Corporation Commission's Own Statement.

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 15.—[illegible] and manufacturers [illegible] all over the state [illegible] at a two day hearing [illegible] Corporation Commission [illegible] of making rulings [illegible] and inspecting of oil [illegible]. A set of tentative [illegible] drawn up for discussion.

The first point over which discussion arose was section A rule [illegible] defining kerosine [illegible] "free from acid and [illegible]. Experts present said it [illegible] to get Oklahoma oil [illegible] from sulphur and [illegible] that "a trace" be substituted. One-tenth of one per cent [illegible] agreed upon as a practical [illegible].

Gravity or Distillate Test.

Most of the discussion of the first [illegible] over Rule Four, the merits [illegible] test and the specific [illegible]. F. M. Leahman, of [illegible] City, representing the Western Petroleum Refineries Company, wanted a method so that [illegible] below the present standards [illegible] need, saying that there is [illegible] demand for such oils [illegible] for tractors and similar [illegible].

Part of the morning and most of the afternoon session was taken up over the discussion of the manner of testing. A number of experts testified that the distillate test was all right for use in a laboratory, but that it was too complicated for field work [illegible] a trained expert to make it correctly.

Experts Testify.

Dr. A. F. Herrgard, chief chemist of the Empire Refining Companies, gave a demonstration of the distillate test.

The essential test is too complicated for an ordinary inspector, although I would favor it if the tests were done in some central laboratory. I think the gravity test is the most practical, but favor 55 instead of 45 degrees. At 55 I think the price of gasoline would be five or six cents lower."

The experts present finally came to an agreement of a test with the [illegible] ranging from 110 to 150 with an end point of 450 to 470 degrees and from 55 to 60 by the hydrometer. It was suggested that in regard to Rule Six, a matter of distillate, that a tolerance of one degree be permitted.

Chairman Art L. Walker suggested as an amendment to Rule 7 that [illegible] be set up at the place of sale, [illegible] of the Corporation Commission have been complied with. Only minor changes were suggested for changes in other rules which deal mostly with the [illegible] of the Commission. The afternoon session was principally in demonstrations of the [illegible].

The Corporation Commission will [illegible] various suggestions under advisement and within a few days [illegible] issue a set of rules for [illegible].

Those present and the companies represented at the hearing were: H. Hanson, Tower Gasolene Company; [illegible] Horn, representing the [illegible] and affiliated companies; [illegible] W. Whittenghill, N. J. Ryan, Sam[illegible] Oil Corporation, G. B. Dewitt, [illegible] Refining Co., Frederick [illegible] H. Westfall, S. C. Collins, B. [illegible] and George B. Shallen, [illegible] representing the Marland [illegible]; Roy Moore, Pierce Oil Corporation; E. H. Chandler, Sinclair Refining Company; A. P. Bjerre[illegible], chief chemist Empire; C. J. [illegible], engineer; A. [illegible] Gasolene Company; [illegible] H. Burke, Oklahoma Natural Gas Company; Dr. C. K. Francis, chief chemist, Cosden & Company; T. L. Gage, Kindwood Oil Company; [illegible] Read, Union Petroleum Company; A. C. Ebie, Dallas H. W. Williams, Oklahoma City; H. Cameron, Magnolia Petroleum Company, Oklahoma City; R. W. [illegible], Triumph Gasolene Company; D. L. Gilland, Crown Petroleum Company, Oklahoma City; [illegible] W. Leahman, Western Petroleum Refineries Association, Kansas City; [illegible] E. M. Gallagher, Constantine Company.

Party of New Yorkers Here.

William B. Boyd of William B. [illegible] & Co., New York brokers is in the city as the guest of Donald Sling, president of the export oil corporation. Mr. Boyd is a son-in-law of the late [illegible] and feels very much at home among the oil fraternity. He is the owner of a newspaper in New Brunswick, N. J., and has been in newspapers [illegible] in newspapers.

Mr. Boyd is setting off as also here from New York, with Mr. Boyd and [illegible]. Their way is in Texas, [illegible] over for a day with E. Sinclair's brother.

Oil Organization May Break Records

In the first five months of [illegible] oil companies have [illegible] with an aggregate [illegible] of $472,966,000, [illegible] 257 companies reported [illegible] investment of [illegible] in the corresponding [illegible] last year.

He states that there are a number of wells on top of the sand and with continued favorable weather conditions should be brought in within the next two weeks.

Kansas Oil Merger Consolidates.

TOPEKA, Kan.—What is probably the biggest merger in Kansas in many years has been completed in the consolidation of the various L. L. Marcell oil properties under the name of the White Eagle Oil & Refining Co. Among the Marcell properties are the White Eagle Oil & Gas Co., Winters Petroleum Co., American Oil & Gas Co., B. & B. Petroleum Co. and Texhoma Petroleum Co.

Excitement in New Mexico Growing.

