will have let contracts for a total of 66.15 miles of hard surfaced roads in Tulsa county, to be completed within six months after the awarding of the contract.

The C. O. & H. Frye company, to which company the first contract for hard surfaced roads in Tulsa county was made one month ago, has begun work on the Sand Springs and Admiral roadways and will have these thoroughfares in condition for placing the hard surfacing sometime this month.

With the completion of the roads under contract, or for which contract will be let April 21, Tulsa county will have highways of the best type extending from Skiatook through Tulsa to Bixby and from Tulsa east to Broken Arrow and to Owasso. Contracts for the grading of these roads preparatory to the hard surfacing has been let, and the construction companies successful in this bidding and the county road camps are rapidly placing roadbeds in condition for the surfacing operations.

The Phillies will speculate with a lot of new material this spring. There are many names on the clubs roster whom fans have never heard
