THREE STORMY YEARS OF LIBERTY

Georgia Was Too Rich to Escape Bolshevist Greed

Royalty and Nobility Loved to Sojourn Among Caucasian Foothills

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 21.—The Georgian republic, which ceased to exist as an independent, home-controlled government at the end of February, as a result of attacks directed from Moscow, made a considerable stir during the three years of its freedom.

Of all the states that have broken away from great Russia, such as Poland, Armenia, and the Ukraine, none has won more real sympathy from visitors. In its capital of Tiflis, tightly nested in the Caucasian foothills, beside the little river Kura, there was always a hearty welcome to strangers. Like all the provincial capitals of old Russia, the life was delightfully democratic and free from the sober restraints of more highly organized and commercialized communities.

Tiflis had its opera, its music halls, its central club house, its picturesque drinkers, its old-fashioned national costumes and dancers, both men and women. It had its society of princes and princesses and counts and countesses, who lived in their town houses and extended hospitality almost to all comers, as in the south "before the war." Russians themselves, before and since the great war, loved to visit Georgia, because of its climate and its verdant richness. The czar and hosts of Petrograd and Moscow nobles and wealthy people had their villas, their hunting lodges and summer resort places scattered through Georgia.

Coveted Its Riches.

One cause of the occupation of Georgia by the bolsheviki was probably lost. This was the last portion of Russia which still retained some of old Russia's vast treasures of art, of paintings, of tapestries and rugs, of silver and gold ware, of armor inlaid with precious metals and jewels, of silver-ornamented harnesses, of diamonds and valuable oriental stones the very name of which is hardly known in western countries.

A more general cause of the occupation by the bolsheviki has been the systematic attempt of Moscow to reincorporate into Russia its old provinces.

During its three years of independence, Georgia had on paper 16 mobilization of troops and 14 wars, all to protect frontiers. All of these newly-formed republics in Europe, occupy some strategic transport position which their neighbors need, and this generally brings on trouble.

Georgia held the railway up from Batum on the Black Sea to Baku, the oil center and also one of the ways into Persia. The bolsheviki are said to have wanted Georgia as a base for their campaign into Persia and to give a better control of Armenia, all for the purpose of an attack on the British, and also for a closer contact, either offensive or defensive, with the Turks.

Government Falls.

The attack of the soviet army was made on February 18. The fight about the city continued until Friday, February 25, when the Georgians were obliged to flee. Their intelligence service was bad, there was no lubricating oil for their brand new airplanes, everything went wrong.

The looting of the city began from the inside. When the bolsheviki came, more of a rabble than a soldiery, they were permitted to loot, after the manner of armies in this part of the world. The allied and American missions and officials got away by train, together with the Georgian government. Officially President Jordania and his government will continue at Constantinople, hoping for another chapter to open in this struggle for freedom.

Because of lack of unity and sympathy among the five republics of the Caucasus, the bolsheviki were able to play them one against the other. The Tartars and Cossacks who helped overrun Georgia had been fighting for national freedom in their republics.

The bolsheviki who formed the soviet government at Tiflis have proclaimed that now Georgia is free to work out her destines, without imperialistic influences.

SLOWBOY FINDS FORTUNE

Gold and Silver Money Buried in Pot Is Unearthed in Virginia.

SALEM, Va., April 21.—Henry Dameron, 23, descendant of pioneer Virginia settlers, who works on his uncle's mountainside farm near here from sunup to sundown at $10 a month, often dreamed, he said, of finding treasure and buying a farm of his own.

April 9, when plowing near the foot of Brush's mountain, his plow unearthed a peculiar looking object. Investigation revealed it to be a small metal pot wrapped in buckskin containing gold and silver coins valued at $14,903. About $13,800 was in gold, $600 in silver and the balance in currency, so badly disintegrated that the denominations could not be distinguished. The latest date on any of the coins was 1823.

Young Dameron was fearful his fortune might be taken away from him and kept his discovery secret until today.

Threaten Lockout in Chicago Building Work

CHICAGO, April 21.—A lockout of the building trades in Chicago, effective April 30, unless the unions meanwhile sign up for a 20 per cent cut for skilled labor and a 30 per cent reduction for unskilled labor, was announced tonight by the builders. At present the rate is $1.25 and $1 an hour. It is estimated that a shutdown would tie up $10,000,000 worth of structural work now under way.

