SOCIETY

WOMAN'S WORLD and WORK . . . .

LILIAN CRAWFORD PERKINS

When all thy mercies, O my God,
My rising soul surveys
Transported with the view, I'm lost
In wonder, love and praise.
—Exchange.

With the canteen at the station closed, Tulsa's war workers among the women are finding themselves lonely. Lonely is the real and only way to express it. Of course, we are talking about the women who are at home. The society elect and those who do not care to be numbered in the list who are lost amid the summer resorts east, north and west, are not lonely for they are enjoying the diversion of travel and new faces. The thought comes though, what are the women going to do now with this extra time they gave to war work? Will some of them, a major portion or just a few, turn their attention to bridge or something equally as entertaining but a something in which there is no reward? Is it true that women love to do those things which bring a laurel to their brow or would they rather fritter away their time? We are full of queries.

The government is rewarding its faithful women war workers with bronze emblems who worked in the Liberty loan drives. They are made from captured German cannon and are about the size of a half dollar and contain the following inscription: "Awarded by the U. S. treasury department for patriotic service in behalf of the liberty loan." Tulsa's women will be recognized in this awarding of trophies and it will be a satisfaction for them to know their government has thought of them. Then why not lend such splendid effort continually through some altruistic channel which will always find its reward, and count each day well spent instead of lost?

Don't think for a minute that we are decrying those lighter diversions of life which allows the assembling of human beings on a social basis. It has long been decreed that this should be and we do not agree with Milton when he says:

"Solitude sometimes is best company,
And short retirement urges sweet return."

Rather we would agree with him who said:

"Social friends,
Attun'd to happy unison of soul."

But who is that (ells so beautifully of that plane where the happy medium in life's pathway saves the sould with its tranquility.

At the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Ada Starkweather, secretary of the Y. W. C. A., has much to say of interest concerning the summer camp now under construction on the interurban line between here and Sapulpa. This spot, so the secretary states, is about eight miles out and just adjacent to Parthena park. It is in an oak wood and surrounded by rocky hillside which offers a note of the picturesque. The clubhouse that will care for 40 girls has reached the second story now and is made of rock. There will be athletic grounds for tennis, volley and basketball, also a swimming pool. Wells and cisterns are being dug to provide sufficient water. The board of managers of the local organization are elated over the location, as it will be accessible for the business girl who has no machine to take her out. She can board the electric car after a day of toil in some office and reach the camp in just a short time.

The local home is full at this time and the girls are all so pleased with the motherly care being given them by Mrs. Jennie P. Yates, the house secretary. The residence section is quite the coolest part of the building, with modern equipment for driving out the impure air and letting great sweeps of fresh air in at all times. The windows are so arranged so as to allow cross ventilation.

At 10 o'clock Tuseday morning there was a matron's class in the swimming pool and at 11 the juniors were in and numbered about 70. Mrs. Webber, the instructor, is much enthused over the interest being shown in this great sport. The cafe continues to draw the people, and they seem to like the home cooking that is prepared for them.

Gallagher-O'Neil.

A wedding was solemnized Monday morning in the Holy Family church by the Rev. John G. Heiring when he united in marriage Miss Beatrice O'Neil and Mr. Warren Gallagher, both of Tulsa. The bride was attired in an attractive suit of cream delegilette with hat to match and wore a corsage cluster of rose buds in pink and white. Miss Esther Markham, the bride's attendant, wore white georgette and carried a shower bouquet of sweetpeas. The best man was Mr. Willard Gallagher, brother of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher will visit Oklahoma City and points in Texas before returning here to make their future home.

Board Meeting.

The Tulsa Town club will hold its regular monthly board meeting on Friday evening at 7:30 in the public library. The report of the St. Louis convention will not be given until the monthly dinner which will be in the Tea Cup Inn on the first Monday evening in August. The club members are enjoying their daily lunches at the Tea Cup Inn. A special table has been set aside for them and from three to a half dozen members gather there each day at the lunch hour.

Birthday Celebration.

Misses Beatrice Hendrick and Doris Higgins acted as hostesses at the home of the former, at 1122 South Quaker, the evening of July 21, celebrating an unusually bright birthday for both young ladies.

