APPROVE SELECTION OF PENROSE TODAY

Probability Is Pennsylvanian Will be Selected Without Opposition For Finance Leader.

PROGRESSIVES ARE BEATEN

In First Open Conference They Fail to Unseat Opponent—Object on Ground of Policy

WASHINGTON, May 27.—[illegible] Pennsylvania and [illegible] as chairman of Wagner [illegible] committee [illegible] is regarded [illegible] of the open conference [illegible] Senator Penrose [illegible] Senators.

The Republicans were joined by a [illegible] in their effort to suppress [illegible] and in private [illegible] that they [illegible] taken to the seats [illegible]

[illegible] Ladies plans to [illegible] tomorrow the [illegible] committee assignments [illegible] part of a solid vote [illegible] majority for their [illegible] in names, but [illegible] part of avoiding a [illegible] humiliation, [illegible] was threat [illegible] opposition of the [illegible] were said to be present [illegible] separate votes on [illegible] as to require [illegible] roll, though [illegible] senators Penrose and Warren.

Borah Attacks Penrose.

At the [illegible] conference today Senator Borah [illegible] of Senator [illegible] who was not present, [illegible] the progressives opposing [illegible] personal but based on Mr. Penrose's views on finance [illegible] Senator Kenyon of Iowa [illegible] strongly against the [illegible] senator, while Senators Spencer, Missouri, and Gronna, North Dakota, the only other progressives [illegible] party solidarity in [illegible] senate [illegible] during [illegible] were not invited to participate in committee organization.

Those supporting Senator Borah's action in support of Mr. Penrose were Gasper, Kansas, Cummins, Iowa, Johnson, California, Kenyon, Iowa, Lenroot, Wisconsin, McCormick, Illinois, McNary, Oregon and Nork, Senators Kellogg of Minnesota and Norris of Nebraska, who has opposed Senator Penrose were absent.

Warren Not Opposed.

With rejection of Senator Borah's motion, the progressives did not press their opposition to Senator Warren and the committee schedule approved at yesterday's conference was completed without a roll call. Senator Borah stated after the conference, which was the first open meeting ever held by the republicans on party organization, that he expected the entire committee slate would be adopted tomorrow. Although not bound by the conference action, he said, the progressives agreed to vote for the committee slate to insure republican control.

EXCHANGE TRUST COMPANY DOING BIG BOND BUSINESS

The Exchange Trust company of Tulsa has handled during the past 45 days approximately $3,500,000 worth of municipal and industrial bonds of various natures, according to H. L. Blackwell, vice president. Mr. Blackwell lays special stress on this fact as significant of the importance of the local company in the opinion of Scott, and indicates that the Exchange company recently became the purchaser of the $1,500,000 Tulsa school bond issue.

Of the amount of bonds purchased by the Exchange company during the period given $1,000,000 worth were in exchange for union paper of various nature. Approximately $1,500,000 worth of municipal bonds were handled by the Exchange during the same period, the remainder representing industrial issues. Mr. Blackwell stated that in addition to the school bond issue, the company purchased a number of bond issues for cities in Oklahoma and Kansas, the amount of bond issues so handled being in excess of $1,000,000 during the period given.

PAID FOR LOTS, WANTS DEEDS, WOMAN CLAIMS

Taking issue on a suit seeking the foreclosure of a mortgage in favor of the plaintiff [illegible] in Tulsa city property, said to be worth $[illegible], was filed in court Tuesday by Mrs. Pearl Davis against the Home Building company, in which the plaintiff claims that she has paid installments on the property, and payments on the mortgage, and that, although she has complied with her contract, the defendant company refuses to deed her the property. April 27, 1918, she claims, she had paid a total sum of bond payments of $[illegible] and payments on the mortgage of $[illegible] during the period of her occupancy of the premises.

She has a claim in her petition for $[illegible] for the purchase of Tulsa Heights addition, city property, lots [illegible] and 192, block [illegible], which she claims she purchased from the defendant company, according to the terms of a contract dated November 21, 1917, which the defendant refused to carry out, she claims. The plaintiff also has paid the taxes on the lots, she claims, and has expended money running a water line to the lots, that they might be platted and placed on the market. She also has paid the interest on the bond issue, she claims, and has placed valuable improvements on the property, she claims.

FOUR FACE CHARGES IN JUSTICE PEACE COURTS

This Discharged Soldier Got Peeved At Red Cross After Failure To Get Money For "Sight-Seeing" Expenses

A discharged soldier applied at the home service of the Red Cross Monday morning and asked for transportation to Washington. Showing he had an uncle in that place who would take care of him.