Expectant Mother Saves Babe From 20-Foot Well

Mrs. Norman Gurling, of Greenburgh, N. Y., is the heroine of the vicinity and a movement is on foot to secure a Carnegie medal for her. Mrs. Gurling's 15-months-old son, Norman, Jr., fell into an unused well in the rear of the Gurling home recently. The mother—who is expected to give birth to another child in a day or two—went down into the well, a distance of 20 feet, and rescued the youngster. The sides of the well are slippery and slimy and Mrs. Gurling does not realize how she climbed down and brought her son, half-drowned, to the surface unassisted. Mrs. Gurling was alone in her home when she heard little Norman cry as he tumbled down the well. Mrs. Gurling, who is 28, immediately rushed to the well and started to climb down the slippery sides. A misstep would have meant death for both herself and little Norman. Grasping the clothing of the half-drowned and unconscious child, she started her upward climb. Not until Norman was again safe in his bed did Mrs. Gurling collapse as the result of her trying and heroic deed.

TELESCOPE USED IN 13TH CENTURY

Roger Bacon Far Ahead of His Day, Scientist in Address Shows

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—A detailed description of the method used in decoding the cipher used by Roger Bacon, the 13th century philosopher-monk in writing an 800,000 word manuscript, now the property of Wilfrid M. Voynich of New York and London was given here today before the American Philosophical society by Prof. William Romaine Newbold of the University of Pennsylvania.

As a result of the revelations made by deciphering the manuscript, scientists have declared Bacon had remarkable knowledge of mathematical systems conceived today and had not the discoveries made by him remained unknown to others until rediscovered hundreds of years after his death, science would have been much in advance of its present state.

The manuscript proves, it is maintained, that the Franciscan Friar used both the telescope and the microscope. Proof of its authenticity was submitted last night by Dr. Newbold before the college of physicians and surgeons when he announced he had deciphered Bacon's name on the last page.

In his address today Dr. Newbold pointed out that Bacon was obliged, because of the age in which he lived, to devise a cipher which not only would be difficult to read, but one which no one would suspect of being a cipher.

GERMANY'S PLEA IS TURNED DOWN

reparations have been prepared are not known here. From the urgent nature of the German appeal, it was the belief of some officials and diplomats that the Berlin government found itself, in an extreme position.

Previous Correspondence.

In its first memorandum to the United States with respect to reparations, which was drawn on last March 24, Germany said she was ready to meet any proposal which appeared feasible "for the solution of the economic and financial problems of Europe," and that she invited the examination by unbiased experts of her own ability to make paymenis. It was added that it was entirely clear to both the people and the government that Germany would have to pay to the limit of her ability.

In reply to this memorandum, Secretary Hughes said that the United States stood with the governments of the allies in holding Germany "responsible for the war, and therefore morally bound to make reparations so far as may be possible."

"This government," Mr. Hughes continued, "believes that it recognizes in the memorandum of Dr. Simons a sincere desire on the part of the German government to reopen negotiations with the allies on a new basis settlement which will at the same time satisfy the just claims of the allies and permit Germany hopefully to renew its productive activities."

The German appeal received today and Mr. Hughes' reply were made public by the state department without comment and high administration officials declined to discuss either of them.

every means at its command to effect his return.

Haywood was seen in New York in March, Mr. Baley said, and if he has gone to Russia, the question of passport regulations would arise, requiring the assistance of the state department to determine how he left the country.

Of the 46 men sentenced to prison, Mr. Baley asserted all except six have delivered themselves to the authorities and the whereabouts of five these latter are known, so that Haywood is the only one who could be attempting to evade sentence.

ANNUAL FROLIC AT U. OF T.

Harwell Gym Scene of Unconventional Entertainment Thursday Night

Students of the University of Tulsa celebrated their annual April frolic in the Harwell gymnasium Thursday night in spite of the rain and bad weather.

Most of the fun was derived from the competition in buying votes for the popularity contest, which was won by Oscar Williams for the boys and by Miss Leona Britton for the girls. The votes sold for 5 cents per 100.

Five boys and five girls were nominated for the popularity contest at chapel exercises Wednesday morning. The boys nominated the girls and the girls nominated the boys. The proceeds of the vote sales went to the Y. W. C. A., which organization, together with the Y. M. C. A. and the social committee of the faculty were responsible for the success of the frolic.

Immigration Bill to Final Vote in House

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Final vote in the house on temporary immigration bill with indications of its passage by a large majority was in prospect tonight after the house, sitting in committee of the whole, had voted down, with one important exception, numerous amendments. The bill would limit aliens seeking admission to the United States to 3 per cent of each nationality registered by the 1910 census and would be in effect for 14 months from date of passage. One amendment adopted would permit aliens suffering religious persecutions to enter the country in excess of the 3 per cent specified, provided they presented satisfactory evidence of their admissability to the immigration officials.

Government Ships to Be Dry.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Permission to carry liquor on government-owned vessels was requested of the shipping board by the Munson line some time ago, but was denied, Chairman Benson said tonight in discussing cable reports Montevideo, Uruguay, as a "wet" that its steamer Huron had left ship."

Had Cloudburst at Edmond.

