CITIZENS DEMAND ACTION ON SEWER

Commissioners Agree to Estimate Cost of Big Project

CITY CAN VOTE BONDS

No Legal Bar to Construction of Storm Sewers Adequate to Handle Floods

City Engineer [illegible] was instructed by the mayor and commissioners Friday to prepare an estimate of cost of a monolithic storm sewer adequate for the needs of the south and east sides of the city "for 30 years to come." These outlying districts were given to understand about 40 south side property owners of the city had visited the commission meeting and demanded that some effort be taken toward relieving flood conditions in this section.

Frank E. Curry, chief spokesman for the delegation, He declared that property owners will not only vote for such a bond issue, but that they will also become active in its support. When Mayor Evans asked all who would work for the success of the issue to raise their hands, every person present in connection with the proposed project voted in the affirmative.

Admit Great Undertaking

"Do the people understand that this is a tremendous undertaking, that it not only involves the expenditure of a large amount of money but that it also involves a right of way for the proposed sewer through many pieces of property?" C. E. Youngman, commissioner of water and sewers, asked. "The city attempted to extend the Eighteenth street sewer through a ditch south to the river recently, but was met with an injunction by the property owner, who demanded that the ditch be covered. The city has no money with which to build such a covered ditch."

"This new sewer can run through my house for all I care," Curry declared jocosely. He stated that the same sewers are now caring for flood waters that cared for those waters when he moved here.

Believe Proposal Favored

"Do you believe the people will vote for a sewer bond issue of magnitude at this time?" the mayor asked. Curry and others said they believed there would be no difficulty in voting the issue.

Approximately 22,500 people live in the area that would be affected by a new 18-foot sewer, the city engineer stated. This area extends from a point on East King street, north of the Frisco tracks, through Kendall and west and south as Eighteenth and Boulder. Officials are not confident that all of these people would support the issue, because many of them live on high ground that is well drained, and not in the south part of the city at a low point where the flood waters back up and collect, flooding basements and washing away foundations.

Under the charter and the state law sewers can be built only with money obtained from bond issues voted by the entire city. An effort by City Attorney Frann E. Duncan and others made at the last legislature to pass a new bill making it possible to charge these improvements directly against the property benefited was tabled.

Indebtedne s No Bar

Some apprehension was expressed by bystanders after the commission meeting that if the proposed bond issue carries it will increase the bonded indebtedness of the city until it would be possible to carry out the Spavinaw water project. This fear was set at rest by City Attorney Frank E. Duncan, who referred to the statutes and found that there is no limit to the amount of bonded indebtedness a city may incur for public utility purposes, providing property owners vote in favor of such utilities.

The only restriction placed upon the city is for bonded indebtedness for purposes other than public utilities. Such bonded indebtedness for what are termed local improvements can not exceed 5 per cent of the total valuation of the city. Duncan believes the revised valuation of the city will show a figure near $100,000,000. On this basis the city could vote $5,000,000 in bonds for local improvements other than public utilities. The present indebtedness of the city aside from utilities is less than $500,000.

ROAD BUILDING DAY

Rains Have Prevented Work on Hard Surface Highways in County Since June 21.

No crews working on the county hard-surfaced highway system have poured concrete since June 21, according to the daily report submitted Thursday night by Gene Shaw, special highway inspector for the chamber of commerce. He adds that the heavy rains caused some damage to old work. Contractors were delayed several days, he states, because of the negro uprising. As a result of this and some delays the five crews finished only one and one half miles of roadway in June, Osborne, according to Shaw, they would have finished four miles.

Tuesday, the 21st, was the last day that any of the hard surface crews had poured concrete, the report states. "Rain and wet weather have delayed them ever since," it says. "Very little damage was done to the new work, but on the old work some of the five-foot dirt shoulders were washed away in places.

"June has been a very trying month on the contractors. The rains the first part of the month delayed them a week, and the rain for the last ten days has delayed them still now. So the five crews have finished only one mile and a half, where it would have been easy for them to finish four miles if all of this had not happened.

"Seven miles have been laid this year, making 32 miles of concrete road finished in Tulsa county. With six mixing crews on the jobs and another one to come on soon, prospects look very bright for 25 to 30 miles of hard-surfaced road to be finished this year."

For medical use French physicians have developed an X-ray outfit that can be used at a patient's home, being supplied with current by the motor truck transporting it, in which photographs can be developed promptly.

So This Is Art!

Miss Edith LeRoy, now appearing in a London show.

They call this the "Doctor of Motion." Her real name, however, is Miss Edith LeRoy, a London show girl. She is appearing just as you see her now, with the very costume, the very pose on the London stage. Doesn't she look nice with her foot up and her hand pointing at something or other?

HAS A FEARLESS PROSECUTOR

City Made Unsafe for All Criminals by Attorney Stanton

By DOROTHY HUSKE

CLEVELAND, July 2.—Edward C. Stanton, this is the man who got the evidence that got the people who solved Cleveland's baffling two-year-old murder mystery. For two years the slayers of Dan Kaber, wealthy Lakewood publisher, went scot free. Now his widow, her 18-year-old daughter, Marian McArdle, former Smith college girl and actress, and Marian's grandmother, (his wife's mother) occupy cells under indictment for first degree murder.

Edward C. Stanton, young prosecuting attorney for Cuyahoga county is making Cleveland unsafe for criminals.

Since entering upon his official career in January, 1921, Mr. Stanton's office has rapidly gained the reputation of being one of the "live-est" places in town.

With a good list of achievements on his record already, the Kaber case, however, is by far the most strenuous test of ability that has fallen to the lot of any prosecutor in many a day.

The numerous details of the case, abounding in suggestions of medieval daggers and mysterious potions, with its overwhelmingly rapid developments have kept Prosecutor Stanton "on the job" night and day.

