Memories of the all-victorious championship Kendall college football machine of 1916 which swept its way to the topmost pinnacle in this state and which was one of the most powerful elevens in the southwest that season, will be recalled in the announcement that with the return to Kendall this fall of several stars of that famous team, with other promising men, that the local collegians are to make a bid for the state title.

Fourteen letter men are sure to return, that number having reserved rooms at the Kendall dormitories. Back field men whose brilliant offensive play ran up topheavy scores on opposing teams and linemen whose steady defensive work held back Kendall rivals will once more take their place in orange and black moleskins.

Ivan Grove, quarterback, ranked as one of the southwests greatest pilots and who scored more points than any other American player in 1916, is to return. John Young, plunging fullback, all-state selection and peer of the southwest that year, is also to return. Fleet, whose catch of a forward pass gave Kendall victory over A. & M. is the third back of that team who is certain to return.

Last Year's Stars Return.

Ben Springer, star of the 1917 team; Bridges and Hopping of last season's eleven, with the three 1916 men will be out for backfield places.

Virgil Jones, ranked with Montgomery, Glenn Clarke and Clay Woodson as Oklahoma's greatest wing men, is in Tulsa now awaiting the call for practice. Gale, of the 1917 eleven is also to return.

Art Wallace and Earl Coffey of the 1916 eleven and Bernard DeWeese of the 1917 team are returning tackle candidates. John Wilcox, "Dad" Young and McDonald, here in 1917, will be back. Wilcox and Young are guards. McDonald a center.

In addition to these letter men it is probable more will return. Nothing has been heard from players of last season, but it is expected that several will be back.

Promising new material, including two of Oklahoma's best interscholastic backs, will enroll at Kendall this fall. The two scholastics are Hall of Claremore, whose great all-round play stamped him as one of the greatest backs in Oklahoma's football last season, and Winkler of Bartlesville, another star offensive player who has been rated as one of the best for two seasons. Rain and Hobbins, highly touted linemen of Collinsville, have signified their intentions of entering Kendall.

Same Coaches Again.

To Coach Smith, who directed the destinies of the Kendall gridders last fall and Sam McIlirney, who with Francis Schmidt tutored Kendall's 1916 team and those since that time, will fall the task of whipping this splendid material into championship contending timber.

A heavy schedule in keeping with the ambitious plan of the Kendall authorities calling for 10 games with leading southwestern eleven has been completed. Only one that with Texas Trinity university November 8, is tentative.

Oklahoma university and the Aggies, leading state schools, with East Central normal of Ada forming the most formidable Oklahoma secondary opponent. The feature games to be played at Tulsa are contests with the Kansas Aggies and Arkansas university the first two weeks in November. The season is concluded with the Chilocco Indians playing here Thanksgiving.

"THAT LITTLE GAME" --- --- Beaten at His Own Game

Minors Demand That Majors Live Up to All Agreements

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Demanding that the major baseball leagues live up to the agreement entered into with the minors at the conference here last January, David L. Fultz, president of the International league and spokesman for the minor associations, stated today "we are not going to lose the fruits of the arrangement made last winter simply because the majors now find that they made a bad bargain."

Fultz, in a specially prepared statement, outlined the case of the minor baseball leagues in part as follows:

"Although the minor leagues of professional baseball have since their organization, been the great developers of playing talent, they have never received the financial reward which their important position in the baseball world would justify.

"This condition was unquestionably brought about to a large extent by the draft rule, which permitted the major leagues arbitrarily to take from each minor league club at the end of each season one or more of its players at stated prices for each classification. From each A. A. club, for instance, one player could be drafted at a price of only $2,500, and this in spite of the fact that the player's services, if sold in the open market, would bring not less than $7,500, and possibly as high as $15,000.

