INTERNATIONAL LABOR BODY TO MEET TODAY

First Organization Created Under Versailles Peace Pact Will Convene in Washington

WOMEN'S CONGRESS STARTS

Speeches in Four Languages Constitute Opening Session of International Congress of Workers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The first of the international bodies created by the treaty of Versailles to meet in America, the international labor conference, will convene here at noon tomorrow. Sessions of the conference are expected to continue for a month and to lay the foundation of a world-wide movement for improvement and standardization of workers.

Although the legal status of the gathering still is held in doubt in some quarters, members of the organizing committee and department of labor officials were agreed today that the delegates who have arrived, representing more than 30 countries, should proceed to organize some sort of a conference and discuss the agenda prescribed in the peace treaty. Secretary of Labor Wilson, who holds that only those states which have ratified the treaty can participate in the official conference, which is part of the machinery of the league of nations, a plan to sever, has been proposed which is expected to reconcile technical locality with the practical necessity of holding the conference at this time without postponement.

Speeches in four languages and notes in as many more constituted the opening session today and the first international congress of working women. Some 50 of the delegates came from foreign countries in nations and the United States became represented, but with the exception of young women interpreters all of the addresses made during the day were unintelligible. All of the talks partook of the nature of a formal exchange of greetings.

Mrs. Raymond Robins, as president of the National Women's Trade Union League, called the gathering together and hailed it as not only the first assemblage of its kind, but also as the forerunner of many similar ones to come.

Vatican Choirs to be Heard Here

The Vatican Choirs under the direction of Maestro Raffaele Casimiri will be heard in a concert of classic liturgical music for the local season at the convention hall, Monday, November 10.

Following the wonderful impression created by the famous singers of the patriarchal basilicas in Rome upon the occasion of their initial appearance for the American tour at Carnegie hall, New York, the appearance this early gives many the rare opportunity to hear the finest polyphonic choir that has ever sung in the city.

The Vatican Choirs have just completed a short visit to the principal cities of the eastern part of America where they were received with the same enthusiasm and esteem which was extended to them when they captured music-loving New York by their beautiful concert on the opening night of the American tour.

Immediately following the local concert they shall continue on a long tour which will carry them to every important center of the country before they return to Rome to resume the different choirs of the famous basilicas from which they were selected by Maestro Casimiri for this history making visit. It is hardly within the range of the possible that they shall ever visit America again in our time. This fact lends additional importance and interest to the current tour, which marks the first time in 1,600 years that a pontifical choir has ever been heard outside of Rome.

Union Meet of Civic Clubs to Celebrate Armistice Day

A big union meeting of all of the members of all of the civic clubs of Tulsa is planned for Thursday, November 11—Armistice day. At least that is the plan of W. C. Stiger and several other prominent civic club members, who suggested the plan at the meeting of the Ad Club last week. The idea met with instant approval.

This is one of the most important days in America's history, said Stiger last night, and it should be properly observed. If one day is worth a holiday it should be this one. Everybody knows of the part taken by the civic clubs in all war activities and the Armistice day celebration would be a fitting way to observe the first anniversary of the end of the war.

Stiger suggested that an armistice day talk on the regular meeting date of the Ad club and all of the other civic clubs meet with that organization. It is planned to have the grand room of Tulsa profusely decorated with American flags and other patriotic mottos. Prominent speakers will be invited. And as Stiger says, "What do we care if it takes three or more hours to celebrate the occasion—it's worth it if anything ever was."

for their services in the Kruger trial. The jury, however, that counsel for the prosecution might be placed on the stand to answer other questions if requested by the state.

Day Spent Reading.

The entire day was taken up with the reading of pamphlets and papers published by or issued by the I. W. W. organization. These exhibits were among the effects seized when Kruger was arrested, or in raids made by federal officers on the Tulsa and Drumright headquarters of the I. W. W. organization. Further readings will continue today.

The question as to whether the case now before the court will be considered a mistrial if the hearing should be extended over Sunday, November 1, the last day of the June term of court, is held open by Judge Cole. He said yesterday that he could not imagine how any higher court could hereafter, on the proceedings at the district court on the ground that the case began in one term of a court, should be necessarily be carried over into another term. The next term of the court, as fixed by state law, begins at mid-night Sunday or on the first Monday in November. Local attorneys have expressed various opinions as to the effect the matter will have on the case should the trial continue into next week. Judge Cole said that he believed the proceedings would have no more effect on the trial than an intermission of a week.

Notorious I. W. W. Here.

Among other witnesses who may be called by the defense to testify in behalf of the defendant, is Wencil Elascik, one of the leaders of the I. W. W. movement in the middle west. Elascik has been under arrest in Minneapolis and in Muskogee as an I. W. W. and is one of the 26 defendants indicted by the federal grand jury in Wichita last March for violation of the espionage act. The trial, originally set for hearing before the federal court in Wichita last July, was continued, and later a change of venue was taken from Wichita to Kansas City, Kan. The trial of this case is now set for the first week in December at the latter city.

LITTLE INTEREST IN COAL MEETING

exception of a very small number they do not care whether a strike is called or not. They figure that with a dollar a day strike benefit from the national organization they can strike along, and if the strike is called off they can do fairly well at the present wage scale in this district, at from $8 to $10 a day by working from three to not more than five days a week. If they win an increase of 60 per cent and a six hour day they can still keep the wolf from the door by putting in two or three days a week. The operators say that the demands of the miners means an increase of 82 per cent in the cost of production, a complete shutdown or bankruptcy, or double the present price to the consumers. The output in the McAlester district, which is 3 per cent of the total production in the nation and 73 per cent in the state, is below what it was in 1918.

Cars Hard to Get.

This is partially explained by the difficulty in getting cars to transport the coal. Where there is a car shortage production ceases and it is sometimes stopped when cars are waiting to be filled. An instance of this occurred only a week ago at one of the largest mines. The bosses were striking so all the miners over protest of bosses dropped pick and shovel and went fishing.

The miners themselves will remain away from tomorrow's convention under orders, it is said, from union officials.

John Wilkinson, president of District 21, Eugene Moss, secretary, and William Dalrymple, member of the board, will speak for them. Dorset Carter, president of the Oklahoma Coal Operators' association, and J. H. Wilson, member of the coal commission, will represent the operators. So far as it is known now Governor Robertson will be the only speaker for the interested public. Mayor T. D. Wilson will call the convention to order and make the address of welcome. Some of the officers of the operators association, particularly President Carter, are optimistic and believe much good will result to all concerned. They are confident that the miners will not strike now. This feeling is based on assurances to Governor Robertson from the federal government that simple production assistance and cooperation will be forthcoming.

Once this element of discussion, which is responsible for the position of our post war international relations, is removed, I am convinced that we will enter with the United States on a period of cordial and fruitful collaboration.
