KENDALL COLLEGE AND ALVA NORMAL MEET HERE TODAY

Northwestern Presents Fast Eleven Against Presbyterians

Local Collegians Have One of Hardest Tests in Today's Engagement.

HAVE STAR BACKFIELD MEN

Stuart and McCorkle, Two of State's Most Brilliant Offensive Players.

By LARRY BAILEY.

Kendall college faces one of the hardest tests of the season before a home crowd here today when they meet the fast Northwestern normal team at McNally park. Northwestern ranked with Central as leading preliminary school and with scores over other strong teams to its credit, should provide the orange and black with stiff opposition.

Phillips university of Enid won from Northwestern 26 to 6, but it was only in the final two periods that the visitors were able to pile up a commanding lead, thanks to capital reserve talent.

Northwestern has a strong line and a brilliant backfield. In Stuart, last season a member of the Phillips team and one of the state's best halfbacks, and McCorkle, a plunging fullback or half, they have two backs who have gained consistently in every game this year, even against rushing.

Diversified Attack.

Northwestern comes with a diversified attack of straight and open football coached by Johnson, former Carlisle Indian and with a Kendall team several years ago. They are reported well versed in the offensive end of the game and with Stuart and McCorkle as leaders may be depended upon to present an attack which will be hard to stop.

Realizing the strength of the visiting squad, Coaches McBirney and Schmidt of Kendall have run their charges through hard workouts this week. The squad, crippled by the loss of Bellen, left end, and Robbins, center, and with other regulars not in the best of shape, was given an intensive week of hard signal drill, unwilling to run the risk of having additional players disabled the squad has done very little scrimmaging during the week.

Strongest Kendall Line.

As Northwestern is expected to provide the stiffest of opposition, the strongest Kendall lineup possible will be sent against the visitors today which will probably be as follows: Left end, Hopping; left tackle, Walker; left guard, Young; center, DeWeese; right guard, Snyder; right tackle, Jolly; right end, Jones; captain, quarterback, Grove; left halfback, Miller or Hall; right halfback, Rodgers; fullback, J. Young.

The game is to start promptly at 3:30 o'clock. To prevent the crowd from on the field, a wire will be erected around the outside chalk marks.

SOONER FARMERS TO MEET TEXAS AGGIES

Southwestern Conference Football Title May Be Decided at College Station.

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 24.—Defeat of the University of Texas by the University of Oklahoma at Dallas practically eliminated the Texas university from the Southwestern conference 1919 football championship race.

Texas A. & M. is the only team left to defend Texas' honors. It meets Oklahoma A. & M. at College station on October 25 and a victory for the Oklahoma Aggies might leave the championship to be contested for between Arkansas and Oklahoma. A victory by the Texas team would bring a multiple of conditions that could only be straightened out by subsequent games.

Texas fans believe the Texas A. & M. squad is stronger than the Oklahoma Aggies, as that team defeated Texas Christian university 14 to 7 last Saturday. This Texas team, which is considered as very successful in athletics for all the larger Texas schools, gave the Oklahoma Aggies a game which indicates that T. C. U. is reasonably close to that the aggies are rather

IMPORTANT GRIDIRON TILTS IN SOUTHWEST

Missouri Valley and Southwestern Conference Elevens in Hard Battles This Afternoon.

Conference of four games in addition to the Oklahoma-Nebraska scrap, will be watched with interest Saturday by followers of football fans.

First of these is the Missouri-Drake game at Columbia, as the Oklahoma-Missouri clash is now only one week away. The Sooners will have a scout at Columbia to get a line on Tiger tactics, which are proving a success and have carried Missouri through thus far without a defeat.

Kansas, whom Oklahoma plays November 8, plays Iowa State at Ames. The Iowa Aggies are not making up in preliminaries for the gathering in Kansas since the Jayhawkers were held up last week by Washburn in a successful upset. Aggies probably will have a better chance to trim Kansas than Missouri.

Kansas Aggies will have an easy time with the Hays normal team Saturday, but Arkansas, another future Oklahoma opponent, will meet a tartar in Louisiana State. This game will be played at Shreveport.

