ARRANGE PLANS TO ENTERTAIN BANKERS

W. O. Buck Tells Chamber of Commerce of Program for Visitors to Come Wednesday.

EXPECT 150 FINANCIERS

Delegates From All Parts of Country Will Attend Two-Day Convention in Tulsa.

In the absence of H. H. Rogers, president, T. J. Hartman presided at the meeting of the chamber of commerce directors Friday noon at Hotel Tulsa. The meeting was not productive of much accomplishment but W. O. Buck of the Central National bank, outlined plans for the reception of the bankers who will convene here Wednesday and Thursday for a state meeting. At least 150 representatives will attend from banks from coast to coast and from both the northern and southern states, Mr. Buck declared, in addition to hundreds of Oklahoma bankers.

With the exception of the business session at the chamber of commerce municipal auditorium Wednesday morning, the stay of the bankers will be made a matter of entertainment by Tulsa.

Many automobiles will be needed to transport the visitors from point to point in the city where entertainment has been arranged and efforts are being made to have as many car owners as possible donate the use of their machines during the two days the bankers are here.

In view of the fact that most of the visitors will bring their wives and families, a special effort should be made to provide for their entertainment, Mr. Buck said. At past conventions, he said, the women visitors have not departed with the most favorable impression of Tulsa and the program is being arranged to avoid a recurrence of the feeling after the coming convention.

A visit to the Cosden refinery plant in West Tulsa Wednesday afternoon or a reception and dance at the Country club Wednesday night and line parties to the several theaters Thursday night are a few of the features of the program that is being arranged by the committee of local bankers of which Mr. Buck is the head.

CITY MAY RECLAIM OLD FAIR GROUNDS

Tract of Land in Litigation for Many Years May Soon Be Controlled by Tulsa Ordinances.

A determined effort to reclaim what was formerly the old fair grounds from its long litigation between the Creek nation and various purchasers, and make it a part of the city of Tulsa, was made at a meeting of the mayor and city commissioners Friday, counsel for the most probable owners, the Osage Manufacturing company, appearing in their behalf.

The petition presented was signed by James S. Watson, probate attorney of the Creek nation, and sets forth the various angles of the controversy, dating back about 20 years. These lots, located along the Frisco right of way are not liable to taxation under the city's ordinance, and while the "squattier" element have mostly been eliminated, although the tract abounds in disreputable shanties and "rag houses" it is stated that business concerns located upon some of them refuse to pay any rent, and have not paid any for about 15 years, because no owner can present a clear title.

Stating that they purchased seven lots adjacent to the railroad tracks in 1905, upon which the Tulsa Rig & Reel Manufacturing Co., is now located, the Osage Manufacturing company petitioned the city that they strike the sewer assessments from the rolls, let them pay the remaining $10,000 and obtain their deed. In addition they promise to begin paving and sewer installation immediately, to clean up their section of the district, and get it in shape for the industrial part of the city that it is destined to be.

Mayor Hubbard appointed a committee of Charles Burke, city auditor, E. P. Marshall, city attorney, Commissioner H. F. Newblock and City Engineer H. H. Wyss to investigate the situation and report at the next meeting. This part of the city has been an eyesore for the past 15 years and should the titles be cleared by city ordinance the entire district will be cleaned up.

Those From the Land of Possum Hunts, Sweet Cider, and Old-Fashioned Get Together Picnics to Celebrate Today

"Old Missoury," the land of the beautiful Ozarks, "hound dawgs," possum hunts, sweet cider, basket picnics, and genuine heart warming friendliness, will be transplanted in every detail that is possible to Owen park this afternoon between the hours of 4 and 8 o'clock, when the Missourians now residing in Tulsa and vicinity will hold their annual basket picnic.

The "Missouri club" of which Foster N. Burns is president, has a membership of between 3,500 and 4,000 Missourians, all of whom were "bawn back there." And while it could hardly be hoped that half of the membership roll will be able to be in attendance, an unusually large crowd is expected, and arrangements are being made for a genuine good time.

Each county of the mother state and there are 114 of them, will respond to roll call, residents of the various counties gathering together for reminiscences of the good old days. A prize of a large size American flag is to be presented to the county having the largest number of persons in attendance. The contest is said to be close between Newton, Jasper, Lawrence, Greer and one or two other southwestern counties.