It is a rule of the home service that no man be sent from one place to another without first investigating to see that it is not merely a case of shifting the responsibility on to another home service section.

According to Mrs. Hallie Conley, secretary, this soldier became infuriated when, while not refusing him aid, she explained the ruling and told that she must wait an inquiry to Washington, to secure the uncle, and see if he accepted the responsibility.

"If that's the kind of help the Red Cross gives the soldiers, I'm through with them," he said. "That's why there are so many bolsheviki in the United States now, because of such treatment as this."

The man left the office, refusing to allow Mrs. Conley to telegraph to the town he claimed to have an uncle in. Investigation showed later that this soldier had traveled from place to place since his discharge and was only using the Red Cross for his own pleasure.

Mrs. Conley states that it is "more than a case that proves to be unfavorable as this. We meet many and explanation of the aid the Red Cross can give is sufficient. According to the secretary, if transportation was given in every case many soldiers would do nothing but move from place to place. It is necessary for the home service to know that the man has a prospective job awaiting him or a relative to friend. Who stands responsibility for him will be using a case on the home service of that town upon arrival. Mrs. Conley says that such action on the part of the home service office would be the same as what is meant by "passing the buck" in the army, besides being a useless waste of Red Cross funds.

The home service of Tulsa never refuses a soldier or his family aid in cases of immediate help.

PRESSEY REPORT IS GIVEN TO BOARD

liberal allowance of contingencies and is greater in my opinion, than the actual cost will be. Respectfully submitted by Alf G. Heggem, Barnes Meyers and H. A. Dressey.

Dam and power house	$ 218,145
Land and clearing	150,000
Right of way	50,000
Conduit	2,900,105
3 reservoirs on line	225,000
One large reservoir	314,000
Power plant	225,000
Pumping plants	150,000
Transmission lines	360,000
Engineering	230,170
Total cost	$4,853,020

When the report had been completed and thoroughly examined by all interested, Commissioner of Water Robert Curran took the floor and asked for a more exhaustive report on the proposed system and also detailed reports of the various surveys of possible sources made last fall by Mr. Pressey.

"I do not question you in any way, at any time, Mr. Pressey, but in order that I may act intelligently, I am calling upon you to furnish us with your field notes and a more complete report of all your surveys, that we may compare the respective merits of the various water sources suggested."

Mr. Pressey mentioned his 15-page report of the various water sources in this vicinity, and the details concerning each of them, that he had presented the mayor and commissioners some time ago, and which is now accessible to anyone interested in City Auditor Burke's office.

"What is the amount of water used at present and what will be the probable amount used in 1922, with its approximate cost?" asked Commissioner Curran, then, pointing to a heavy volume on the table before him, he said: "Here is the report on Oklahoma City's water system. It is complete to the smallest detail. Why can't a city of Tulsa's size and standing afford one as complete as that?"

"Oklahoma City has gotten out a splendid report," replied Mr. Pressey, "but it was never followed. Furthermore, I have never yet found an Oklahoma City man who has read that report. It is too long. When the city came to build its present water system, they did not follow that report at all."

No Run-Off at Shell Creek.

"In the report of your surveys can you give us the average rainfall and run-off of Shell creek?" asked Commissioner Curran.

"Yes, the rainfall of any area in the country is furnished by the government. As to the run-off, I spent just three months up there on Shell creek and most of that time there wasn't a drop of water flowing. I couldn't find any run-off, there wasn't enough water to make one.

"I went into Shell creek as carefully as any other project and found that the drainage area was but 28 square miles. The water of the wet season would have to be carried through the dry ones, and when the water isn't there it stands to reason that it is not the proper source of supply for the city of Tulsa."

In Mr. Pressey's report, filling more than 15 closely written typewritten pages, and discussing in detail the advantages and disadvantages of every probable source of supply for the city's water system, he has the following to say:

"The Arkansas river, Tulsa's present source of supply, is unsatisfactory as to quality, as is known to every citizen.

"The ground water in eastern suggested by drilling wells for the city's supply, cannot be depended upon for either quantity or quality, especially in the future, when the quantity needed will be greater.

"Bird creek, located 10 miles from Tulsa, is eliminated because the drainage area is too small to be practical.

"Caney river, 55 miles from Tulsa. The water is too salty for use and is practically unfit.

Verdigris Water Salty.

"The Verdigris river. Through the greater part of the year this river's flow would be sufficient but because of the turbid waters after rains, and its remaining so for such long periods of time, the filtration system would be very costly. The intake would have to be located 24 to 30 miles from the city, above the junctions where Bird creek and Caney river add their waters to its flow, else the water will be too salty.