Only one game is scheduled between two southwestern conference teams, the Texas-Baylor scrap at Austin. The Longhorns are fighting for a comeback this week and Sooners hope they will succeed, as every game Texas wins from now on puts Oklahoma's chances closer to the southwestern conference championship.

The Oklahoma Aggies have a holiday Saturday and are spending the time preparing for a hard battle with the Texas Aggies at College Station November 1.

EYES OF GRID WORLD ON TECH-PITT GAME

One of Season's Biggest Intersectional Games Is Played at Pittsburgh Today.

The biggest offering in the football world tomorrow will be the Georgia Tech-Pittsburgh game at Pittsburgh. While the defeat of the Panthers last Saturday by Syracuse has taken some of the interest away from tomorrow's clash, it still is the leading game of the day.

Pittsburgh supporters, while downcast over the beating Warner's team got at Syracuse, still think the Panthers are capable of beating the Georgia eleven. The Panthers will be favorites in Pittsburgh at least, when they enter the game.

Princeton Plays Colgate.

Princeton fans on Colgate and considerable doubt has been expressed as to whether the Tigers will be able to get by with a victory. Colgate leaders are going to Princeton in force and roof-lifting be sure their eleven will twist the Tigers' tail.

Yale is to play Tufts and while they are not expecting an easy battle the blue warriors do not think they will catch such a tartar as they did last Saturday when Boston upset the dope and beat them.

Harvard Meets Virginia.

Harvard meets Virginia. The crimson coaches have been letting the Harvard athletes take it easy all week and evidently do not fear the southerners. Several Harvard stars will be out of the lineup owing to injuries.

GEORGIA TECH GRIDS ARE READY FOR PITT

Golden Tornado Hopes to Get Revenge for Last Season's Defeat at Forbes Field Today

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24.—The eyes of American football fans are focused tomorrow upon the gridiron battle between Georgia Tech and the University of Pittsburgh, which takes place at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, today. For weeks down below the Mason-Dixon line football things were humming as Georgia Tech prepared for this battle. The Golden Tornado intends and hopes to wipe out the stinging defeat administered by Pitt last year when the eleven clashed.

Georgia Tech, under Coach John W. Heisman, had built up an eleven which sailed serenely through several seasons without suffering defeat. They opened up everything in the south with such ease that the doting Tech men soon got the idea they were unbeatable.

Pitt, meanwhile, under the direction of the incomparable veteran coach "Pop" Warner, had also gone through three seasons without a licking. A match was arranged between the two for the football championship of the United states.

Tech Is Confident.

The celebrated Heisman "jump shift" and a strictly open game were the main stock in trade of the southern boys. Despite the fact that they had lost the services of several of the star players who had entered the bigger game overseas, Tech came here with all confidence of victory.

The result was one of the greatest upsets of football dope in the history of the American sport. Pitt smashed the vaunted "jump shift" to smithereens and scored an overwhelming victory. Tech resorted to the overhead game, which had been the bugbear of opposing teams for a while, but against Pitt the aerial attack was for naught, and actually gains were made, but in the end the Golden Tornado was beaten down to a weak, behaved freeze by the heavy clashes of the Pittsburgh backs.

With the possible exception of the Yale-Harvard game, the contest between Georgia Tech and Pitt is the most important of this football season. On the gather last season, money was no object in the transport to sport. Dresser trains came to Atlanta from all points of the southern country, with hundreds of the Tech rooters, who came in the hopes of seeing a team which had against Pitt the aerial attack was for naught, and actually gains were made, but in the end the Golden Tornado was beaten down to a weak, behaved freeze by the heavy clashes of the Pittsburgh backs.

May Develop Line.

Strengthened on the strength of their showing in last year's game, Georgia Tech started this season with all the fanfare. The team contained several veterans, and in the minds of southern football fans Tech was the team to beat. Tech was a team of great promise, and it was felt that Tech would be able to develop a team to be reckoned with in the south.

In Jack Herrman, Georgia Tech had a star. Jimmy Hogan, one of the greatest halfbacks ever seen in the south, was also in the game. Tech was a team of great promise, and it was felt that Tech would be able to develop a team to be reckoned with in the south.

Herrman, Hogan and the other Tech men were all stars in their own right