Many presents were received after which dainty refreshments were served. The gay party then, with Mrs. J. D. Wiggins acting as chaperon, attended an "uptown show," which was enjoyed by all. Many happy birthdays were wished after which the happy guests returned to their various homes.

Duffy-Jones.

Miss Stella Jones, daughter of Mrs. M. Jones of 1114 South Detroit avenue, and Mr. J. D. Duffy were quietly married in the First Baptist church on Sunday at 5 o'clock by the pastor, Dr. W. O. Anderson. Only members of the families and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sapp were present. Mr. and Mrs. Duffy left for a short wedding trip after which they will return to this city to make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Young are leaving today for California. They will be away six weeks spending some of the time in Los Angeles, Long Beach and San Francisco. In Long Beach they will visit Mrs. Young's brother, Mr. Hugh Kirkpatrick, who has not recently been discharged from the service.

Mrs. Alice Richards and little daughter Adele of this city are spending two weeks in Oklahoma City with Mrs. Richards' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Giddings. Mr. Richards is in New York attending the Kappa Sigma convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin C. Conner and children, James and Edward are leaving today for Chicago and Epworth Heights just across the lake from Chicago. They will be away all summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hoagland will leave the week for Chicago and northern resorts to be away until cool weather. Mr. Hoagland has been recently returned from overseas service.

Little Christine Ridgeway and her sister Pauline of Denver, Colo., will arrive tomorrow to visit in the home of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ridgeway.

Mrs. Harry L. Cannady left the first of the week for Frederick, Okla., where she will be with Mr. Cannady, who is spending some time there on business.

Mrs. J. M. Clover and son Harold will leave on August 10 for Manitou, Colo., to remain until September. Mr. Clover and young son Jack will join them late in August.

Mrs. T. O. Cremin and two sons left yesterday for Palmer Lake, Colo., where they will be joined later by Mr. Cremin who will motor to Colorado.

Mrs. Charles T. Wilson has returned from Kansas City where she visited Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harvey.

Mr. and Mrs. George McCurdy and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Welch left Monday for a motor trip to Colorado.

Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Larkins will leave today for a trip to California.

PLOT TO KILL PRINCE MAX RESULTS IN HIS FLEEING

BERLIN, July 22.—Discovery of a plot to assassinate him led Prince Max of Baden, former chancellor of Germany, to flee hurriedly into Switzerland, accompanied by his family, said a Karlsruhe dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger today. The family crossed Lake Constance in a swift motor boat, taking with them only such money and valuables as they could carry. The identity of the plotters was not given but they are believed to be followers of the Hohenzollerns who blamed Max for the ex-kaiser's flight into Holland.

CITY WILL BUILD NEW WATER PUMP STATION

Kendall District Will Be Supplied With Sufficient High Pressure Water for District

A "booster" pump station is to be constructed at the northwest corner of Sixth and Lewis streets, plans for purchase of necessary machinery having been authorized by mayor and commissioners at the conclusion of the regular meeting Monday afternoon.

This booster pump will supply the Kendall district with sufficient high pressure water for the years to come, and will be enclosed in a new pump station which will be built within the next few months.

Cost of the new plant will be $2,000 with approximately $150 per month saving in expenses which will result in a temporary building and $75 per month saving after the first year is paid.

Commissioners Lorain, Newblock and Bohn were appointed a committee by Mayor Hubbard to investigate the new machinery and report at Friday's meeting.

Bills against the city were presented and filed at commissioners meeting yesterday afternoon as follows: From Ed Cardwell, asking for the return of $50 bond paid for one John Eagle, for carrying concealed weapons on July 1. Was filed the plaintiff stating he had dropped out that suit with the desk sergeant at the police station. The prisoner was released and did not show up for trial, and when on July 14 the plaintiff had Eagle apprehended and surrendered to the police, the bond money was not refunded, but had been paid into the city treasury, probably by an error. The matter was referred to Commissioner of Police and Fire F. M. Jones for investigation.

