SOCIETY

BY LILIAN C. PERKINS

SMILES lethargy with the considered dissipation of happenings the past week, has been illuminated with its bright spots in the city of Tulsa and the surrounding territory. The social calendar of the week shows from also and the informal events that are not for publication so to speak, say. "They are so informal, you know." Miss Olive Robertson of Oklahoma City, daughter of Oklahoma's chief executive, and his lovely wife, was a brief visitor and was the guest of Miss Ruth Fitzpatrick while here. Miss Robertson was returning to Seattle, Wash., to see her brother, H. K. Robertson and Miss Robertson. While in Tulsa, Miss Robertson was an out-of-town guest at the bridge luncheon given by Mrs. Thomas A. Hunt and Mr. Dan Hunt, jr., for Miss Ruth Fitzpatrick, a bride-elect of the coming week. Miss Robertson also was honored at a large gathering at the home of Mrs. Frank H. Casebeer, jr., on Thursday evening, when Mrs. Frank H. Casebeer, jr., and Mr. Daniel M. Russell and wife, who are to be married last Saturday, were Miss Anna Belle Goff of Tulsa. In the night honors in Miss Olive Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Crosbie, and Miss Ruth Fitzpatrick
