WOMAN'S WORLD AND WORK.....

ERMA CRAWFORD PERKINS

The Return of the Pilgrims.

Down Plymouth town they started
A loyal Puritan band
In faith and hope stout hearted
They sought a promised land
Then from long rude the tempest
And for across the foam
They hurried their New England
And founded their new home.

The fire of Independence burning
Advance high every mile
Today these same enduring
Dare the Old England sons
They fear have rent the tempest
Of all the winds that blow
They found the mainly old city
Their grandsires used to know.

The dead in Holy Ground
Sleep that this time should be
Dear Lord, the whole creation
We render thanks to Thee
That these our sires proved worthy
These Pilgrims of the sea
And he, sought to emulate
And in our days share
Caroline M. Lamb

The removal of the executive offices of the Roxana oil company to St. Louis has occasioned the removal of many families from Tulsa, which is regretted. Many of these have added their quota in Tulsa socially and will be missed. It is gratifying though to note that in each instance of their disposing of homes, not a house is now vacant which speaks for Tulsa in a most emphatic way as being a place sought by many. Some of these who have bought these Roxana homes are newcomers, others have been residents of the city for some time. Twelve of these families leaving were within a radius of three blocks of Twelfth and Carson streets. Among the families leaving are Mr. and Mrs. W. van der Gracht, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen van Dorsser, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Fyle, Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Chenoweth, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. ## JUDGE SOFTENS ORDER, CAN GET TO GROCERIES

Continuing the hearing on the permanent injunction asked against the first floor of the building located at 2611 Federal street, owned by Bob Powell, but granting a modification of the temporary injunction granted May 3, allowing Powell to remove a stock of groceries in the building, Judge Redmond S. Cole, in district court, held that further hearing could not be allowed until after the close of the present jury term.

Several witnesses, persons living in the neighborhood of the store, were called by Elton E. Hunt, assistant county attorney, to show that the place constituted a public nuisance. The testimony continued for an hour when the court continued the hearing of the case to some future date. A modification of the order made May 3, by Judge Owen Owen allows Powell to remove goods from the store, which has been padlocked by the sheriff since the granting of the temporary injunction.

DON'T CONTRIBUTE TO PEDDLER IN UNIFORM

American Red Cross and Police Help to Put a Stop to Grafting.

The American Red Cross is co-operating with government officials in discouraging discharged soldiers and sailors who are taking advantage of the uniform by soliciting and selling souvenirs, etc., on the public streets. Since the signing of the armistice and the discharge of thousands of ex-service men, soldiers have sprung up throughout the country, presumably on the moral getting public, who through honor and respect to the uniform have contributed to the coffers of the disbanded men.

The use of the uniform as a means of playing on the sympathy of the public has been condemned by the government. What the soldiers themselves think of men who use the uniform for swindling schemes and begging games is well clearly in an issue of "The Comet Book," the Weekly newspaper published by and for the soldier patients at the Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C., the largest reconstruction hospital of the country.

Soldiers Condemn It.

In the place of honor on the front page is a news article dealing with abuses of the army uniform and the leading editorial deals in a rough and ready way with the question.

"The men," it says, "who went to face the holocaust of Prussian hate offered their all in order that Americans might keep the right to earn an honest living. The soldiers went through all the living hells of war for an ideal. They have given to death with a smile. They are not beggars and never will be.

"Men have formed crews for systematic swindling, and, on at the lucrative task of fooling out a box for the hard earned silver of honest folks who give because they honor the men who went over the top. They have succeeded because the public does not understand.

Citizens Duty.

"You, the public, must help us. Don't give to these beggars. They will go out of business when you quit giving."

"Under The Dome," the publication of the U. S. General Hospital at West Baden, Ind., features an article headed, "Boys, don't use your army uniforms when you get home as a means to play on the sympathy of the people. Don't be a petty grafter."

"The Red Cross, war department and police plan to cooperate in apprehending and bringing to justice all fakirs in army uniforms and putting a stop to all unauthorized selling on the streets, and begging. It is the patriotic duty of every citizen to assist in stopping such discreditable practice."

HAVE NARROW ESCAPES IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

CHANDLER, Okla., June 16.—Several auto accidents took place in this county this week and although no one was killed, several persons were seriously injured.

A Ford driven by parties from Kendrick rambled off the high fill north of town on the Ozark trail near the Ballard farm, but only damaged itself a little. Among the passengers who escaped was Commissioner Hicks who was on a visit to the county seat on business.

The other accident was more serious and was caused by a soft bank on the road near the Hagerman ranch. Miss Mildred Carpenter was badly hurt when the car, driven by A. B. Rice of this city turned over down the bank. She received a bad cut on her face and was brought to town where the doctors found several stitches necessary. Mrs. Rice received a fractured rib and the other three occupants of the car escaped with bruises.