EDMOND, April 21.—Heavy rain, in proportion to a cloudburst, fell here this afternoon, causing a washout of crops of several feet in houses on lower ground, and the city park was reported to be flooded to a depth of four feet.

Utah Drops Jap Question.

SALT LAKE CITY, April 21.—Utah will take no further action in upholding California in its stand on the Japanese immigration question, Governor Charles R. Mabey today advised Governor William D. Stephens of California. Utah takes this stand to avoid causing any embarrassment to the federal government in its international relations.

ABDUCTION FIXED, K. C. GIRLS ADMIT

Framed-up Robbery of 2 Escorts and Led Them to Secluded Spot

KANSAS CITY, Kan., April 21.—"Sure we were kidnaped but we were willing to be," admitted Mildred Hardinger, 18, today, one of the "stolen" girls, who kept the police of this city and Kansas City, Mo., on a frantic search of two days before they were found, late yesterday.

Margaret Hobbs, 17, the other "stolen" girl, also admitted that it was all a frameup in which Mildred, the master mind, planned the details of the fake holdup.

The two girls arranged with James Curtin, 19, and Edward Harrison, 19, to hold them up and kidnap them on Monday night. Mildred had asked Edward Myers and George Brown to take them automobile riding on that night and had them stop the car at the prearranged spot.

Curtis and Harrison then stepped out, pulled a revolver and held up the car. They ordered Myers and Brown out of the machine, took their overcoats and money and drove away with the girls in Meyers' car.

But the adventure the party had planned proved to be a fizzle. They rode aimlessly around the country most of the time, and finally, exhausted and weakened by cold and exposure, crawled into a strawstack Tuesday night on the outskirts of the city. Disheveled, dirty, and half starved, they were finally rounded up late Wednesday.

All four are being held by the police and the two youths implicated in the case will probably face charges of robbery and theft.

COTTON TONE IS SOFT

At Opening and at Close, However, It Is Steady—Reports of Too Much Rain Cause Advance.

NEW ORLEANS, April 21.—During the greater part of the session today the cotton market had a distinctly soft tone, but on the opening and again on the close, the tone was steady. Much of the selling resulted from the unfavorable reports from England regarding negotiations to end the coal strike and lowest levels followed the statement by the miners that they would stick to their strike until they were starved out. At the lowest the trading months were 16 to 23 points under the close of yesterday, but the close was only 3 to 11 points lower down. Around the opening prices were 3 to 5 points higher than the final quotations of yesterday. At this level May traded up to 11.65c. The sags carried May off to 11.40c, and that months finally closed at 11.53c.

The small advance on the opening run was due to reports of too much rain in the western belt and the steadier tone on the close appeared to be due to the fear of another unfavorable weather map in the morning, the forecast calling for both rain and cold weather. During the day points in the western belt wired in that a great deal of rain was falling and points scattered over the greater part of the southern half of the cotton region telegraphed that a world of re-planting would be necessary, following the weather damage to young plants during the last few days.

Horemans Defeats Sutton.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Edouard Horemans, champion balk line billiardist of Europe, defeated George B. Sutton of Chicago tonight when he completed the fourth block of their 1,600-point 18-2 balk line contest in six innings, making the final score 1,600 to 468. The score of the game tonight was 400 to 57.

Horeman's high run was 183 and his average for the four games 50. Contrary to his usual play the Belgian shot a steady game throughout the four blocks, making steady runs each inning. His average for the game tonight was 66 4-6. Sutton's average for four games was 15 3-34.

Superstitions of Actors.

Owen More, being a quiet Irish temperament, is forever spilling salt to liven up matters a little.

Eugene O'Brien never misses a chance to walk under a ladder. Sometimes the painters are at work and then his valet has a job.

Martha Mansfield insists upon the waiter sitting down with the guests when there are only twelve diners at the table.

Elaine Hammerstein buys mirrors by the dozen so she can start the day right at Selznick's studios by smashing one.

Zena Keefe, who is a gifted whistler, practices trills and high notes while she busys herself in her dressing room.

Thus do these film players defy some of the most sacred traditions of the acting fraternity concerning favorite superstitions.

Mamma—Charles, you look as if you had been fighting again. Have you?

Charles—Yes, ma-am. I had to. Ralph Brown hit me on the cheek.

Mamma—Well, you should have turned the other cheek?

Charles—I did, and he hit that and soaked me on the nose. Then I got mad and licked the stuffin' out of him.

Best of the Situation.

A young man managed to get into conversation with a pretty girl during a railway journey. He was very pleased with himself and when the train arrived at his destination he said to the girl:

"I'm afraid you wouldn't, perhaps, have been so nice if you'd known I was a married man."

"Oh, as to that," said the girl, "you have nothing on me. I'm an escaped lunatic."
