SOCIETY IS AWAKE AGAIN IN LONDON

Fashionables Shake Off War Lethargy and Old-Time Gaiety Is Revived.

PRINCE OF WALES DICTATOR

"Demobbed Slackers," Economic Parasites, Go Stalking For Wealthy Wives.

LONDON, May 22.—That land of plenty which lies beyond Trafalgar square and proves itself to the rule of West End is awakening with startling rapidity from five years of war suppression.

Its problems are being aired in picture and print. Social London is alive again.

The Prince of Wales, say some, may become the dictator of this land of fashion, if he chooses. As he divides his time between the new duties of royalty—mingling with the common people and studying their problems—and the circle of the social elect, it is already whispered that he is being watched and copied by the "knuts." This latter being English for dandies or exquisites. In the little matter of the "Homburg" or derby hat he is already setting the style.

Ballroom Browsing

Into the society of London, say others, a new parasite has found his way. Christopher Shackleton, writing in the Express, calls him the "demobbed slacker." He is not a slacker from the military, but from the economic point of view. He has done his bit and rests there. And he has had his state of leisure and position, too, as an officer. Now is he browsing the ballrooms and stalking for a wealthy young wife. There are so many more women than men in England that this picker of peaches plays a long game, one gathers, and is absolutely sure that his picking will be worth while and well upholstered with the wherewithal necessary to a life of ease.

These "demobbed slackers" and others, say the writers of fashion, are shortly to introduce the "dazzle suit"—being tired of much khaki. It is a khaki revolt.

"The colors the young men are choosing would have been rather startling before the war," say a West End tailor. "There is a dazzle cloth in which the colors are blent in a peculiar way."

Dad Takes Back Seat.

Poor old dad, who has more or less amounted to something socially while the boys were all away at the front, is taking a seat in his club and leading a drab and uninspiring existence by comparison. While fluffy young flappers start word wars over the bareness of the socially elect backs, the young men are borrowing a plume from the strutting barn fowl and there is promise of a bright and cheery season.

Since there must always be something new, it is now further averred that society is being tattooed by a West End Artist. Officers of crack regiments are being done in colors with the regimental crest. The Canadians liked this idea and it is reported all the officers of one regiment were decorated for life with the tatooist's needle. The ladies generally are shy of the "art," 'tis said, but some who wished to restore their fading bloom occasionally want a little pink tatooed in their cheeks.

The frivolous West will have new sensations and newer ones still, for yet young.

"I noticed you got up and gave that lady your seat in the tramcar the other day."

"Since childhood I have respected a woman with a strap in her hand."

Yankee Soldiers Revel Amid the Glories of a Past Magnificence

PARIS, April 28 (by mail).—Standing amid the glories of the royal pool of France in the park at Versailles an American doughboy spoke for the doughboys:

"Say, pal, where do you get extra around these parts?"

American fighting men in leave parties led by trained guides from the Paris headquarters of the Young Men's Christian association war work commission now be seen everywhere in the monuments of the old regime and of the empire in a truly American fashion, which does not present the association of the great palace of Louis XIV and "others."

"Looks like a crooked church" was the deliberate opinion of another boy as he shaded his eyes before the Hotel des Invalides. There he went inside and became enthusiastic over the marble tablet about the tomb of Napoleon. "Gosh, it was no "Shrimp" said he, and he didn't a flow."

One of them emerged from the Invalides and grew almost poetic about the yellow light coming through the stained glass windows above Napoleon's casket. "Then he caught himself—and almost blushed."

In the next breath he called the Court des Invalides the "convent parlor of the princes of France."

When he saw Gambetta's airplane and learned what it was, he hesitated a moment before he began to determine its "make."

Perhaps the sensations from Versailles are the most illuminating.

Halting at the Fountain of Neptune, a doughboy cast his eye appraisingly down the vista of the park.

"Gee," he said, "there must be two miles of fountains."

Best of all, apparently, the soldiers like to go and sit on the bank of the Seine—watching the river traffic.

The one-fourth size Statue of Liberty presented to Paris by the American colonies watches over them here. But even it is the subject of frank criticism.