"In an endeavor to lessen the burden of this unfair rule, the minor leagues requested a revision upward of the draft prices, placing that for an A. A. player at $7,500. This request, Mr. Herrmann, acting for the major leagues, at once denied. He said, however, that if the minor league clubs wished to do so they had the consent of the major leagues to withdraw from the national agreement and operate alone. This offer the minor leagues at once accepted.

"The national association on the following day drew up a tentative form of agreement, embodying the arrangements made at the joint meeting and appointed a committee of six, with Mr. A. R. Tearney of Chicago, president of the Western league and the Three I league, as chairman to complete negotiations on behalf of the minors.

"The tentative agreement was submitted to the commission, but was never signed by them. Since the meeting Mr. Tearney has, on behalf of our committee, made every possible effort to arrange a conference with the commission for the purpose of perfecting the formal agreement, but the commission has not been accessible.

"On March 30, 1919, the minor league committee met in Chicago and passed a resolution expressing its willingness to meet the commission at any time and place to conclude the arrangement. This resolution was sent to the members of the commission and the various major league club owners. This action was as ineffective as had been all previous efforts. It then became apparent that the commission had no intention of meeting with us, nor of formally embodying in writing the oral arrangement made at the meeting in New York.

Nationals Repudiate.

"Mr. Tearney has received a letter from President Heydler, stating that at a meeting of the National league club owners it was unanimously resolved not to enter into any formal agreement with the minor leagues, unless the right of the major leagues to draft players was included."

Des Moines Franchise May Go to Muskogee Next Year

DES MOINES, Aug. 5.—The Des Moines Western league franchise be transferred to Muskogee, Okla., next season.

T. F. Fairweather, owner of the local club, has been investigating conditions in the Oklahoma town recently with the avowed intention of taking the Boosters there at the beginning of the 1920 Western league race.

The phenomenal crowds which have attended games this year at Tulsa and Oklahoma City, two other Oklahoma cities, and the unusual interest being manifested in the southern half of the circuit have prompted the local club owner to turn his eyes toward the oil region.

Des Moines' failure to patronize a winning ball club, which has been one of the first division only twice this season has forced Fairweather to a decision to move his home. Patronage for Sunday games while fairly satisfactory has been far below the standard of a city the size of Des Moines. One week ago Sunday the attendance was barely 2,100 and St. Joseph and Des Moines, the competing teams were playing for first place.

Crowds Here Disappointing.

Two weeks before, under similar circumstances when Oklahoma City was playing St. Joseph at St. Joseph, 6,000 fans turned out to the game. Attendance throughout the circuit has been more than anticipated by the club owners with the exception of Des Moines and Omaha.

While the Sunday crowds here have been fairly satisfactory the weekday attendance has been pitiful. Last Saturday the crowd numbered 800 and that was the largest weekday attendance of the year. Penalty it numbers about 100.

The sale of "Buzz" Murphy and Paul Musser have made it possible for Fairweather to retain the club here during the remainder of the present season, but it is certain that the franchise will be removed in the spring.

Other Clubowners Disappointed.

Other clubowners in the league have tried to induce Fairweather to transfer his team this season either to Lincoln or Muskogee, but he has refused to do so. Next spring it is probable that they will force him to make a change for they say they are tired of playing to empty stands here.

In the meantime Fairweather is investigating the Muskogee proposition carefully. That town looks good to him at the present time.

DAILY DOPE By Larry Dailey

A timely suggestion that tennis players of this city organize and form a Tulsa Tennis club and then bring the state championship tournament to this city this fall, with other good movements to increase the popularity of the game here, has been received by The World from W. G. Kirschke, secretary of the American Association of Private Car Owners. It is apparent that without organization little can be done toward bringing the state title meet here, nor can the interests of the net game be bettered to any great extent. Mr. Kirschke suggests that city tournaments be held, which would be a splendid move. The World will welcome other suggestions or comment on Mr. Kirschke's letter, which follows:

August 2.