"Hominy and Osage rivers. The Drainage are too small.

"Spring creek has a drainage area of only 175 miles.

"Salina creek has a drainage area of but 115 miles.

"Prior creek too small.

"Shell creek, located four miles west of Sand springs, has a drainage area of 28 square miles at the dam site. During the dry years there is scarcely any flow in the stream, and its capacity is insufficient to meet the needs of the city.

"Grand river, nearly 80 miles, is good and 40 to 50 miles of conduit needed.

"Spavinaw river, drainage area of 400 square miles, the year been felt in minimum springs in the Ozarks of Kansas, Arkansas and Missouri, will yield 21,000,000 to 26,000,000 gallons daily, sufficient to meet all the requirements of 250,000 people."

Concrete pipe made with Oklahoma cement, sand and stone, has many advantages over cast iron pipe for the proposed water mains from Spavinaw to Tulsa, Arthur S. Bent of Los Angeles, Cal., whose firm has laid 1,000 miles of concrete conduits in different American cities and who is one of the country's best known concrete engineers, yesterday told the board of city commissioners, who had under consideration Engineer Dressey's report, in which the use of concrete conduits is strongly recommended.

Mr. Bent says that he has never seen a project where conditions were more favorable for the use of concrete than on the Spavinaw survey, where materials are close at hand, and there are five different railroad crossings from which construction units could be operated.

Unlike cast iron, which begins to deteriorate as soon as it is placed in the ground, and is a source of constant expense for maintenance, concrete becomes with age, and grows better the longer it is in use, requiring no outlay for upkeep. The water which the concrete pipe line carries is the most important agent in its hardening. When ideal concrete is made for laboratory purposes it is put under water to bring it to perfection, Mr. Bent said.

The concrete pipe is cast on the ground in heavy sheet iron molds accurately made to insure perfect fit and alignment. The 42-inch pipe is cast in four foot lengths with a shell 4½ inches thick, each section weighing approximately one and a half tons. If to be used on a part of the line where the water is under gravity flow, the plain concrete is used, if the water is under pressure the pipe is reinforced with steel according to the needs. There are no patents on the methods of construction.

After being properly constructed in convenient camps and allowed to season, the concrete pipe is moved to the trench and laid with derricks very much as sewer pipe is laid. The specially designed joints are massed with a temporary band and the joint is poured with rich mortar. It is finished off by a skilled operator working on the inside of the pipe, his business being to see that every joint is perfectly sealed.

The speed of construction depends upon the number of construction units and the equipment and labor employed. There are five points on the line to Spavinaw from which materials could be supplied and work could be pushed as rapidly as the need requires.

First Cost Is Lower.

The building of such a concrete line requires skilled supervision, but not skilled labor. Employment would be given to thousands of hands and nothing would be brought in from out of the state except the reinforcement materials. The money would all be spent at home.

Mr. Bent says that the United States reclamation service has been using reinforced concrete pipe under pressure for many years, and has many lines operating under 100-foot heads and more. At Pendleton, Ore., there is 16 miles of concrete water mains that has been in use six years and it has cost nothing for maintenance. A private pipe line has been in operation in Los Angeles since 1886, and it has cost nothing for upkeep. The water plant at Monterey, Mexico, is supplied through 11 miles of concrete mains, which were laid 17 years ago and are in perfect condition.

MONEY SHE SPENT WAS ALL WASTED

"My Troubles Are Over and I've Gained Ten Pounds Since Taking Tanlac."

I have had a hard fight for over a year with indigestion and stomach trouble, but since taking Tanlac I am glad to say my troubles are over and I have gained ten pounds," said Mrs. W. H. Woods of 819 Lake street, Meridian, Miss.

"My condition had almost ruined me. I had become quite a nervous wreck. I had intense pains all through my chest and a pressure across my stomach which nearly choked me. I couldn't eat a thing that wouldn't sour in my stomach and had sharp pains all through my back and sides that would nearly drive me distracted, and the only way I could get rid of the pains was by hardening myself. All the money I spent for medicine was just thrown away. It was hard on Tanlac.

"My friends urged me to try Tanlac, and it just made me a new person. The pains are entirely gone from my chest and sides and I never have a pain of indigestion. The gas has stopped forming in my stomach, my nerves have regained their health, I sleep like a log at night and feel well all the time."

Tanlac is sold in Tulsa by Quaker Drug company, Herbert Drug company and by leading druggists everywhere in every town and village in America.—Adv.