DALLAS, Tex.—Dorsey Hager, oil geologist, just back from New Mexico, says that the oil excitement in the eastern part of that state is getting hotter and hotter and that he believes 10,000,000 acres are under lease in the eastern third of the state. He has completed mapping several structures and says he considers the chance of successful development good.

At Longview, Texas.

Sabine Pet. Co. is drilling at 1740 feet on their first test and are building a rig for another three miles north. This company is owned largely by local people in Tulsa, but recently Percy T. REPATRIATING YANKS SERVING OTHER FLAGS

Twenty Thousand in British Service Apply for Return to Former Allegiance.

WINCHESTER, Eng., May 19 (By Mail).—American and British authorities delegated to examine the thousands of soldiers in the British army who have claims to repatriation to the United States are having a difficult job. Many of them are adventurous individuals who have scoured the globe and now want to go to America at the expense of the British government.

Up to date the British government has received more than 20,000 applications for repatriation for those who say they have a right to be sent to the United States. About 2,000 have been certified, hundreds have been rejected and the applications keep coming.

The British government agreed when the United States entered the war to send home after the war any American citizens who joined the British army and also any citizen of allied nationality who had previously established a residence in the United States. The authorities are not having much trouble with the first category but the latter one is hanging on no end of complications.

A board of military and civil officers which examined men collected at the camp here formerly used as a rest camp for American troops had so many difficulties that the aid of Lieutenant A. Kane and later a representative of the United States consul general's office in London was requested.

Lieutenant Kane was selected because of his knowledge of many cities in the United States and his general acquaintance with conditions north, south, east and west. A favorite city selected by the would-be repatriates as their "home town" is Detroit. The street number fallies, their statement that they are one of the thousands employed in the motor car industry cannot be disputed and they know some of the principal streets. But one question finishes them.

"What is the principal park in Detroit?"

"They do not know Belle Isle and they do not get to the United States."

Lieutenant Kane has a stock of such questions concerning most of the cities of the country and if they can be correctly answered it is reasonable to suppose that the soldier has a just claim and he is passed.

While there are many such cases they are in the minority. Most of those who apply are men who wanted to get into the fight as quickly as they could and calculated they had a better opportunity with the British than to wait until the first American expeditionary force came overseas. These men are being given every available facility to go home.

Your Neighbor's Grindstone.

The many, many wants of man,
No power on earth can ever supply
'Tis part of God's creative plan,
That ever since the world began,
Some want to sell and some to buy.

So sharp your wits by trading 'round,
By selling things and buying more,
The swap you want is easy found—
Just take the ax that you want ground,
And grind it at your neighbor's door.

You'll find your neighbor waiting too,
A smile of welcome on his face,
And all that you will have to do,
Say "hello, Bill, I'll match with you,"
To start most any kind of race.

Just say you'd like to buy a stone,
That you have heard he'd like to sell,
You'd like one for your very own,
And while the globe is being shown,
Praise it a bit, though not overwell.

He'll watch you some, but that you know,
So you'll observe him just the same,
Then turn the grindstone very slow,
And watch its work—above, below—
For there's a trick in every game.

Smile now and then, for that helps trade,
And when your ax is sharpened well,
Remark, "The stone's not quite the grade,
Now my friend Lee has one that's made
Much better, that he'd like to sell."

Then smile again—nor is that all—
But thank him, too, not once, but twice,
And, that he'll know you are not small,
Say you have much enjoyed your call—
And give "Good day," but not the price.

Your neighbor's lived this fact to learn,
Deals based on talk are always lax;
You've served your end, (and him a turn),
Next time he'll see his grindstone earn
Its money ere it grinds your axe.

ADVANCE LAST WEEK IN COTTON ARTICLES

After Three Weeks Strike Fine Goods Mills are Again Operating; Market Shows Upward Trend.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Prices for finished cotton goods have steadily advanced during the past week and some cloths are now higher than the government wartime fixed price levels. Wide sheetings have advanced to a basis of 50 cents for 10-4 goods, a cents above the government price. Some dress ginghams are selling at the government price. Staple ginghams have been advanced 3½c to 21c. Standard 4-4 Utica percales have been advanced to 21c for fabrics and 23c for darks. Denims are up [illegible] a yard. Cotton flannels have advanced in some instances 2 cents a yard and are a cents a yard higher than the lowest prices of the year. Print cloths have recovered the losses sustained in the first part of the month following secondhand repeating sales. The demand for merchandise is not as keen as it has been owing to the knowledge on the part of buyers that cloths are scarce for immediate shipment and higher prices will not improve the immediate supply.

Fine goods mills are getting into running order again after the closing of a three weeks' strike. Cotton yarns have been advancing steadily and spinners are well supplied with business. Knitters of cotton goods have been selling more easily at higher prices. Quotations on cloths are as follows: Print cloths 28-inch 64x64's, 19 3-4c; 38½-inch 64x64's, 16 1-2c; brown sheetings, southern standards, 22 to 23c; denims $2.20, southern indigo, 30c; tickings 8 ounces, 53c; prints, 16c; staple ginghams, 21c; dress ginghams, 21c@23