Sporting Editor, Tulsa Daily World, Tulsa, Okla.—Dear Sir: Your item on sport sheet of today's World headed, "No Interest Shown Over Racquet Meet, Enthusiasm of Tennis Tulsa Devotees Cools," and in line with statement that The World will be glad to receive opinions on this subject from the tennis players and fans.

Permit me to suggest this, that perhaps the principal reason that this meeting was not attended was due to the fact that the tennis players of Tulsa are unorganized. Having played on the various city park courts in Tulsa for the past few months, I feel sure that there is sufficient interest in the game and good players to warrant forming a Tulsa Tennis club, all resident tennis players eligible, while the courts in the various parks are not in first class condition it would not take much work to put them up to scratch, and if a city tournament for the city championship, both in the singles and doubles, of members of the Tulsa Tennis club were held I believe it would stimulate the game and keep the boys together. The city courts could be used for these tournaments.

Furthermore it is my understanding were the Oklahoma championship tournament brought to Tulsa this fall none of the independent Tulsa players would be entitled to participate unless members or former members of some tennis club, city, collegiate or otherwise, that is affiliated with the United States National Lawn Tennis association. If the Tulsa club is started it would be to their interest to become a member of the association. Membership fees in the Tulsa club could be nominal, since the only upkeep would be those of supplying balls as the city takes care of the courts.

Having followed the game on and off for about six years, I am very much interested in Tulsa securing the state tournament and feel sure all the players would be glad to have an opportunity to view and participate in the tournament, and I believe Tulsa may have some chance of making a showing. In closing, might I suggest that the next time there is to be a meeting of the Tulsa tennis players, they be notified through the good medium of The Tulsa World. Thanking you for your attention.

Yours very truly,
WALTER G. KIRSCHKE.

When Referee McClain declared last Monday night's scrap between Sam Langford and Jack Thompson a draw great admiration was expressed over the great battle put up by Sam Langford. With nearly two decades of ring service, Langford fought a splendid battle. The Tar Baby has been a credit to the boxing game. Never, in his long career, has a word against him, either as a boxer or as a man, been said or written. The admiration of the sporting world goes out to Langford, clean fighter and gentleman.

The difficulty between the major and minor leagues is one of long standing. It is the fault of both, to a great measure, though the unwillingness of the majors to grant the smaller leagues their rights has been a great factor in the quarrel.

Cornell's athletic system is going to undergo a thorough remodeling before September. "Sport for all" is the slogan at Ithaca.

Racing at Cleveland Is Postponed by Hard Rain

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 5.—A heavy rain and electrical storm which came as the horses were scoring for the first heat of the second event, the 2.17 trot, caused postponement of today's Grand Circuit racing at North Randall track.

Today's program will be finished tomorrow, track conditions permitting, and the races moved back a day, which carries the meeting through Saturday.

Double G, the favorite, won the only heat completed today.

Oilers Meet Omaha in First Series in Invasion of North

The Tulsa Oilers begin their invasion of the north today at Omaha, the start of the 29-day round trip, the final trek of the season. With a day's travel behind them the Oilers will probably find it tough going the first day out, but should be able to hold their own this series. The unthinking public does not realize the difficulties in winning on the road: "Home umpires," tiresome railroad trips, impossible hotels and food make it hard to win on foreign fields and the club breaking even on the road is playing satisfactory baseball.

After playing all four northern clubs the Oilers then meet the southern nines on their fields, playing in every city in the league and returning home to finish the season August 24.

It is probable that Red Shackleford will be sent to the slab by Manager Abbott in today's game.

There were no games scheduled in the Western league yesterday, all southern clubs being en route north.

Al Wise, secretary of the club, yesterday superintended the start of work on the right field fence, which is to be built ten feet higher.

Australian Players Forced to Scratch in Singles But Are Entered in Newport Doubles.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 5.—Play was completed today in the second round of the singles and was begun in the first round of the doubles of the invitation lawn tennis tournament at the Newport casino. All the better known stars won their matches.