M'GUIRE WILL SPEAK ON DECORATION DAY

Lucious Fairchild Post, Grand Army of Republic, Will Hold Services at Greenwood Cemetery

The Lucious Fairchild Post, Grand Army of the Republic, will hold its regular decoration services at the Greenwood cemetery on Decoration day, Friday, May 30, all assembling at the corner of Fourth and Main streets at 2 o'clock to all by motor, infantry or on foot to the place of burial.

The exercises will be participated in by the Girl Scouts, Knights of Aztec, the G. A. R. and the Spanish War veterans, and those of the present war. Just who will be commissioned to address the G. A. R. relics, H. S. McGuire will deliver the address of the occasion.

In the evening of the same day at 8 o'clock, the members of the G. A. R. will march in a body, park by place flowers on the graves there as a memorial to the men who died gloriously in the great war. At one service Judge Lyon A. Cunnight will deliver the address.

In accordance with the usual observance of the day, decorations of graves of the city will be placed Friday, as well as all offices of the city government. The employes of Tulsa will observe last Sunday as a memorial, and the observance on Decoration day is the celebration of Easter, who will go to decorate the graves of the dead.

SAYS "LAW" WALKED IN ON HER AT WRONG TIME

Declaring in the court that she "just slipped into the women's clothing" when she was arrested by a Tulsa county deputy sheriff in possession of apparel stolen from a south side residence, Mary Gallant, a young express messenger, pleaded not guilty to the charge of larceny of clothing valued at $113 in all, her arraignment before Justice H. C. Maxey Tuesday afternoon. The defendant was committed to jail in default of $500 bond for preliminary hearing June 6.

The defendant is accused of stealing three dresses, one pair of slippers, an overcoat, a revolver and a pair of eyeglasses from the home of Florida Brown, 817 South Boston avenue, on May 8. She assured the court that the stolen clothing was in possession of a friend of hers, and that when she tried on one of the dresses the "law" walked in the house and arrested her on the charge of stealing the apparel.

TAG DAY TO ENLARGE TULSA HOME FOR GIRLS

A tag day to raise funds for the Frances Willard home will be held Saturday, May 31, the board of directors of the home being in charge of the work with Mrs. G. O. Hollow as chairman.

The Frances Willard home has 23 girls in it at this time and is said others turned away for lack of room. It is the plan of the directing board to raise $6,000 by selling tags to the people of Tulsa that they may enlarge the building and further the work of the organization.

Big Silk Sale Drawing Immense Crowds.

With a crowd waiting at the doors, the Union Department Store, 112-114 South Main street, opened its monster silk sale at 9 a. m. Tuesday morning. They simply thronged the place until closing time. J. Gray Tuesday afternoon. He was committed to jail under bond of $1,000 for preliminary hearing June 3.

Why Not Decorate?

I note from your columns of today that the 113th engineers are coming home. I hope that when they do the city will try to do a little decorating. When the ambulance boys came home flags and bunting were conspicuous by their absence. As a patriotic American I would like to see a few when these boys come home. However, some were displayed last July 4, so I suppose not much can be expected of Tulsa in that line.—American.

Boy Steals Three Gas Stoves From Police, Is Charge

Arrested by the police charged with stealing three gas stoves from the city hall some time Monday, Toy LeMurray, a youth of 15 years was placed in the county jail Tuesday afternoon for trial by the juvenile court. Toy, whose mother and father are separated, has lived in West Tulsa for the past year, eking out a precarious existence, officers say. His appeals to the local humane society were heeded until such a time as the agent learned that the boy refused to work, when the support of the society was withdrawn.

Monday the police missed three gas stoves used for heating purposes about the police station during the winter and an investigation showed that the property had been purloined by the boy without knowledge of the officers. Toy will be taken before Judge W. B. Williams of juvenile court this week for arraignment.

Tightens Her Skin—Loses Her Wrinkles

"I want to tell you how easily I got rid of my wrinkles," writes Leola March. "While in London a friend, much envied because of her youthful looks, gave me a formula for a home-made preparation which has the effect of instantly tightening the skin, thus smoothing out wrinkles and furrows.

"The principal ingredient is powdered saxolite, which can be had at drug stores here. An ounce of saxolite is dissolved in a half pint witch hazel. After bathing my face in this lotion once the transformation was so marvelous I looked years younger. Even the crow's feet were affected and the sagging creases about my neck. It seems difficult to believe anything could produce such results. Several to whom I recommended the recipe have been similarly helped. One an elderly lady whose cheeks had become quite baggy."—Social Mirror.—Adv.