Each family is requested to bring a big lunch basket with fried chicken, white cake, cherry pie, potato salad, and all the good old "eats" that make picnics worth while. A list of prominent Missouri orators will address the gathering after dinner.

In October the annual "get together" meeting of the Missouri club will be held at Convention hall, at which Governor Gardner of Missouri will be the honor guest.

TUESDAY'S BOOSTERS PIERCE OSAGE NATION

Great Oil Producing Region to Be Visited by Business Men on Next Booster Trip.

One of the most extensive trade trips of the year will be taken next Tuesday through the Osage nation. Abounding in natural beauties, Indian legends and lore of intense interest, as well as being the richest oil producing spot in the state, the day's journey is being anticipated by the 125 "boosters" with enthusiasm. The following route will be taken: Tulsa to Pawhuska via the Midland Valley; from Pawhuska to Nelogany via the Midland Valley, Nelogany to Bartlesville via the M. K. & T.; from Bartlesville to Tulsa via the A. T. & S. F.

Elaborate and interesting plans are being made in some of the places to be visited for the entertainment of the Tulsa "boosters." For instance, a letter from L. W. Petit, superintendent of Collinsville schools, says that the school children of that city will be at the station at 5.23 o'clock to welcome the visitors. The following cities and towns will be visited:

Tulsa		7:00 a.m.
Turley	7:10 a.m.	7:20 a.m.
Sperry	7:35 a.m.	7:55 a.m.

SUES FOR INJURIES AND LOSS OF AUTO

Asks for Twenty Six Hundred Dollars for Alleged Damage Done by Midland Valley Train.

Suit to recover damages of $1,600 for injuries alleged to have been the direct result of the defendants' negligence, and $1,000 for the loss of an automobile which was destroyed by an engine operated by agents of the defendants, suit was filed in district court Friday by Matt Steil against the Midland Valley railroad company and Walker D. Hines, director general of United States railroads.

Steil states in his petition that while driving the automobile across the railroad right-of-way on East Fourteenth street in the city of Tulsa February 24, 1919, the car was struck by a switch engine, the automobile wrecked and that he was permanently injured. He claims the accident to have been due to the negligence of the agents operating the switch engine in failing to give any warning signal when approaching the crossing.

ENGLISH OIL EXPERT MAY LOCATE IN TULSA

Campbell Hunter, International Petroleum Authority Speaks at Chamber of Commerce Luncheon.

Campbell M. Hunter of London, England, petroleum expert of international reputation, was in Tulsa Friday and was guest of the chamber of commerce directors at luncheon.

"I must first express the appreciation my people have for America's aid. I speak of the young manhood that came to Europe to help us fight the beastly hun. I will not say much about your great financial aid for it was the men that counted most."

Mr. Hunter, who has been visiting the oil fields of America during the last several weeks, is considering locating a branch office in America and stated to J. M. Berry of the Central National bank that he would locate either in New York or Tulsa and was inclined to favor Tulsa.

During the war Hunter was with the British engineers, serving through the campaign in the Dardanelles. He described the odds the British army faced in that disastrous campaign through the difficulty in getting supplies and particularly water, hospital patients being rationed a half pint of tepid water daily which was brought from three day's distance in tank ships.

Likes American Progressiveness.

Several times in his experience Mr. Hunter has used Oklahoma drillers and declared that they were unequalled.

Discussion of the recent trade trips and receptions for men from Kansas City and Oklahoma City, which had been discussed by the directors of the chamber of commerce before Mr. Hunter was called on to speak, brought an interesting comparisons from the Englishman relative to the customs in his country and in America. Trade trips and similar expeditions by the people of one section into another are unknown in England, he said and he believed that our custom is superior and has advantages that the people of England are not awake to.

"It promotes better feeling no doubt and extends trade interests and it is just such feeling as must be established among the nations of the world as well as among the various sections of a country.

Oppose League of Nations.

"Personally I am opposed to the league of nations. You who do not know the vast differences in custom and thought of the peoples of Europe can not appreciate the difficulty of bringing them into the same plane as it is philosophically proposed in the league of nations.

"If the league of nations is achieved it will be a great thing and just what we want but I am not placing too much confidence in its success."

Mr. Hunter will leave today on a trip through the Oklahoma oil fields, moving on later to Texas and expects to return to Tulsa soon. This is his fourth trip to Tulsa and the first since the war.