A good night's rest and regular meals mean nothing to Edward C. Stanton when following a clue.

Rather under medium height—slight figure, shady brown hair, blue gray eyes that seem always to see the truth, a remarkable sense of good humor and a firm, determined jaw, giving evidence of his grit and stick-to-it-ivenesss" there's a thumb-nail portrait of the prosecutor.

A "big man," that's what they are saying about Stanton—and the people who voted for this "boy" last fall are predicting with just pride that he is going up—the sky's the limit.

Will Try Johnson on Bogus Check Charge

E. B. Johnson, charged with giving a bogus check to the Palace Clothiers on June 22, was held over to district court under a $1,000 bond at his preliminary hearing Friday before Justice R. C. Maxey. The check in question was for $35, drawn on the Exchange National bank and signed by A. W. Kraft. After an examination of the check, the county attorney expressed the opinion that Johnson had made it out.

May Establish Negro Ward at County Farm

It was reported at the meeting of the reconstruction committee Monday evening that the county commissioners are seriously considering the advisability of establishing and maintaining a negro ward at the county farm. Care for the sick at times becomes a problem with the county commissioners when there are no negroes in the county hospital, and when, on the whole, it would be more convenient to have a negro ward at the farm. The committee adjourned until 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

CHEWED UP HIS OWN WARRANT

Case Dismissed Because of Disappearance of Document

Special to The World.

FAIRFIELD, July 1.—Wilson Rider of Quality, comparatively agile at the age of 80 years, was in town a few days ago, recalling the fact that Rider bears the distinction of having beaten a case in court some years ago by devouring the warrant for his arrest. As the story goes, Rider was rather wild in his younger years and was sometimes accused of appropriating the livestock of his countrymen, such as hogs and cattle. On the occasion in question he is said to have been before the Cherokee court charged with "lifting a cow brute." The case was duly called, the judge was in his seat and the jurors in their. The lawyers for defense and prosecution were on hand and soon the trial was on.

As it proceeded it was plainly to be seen that Rider would have a hard time securing acquittal, and then it was that he is alleged to have whispered to his lawyer to secure, if possible, the warrant or indictment and hand same to him, the defendant. Powers in the case were thrown carelessly on the table, and during the "free for all," opportunity was been paid to the more or less eloquent and law-like address of one of the attorneys. Rider's lawyer actually got the general paper in his hand and managed to slip it into the inside pocket. He quickly transferred the real document to his pocket, and chewed and chewed—finally, Cliff a great gulp, as when a cow swallows her cud, and there after sat with a satisfied look on his countenance. After some time the judge called for the document, but the most careful search failed to reveal it, and eventually, as the law made no provision for the issuance of a new warrant, the case was dismissed and the defendant went his way rejoicing. A number of strange and interesting tales are told concerning Uncle Wilson Rider, but this one relating to the eating of the warrant is most often told.

TO MAKE BIG CUT IN U. S. EXPENSES

Dawes to Slash Millions From Appropriations in New Fiscal Year

WASHINGTON, July 1.—General Charles G. Dawes, director of the budget, today began the new fiscal year by assembling all budget officers of all government departments and mapping out his program to effect a large reduction in both expenditures and estimates of expenditures for the next year.

President Harding was with the budget representative for a short time during which he made a short talk. Then he left General Dawes to further explain the designs of the administration and went downstairs to the office of the secretary of the treasury.

Reduction of expenses in running the government for this year will be along drastic lines, General Dawes pointed out. Some officials believe that if General Dawes' ideas are carried out the cut in government expenditures may amount to not less than $500,000,000, probably a billion dollars.

General Dawes stated that every budget officer to have his estimates for the fiscal year ending 1922 in the hands of the budget bureau by July 15. Allowing only 15 days for such a task, although unprecedented in government fiscal procedure, General Dawes insists that the work can be done. He will not tolerate delays, he declared.

The Screen's He-Vamp, Ben Turpin at Rialto Tomorrow

"She Sighed by the Seaside" is really what happens to Mack Sennett's latest two-reel assault on gloom to be shown at the Rialto tomorrow. And that also is the name of the mirthful motion picture. "She Sighed by the Seaside" is a title somewhat longer than the Comedy King usually attaches to his miniature masterpieces, but it is justified by a plot of unusually attractive contents. As the title signifies, the scenes are laid on the southern California beaches and this fact encourages the hope that the celebrated Sennett Bathing Beauties may be seen advantageously.

They are.

Principal among the pretty girls is piquant Marie Prevost, who, a considerable portion of the plot's action is seen in a natty and very shapely bathing suit. Surrounded by a group of similarly garbed young mermaids, Miss Prevost is as pleasing to the vision as any fairy of the foam that mortal man ever saw—or thought he saw.

And there are some wild adventurous moments in the story, as when Marie, accompanied by her two rival gallants, takes a spin over the waves in a motor boat. A thrill of genuine, shuddery delight is registered when the boat springs a leak and the would-be gallants leap overboard, leaving the beautiful Marie to her fate. The latter is impersonated by noble Ben Turpin, whose role is that of a life-saver. Fate, that is to say, Ben, is kind to the imperilled girl and, of course, he saves her.

Romance then is born to the plot, and the rest is a riot of quick action prodded to its highest speed by skillful direction and willing, hearty players.

The cast includes Ben Turpin, James Finlayson, Charlie Conklin, Tiny Ward and Bert Roach among the men; the leading woman is Marie Prevost, the chief comedienne is Charlotte Mineau, and then there are all the dimpled beauties of the sea-going brigade known the world over as the Mack Sennett bathing beauties.

As an extra added attraction, the management offers Enid Bennett in "Keeping Up With Lizzie."
