from Rear Admiral Henry T. Mayo, commander of the American naval forces in French waters. The message was received at the office of Admiral Wilson, chief of naval operations in Washington.

In another message Admiral Mayo cabled the commander of the naval air station at Lisbon, Portugal, to have a boat ready to proceed to the rescue of the airplane if necessary. He also advised President Wilson of the flight.

Saturday, Lisbon and other Portuguese points were in a state of excitement during the day and many thousands of people assembled in the streets to watch the airplanes. Mr. Daniels said he had received a cable from Admiral Mayo stating that the Portuguese had given the aviators a hearty welcome.

GREAT RECEPTION ACCORDED IN LISBON

By The Associated Press

LISBON, May 27.—The Portuguese people of this city gave the Atlantic fleet of American navy airplanes a hearty welcome when the airplanes arrived here today. The airplanes were escorted by the Portuguese navy, which fired a salute when the airplanes came in sight. Thousands of people, including the popular Portuguese President, Dr. Sidonio Pais, and members of his cabinet, were present at the airplanes' moorings. The President and his cabinet were the first to shake hands with the aviators. Dr. Sidonio Pais, in a speech, said he had been deeply moved by the reception accorded the airplanes by the people of Lisbon.

Almost simultaneously with the Portuguese action, Brigadier-General Carl Ansell, in Paris, Premier Clemenceau, Secretary Baker, members of the Italian navy committee, congratulated messages for the success of the world's first aerial passage of the Atlantic, by airplanes, in wires and later. They said that a nation was to give legislative expression to President Wilson's recommendation in his message to congress.

over all the coal output there. It is proposed that the German fleet be transferred to an international trust, managed by the Americans and controlled by the league of nations. The trust would be given the mercantile fleets of all the other maritime nations, and every nation would be represented in the central administration in a manner corresponding to the nation's tonnage. Germany announces her readiness to hand over 50 per cent of her mercantile fleet.

Besides in conformity with the proposition made by the former director of the Hamburg-American line, Germany will pledge herself to build at her own expense, in her own dock yards and by her own workmen, the number of ships necessary to compensate for the diminution in the world's tonnage, due to Germany's submarine warfare.