A bill for $75 against the city was presented by the Forster-Davis Motor Corporation, balance due on a bill for storing four cars brought in by the police in liquor raids, and held for later disposal. The county paid $87.07 of the entire bill and sold the automobiles, failing to pay the remainder of the storage account. Commissioner Bohn was appointed to investigate and report.

NO SUNDAY POOL GAMES IN TULSA, SAYS MAYOR

Pool and billiard halls will not operate on Sunday during the present administration at least, was the decision of the committee composed of Mayor C. H. Hubbard and Commissioners Newblock, McNulty and Bohn, presented and approved at commissioners meeting yesterday.

"While some other cities and towns of the state operate pool halls and billiard rooms on the sabbath, we find no excuse for violating the state law in Tulsa," read the decision.

Green Corn Festival.

"A green corn festival," celebrating the attainment of the 500 membership mark will be held by Silver Plume lodge No. 182, of the Knights of Pythias at Castle hall on Second street, Thursday. "Wagon loads of green corn cooked to a turn and served with the trimmings and just tubs of ice cream, lots of fun and music will be on hand to further the fraternity and good fellowship of the order," according to the invitations, adding the pertinent request to "bring no cats and leave your pocketbook at home." A great time is being anticipated by both Knights and Ladies.

Andrew and Imogene

By ROE FULKERSON

IMOGENE was pretending to read, but was covertly watching Andrew over the top of her book. He sat staring into vacancy with his cigaret unlighted between his fingers.

"Andrew," she said finally, "what is the matter?"

"Matter?" he inquired, puzzled. "Not a thing in the world. I don't owe a nickel nor does anyone owe me, except a few guys from whom I never expect to get the money."

"Now, I have been watching you, and you can't fool me," insisted Imogene. "There is something wrong with you."

"Honey bunch," he smiled at her, "I am as happy as a centipede which has just been cured of a corn on every toe, as tickled as an elephant which has just been cured of a cold in his nose or as pleased as a giraffe that has just been relieved of a quinsy sore throat!"

"Now, Andrew!" she protested. "You think you can talk about the zoo till I forget there is something wrong with you, but I have been married to you so long that I know you better than you know yourself. What is troubling you?"

"Nothing but you, love," he laughed.

"Well, what's it?" she inquired, analogy. "What have I done to offend you? I am sure whatever it is, Andrew, you might at least give me a chance to explain. You know I am ever ready to apologize."

"Well," replied Andrew, "the charge is that you have forsaken your books, have disturbed my peace and worked yourself up to the point of apologizing, all for nothing, as there is nothing the matter with me save that a microbe of some sort has crept into your head and made you think there is something the matter with me when I am as happy as a digger in a watermelon patch and haven't an ache or a pain in my whole anatomy from zenith to nadar."

"There," said Imogene, getting up and coming over to him, "you have told me without intending to! You're sick, I know." She put her hand against his cheek to feel if he was feverish.

"Imogene," he said emphatically, "for heaven's sake let me alone!"

"There, now you are cross! I know you are sick. You are never disinclined unless you are sick. Stick out your tongue!"

"If I do I'll be——"

"Andrew," she interrupted, "don't you swear at me. Stick out your tongue!"

"It don't seem to be coated or anything," she said, looking at it critically. "I'm afraid it's something serious. Have you any pain?"

"Confound it all!" exclaimed Andrew. "I don't even know I'm sick. As far as I can tell, there is nothing the matter with me. I haven't even got sense enough to know where I hurt or to scratch my own itchy places. You will find something the matter and then go make a poultice for it if it will amuse you!"

"That settles it!" exclaimed Imogene. "I am going to telephone the doctor." She started over to the telephone, but Andrew stopped her.

"I'll go," he said. "Central, give me Main 5427." Then, after a moment, he said: "Hello, Doc. Can you come over here right away? Yes, a hurry-up call. Hey? Oh, nobody's sick. Imogene has gone crazy and I want you to come over here and take her to the Lizzie house. She's got mice in her garret! Yep! She thinks I am going into a decline because I sat still for five minutes! Yes——"

"Andrew," she sternly interrupted him, "I can see that you are holding down that lever the receiver hangs on and that you haven't even got connection with Central!"

She threw her book at him and left the room.