"Huh," said one of the critics. "It don't look as good as the old girl will when we steam into New York harbor."

Indicted for Murder.

NEW ORLEANS, May 24.—The Orleans parish grand jury today indicted Dr. F. A. Blanchard, recently a practicing dentist in Little Rock, Ark., and E. L. Jackson, employed here by a telegraph company, charged jointly with the murder last Saturday of Dr. Albert L. Peel, manager of a dental company.

GALICIA A HOTBED OF INFECTIOUS DISEASE

Russian Red Army Is Source of Many and Grievous Ills of Flesh Causing Epidemics.

STANISLAU, Ukraine, April 2.—(By mail.)—Diseases imported from Russia by the way of Kiev and Odessa are spreading to such an alarming extent that the government has closed the frontiers and every examined civil refugees and other former prisoners of war returning to their homes. An investigation by the International Red Cross commission shows that possibly 25 per cent of the population of Lemberg and other centers of old Galicia are infected by the various forms of typhus, dysentery, tuberculosis or other infectious or mental and nervous diseases.

The conditions are considered worse here owing to closer contact with Russia. In one hospital here are 300 cases of typhus and 800 cases of venereal diseases. For a population of 5,000,000 there are but 50 physicians. Thus far six doctors have died of typhus and three others are ill. The conditions are made worse by lack of soap, disinfectants, change of clothing and sheets. Virtually all the window curtains have been requisitioned for use as bed clothing or for making women's underclothes.

Hardship and Degradation.

Of a total of 250 drug stores, 200 are without drugs. In the hospitals all kinds of cases are treated in the same wards.

These diseases are spreading partly from Russia where it is affirmed that the red army is contaminated with social disease to the extent of 70 per cent. Many diseases also were spread by Russian prisoners who were interned in Hungary and who have returned to Russia since peace, inside establishment of a school for training students in handling of dirigibles.

Use More Wool.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Manufacturers used during April 45,000,000 pounds of wool, an increase of 32 per cent over March. The decreased consumption indicates a rapid return to normal conditions, the bureau of markets declared in a statement today.

Postpone Women's Rights.

ST. LOUIS, May 24.—Action on resolutions to grant women full equality in church affairs was postponed until 1920 at the closing session of the 21st general assembly of the Presbyterian church, U. S. A., here today. A resolution urging individual churches to make annual appropriations for paid newspaper advertising was adopted by the commissioners today.

Honor Roosevelt.

CHICAGO, May 24.—On July 4 the Black Hills pioneers will honor the memory of Colonel Roosevelt by naming the highest peak of the hills Mount Theodore Roosevelt, Seth Bullock of Deadwood, S. D., announced here today. Major General Leonard Wood will deliver the memorial address on top the peak.

Dirigible Base at Dix.

CAMP DIX, N. J., May 24.—The government will establish its largest dirigible balloon base near Camp Dix, it became known today when a government balloon commission selected a site near here. Tentative plans include establishment of a school for training students in handling of dirigibles.

How Father Scored a Beat

One of the time-honored points of difference between Mr. Man and his spouse arises over whether or not he shall be allowed to have his smoking indulgences in the living room? The untidiness of these conditions which fail to measure up to the appearance of the other furnishings, no doubt gave the mistress some ground for complaint, in the past, but Mr. Man comes into his own with the Imperial humidor shown herewith. It makes as handsome a piece of furniture as one could desire. On the lower shelf may rest the smoking outfit, and, perhaps, in a spirit of compromise, the wife may be allowed the stand above for decorative pieces. The compartment, air-tight, holds boxes of cigars, keeping them in prime condition.

The Tea Wagon

A tea wagon should be considered as necessary in every well regulated home as a kitchen cabinet or a refrigerator. It is fully as useful. Long since it has outgrown its first functions as a silent maid between dining room and kitchen. Upstairs and down and on the porch, it officiates wherever food or other materials need to be transported in the home. Note the unusual drawer in the above wagon. These carts are made in either dark brown mahogany or American walnut.
