Albanese's Brilliant Pitching Wins for Oilers—Sox and Tigers Make Swat Record

New Southpaw Hurls Hitless Ball for 6 Innings On Rubber

Relieves Cullop in Fourth and Allows No Bingles Rest of Game

CULLOP STARTS WELL

But Loses Control and Portsider Rescues Him; Score 7 to 2 for Clymers

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 9—Knocking Love out of the box in the first inning, while Cullop and Albanese held Oklahoma City to three hits, Tulsa won the final game of the series this afternoon, 7 to 2.

The story of the game is soon told. Burke, first man to face Love, took a couple of strikes and then sent a liner screaming to left center. Before Harper could get the ball back to the infield the former Oiler manager was perched on second. He moved to third while Breen was throwing out Thompson, and scored on Davis' single to right. Todt hit one through short and Brannon followed him with a clean rap to left, filling the bases.

Growing unsteady, Love walked Stewart, forcing over Davis. Thereupon Allen went to his relief. Heving flied to Pitt, Todt scoring and Brannon moved to third. On a delayed double steal, Brannon counted and Stewart made second in safe y, thus McGinnis popped to Breen.

Scored in One Inning.

Oklahoma City's whole earnings were crowded into the home half of the same inning when Pitt singled, Wright walked and then after Breen had grounded out and Harper fanned, Graham sent a single into center, scoring Pitt and Wright.

The Indians threatened to break through in the second and third and fourth because of Cullop's wildness, but he managed to settle in time and then after Albanese took the mound in the fourth it was apparent the game was safe so far as Tulsa was concerned. Thompson's single, Davis roller to Breen and Todt's single gave Tulsa its fifth run in the fifth inning. Two more were added in the ninth on a double by Thompson and singles by Davis and Brannon.

Anglers Try to Fish Miss Bleibtrey From New York Swim Pool

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Two expert anglers will try to fish Miss Thelma Bleibtrey, Olympia swimming champion, from a 250 foot swimming pool with a bamboo rod and ordinary silk fish line September 15. She will try to prevent them. The contest was arranged today by a newspaper.

The anglers are Joseph Cawthorn, expert on tuna and James A. Cruikshan star trout fisherman. The line will be attached to a belt which Miss Bleibtrey will wear, allowing her full freedom. The fisherman will take turns in trying to pull her the length of the tank and to "land" her.

40th Annual Singles Tournament Is Opened at Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—Rapid fire elimination marked the initial play in the fortieth annual singles championship tournament of the United States Lawn Tennis association here today. Buccos Fall Before Cubs as Giants Beat Brooklyn in Opener

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 9.—Hard and timely hitting by Chicago while Cooper was in the box, enabled Chicago to win today's game, 8 to 5. A fast double play ended the game. The defeat and New York's victory pulled Pittsburgh down to a virtual tie with the Giants, the percentages now standing:

Looking'EmOver

WITH "BRIDGE"

The fag end of the baseball season is bringing as usual reports and rumors of drastic changes in minor league personnel to be effected during the coming winter. Even the Class A Western league, strong and "going concern" that it unquestionably is, may present a different appearance next spring according to word now going the rounds. One hears gossip that Des Moines may not survive, that Sioux City may be supplanted—but such talk would seem entirely unfounded. More importance can be given the report that Joplin may be missing from the roster of clubs when the 1922 season rolls around.

So far as Des Moines and Sioux City are concerned, these cities appear to be entirely too good for the Western league to permit either to slip out. Des Moies needs better transportation facilities to and from the ball park and Sioux City is badly in need of a new park. But these towns are real cities. Where would the Western league turn to find a village of 135,000 to succeed Des Moines, or even one of 72,609 to take the place of Sioux City?

Getting back to Joplin, The Missouri mine center has been in a bad way all year from a baseball standpoint. Just after midseason this year things came to a showdown. A new president was secured for the club and a bunch of fans got busy and raised $5,000 to tide the team over for the rest of the season. It was a fine thing that the baseball lovers of Joplin could come up with this money when it was so badly needed and thus prevent their club from becoming a ward of the league, with the franchise forfeited, but it's a question how long they can go on like that. Joplin had a good team this year which despite heart-breaking support at home managed to win half its games. The same team in Tulsa probably would have been in the pennant race.

There is one great baseball town that may be in the Western league again—and sooner than you might expect. That is Denver. If Joplin can't make the riffle Denver certainly will come in for some serious consideration. The one and only thing against Denver is its distant location and the terrific expense of transporting the other seven clubs to the Colorado metropolis, but a couple of years ago Denver business men offered to make up to the other Western league club owners the difference in railroad fares if Denver was given a franchise. Such an agreement as this, if one could be made that would bind, would seem to make Denver the logical successor to any faltering Western league city. Denver, with its 260,000 people, certainly would be a big asset to the league.

Aside from Denver there are three other towns worthy of at least consideration as potential Western league material. These are Lincoln, Neb., Springfield, Mo., and Muskogee, Okla. Lincoln's chief drawback is the lack of a baseball park, but that shouldn't stand in the way if they want baseball very bad and have a chance to break into a Class A league. However, Lincoln is not such a good ball town, according to scribes who remember when it had a Western league berth.

Springfield and Muskogee of course already are in baseball leagues, the Missouri town being a member of the Western association and our own sister city occupying a berth in the new Southwestern league. There is an excellent chance, however, that both towns may be open this winter, as all indications point to a consolidation of the Western association and the Southwestern league into one really first-class, compact Class C circuit, with one being eliminated. The territory which both of these leagues draw from, namely southwestern Missouri, southern Kansas, western Arkansas and eastern Oklahoma, certainly cannot go on providing two eight-club leagues. Sixteen of the right kind of towns are not here.

The one great surprise is that the two leagues have been able to weather this season, which has been a rocky one for both leagues with each forced to split the season to revive interest in the pennant race. The Western association has managed to squeeze through with the eight towns starting the season finishing it, but the Southwestern was forced to make one change, the Parsons club being transferred to Cushing. Western association moguls are to meet in Tulsa next Sunday to work out details of the coming postseason championship series between Fort Smith and Chickasha, the split season winners, and something may be learned at that time as to how the "mags" feel about next year.

Whether these various shake-up reports are founded on fact or fancy, the winter meetings of the Western and other leagues in these parts certainly will be observed with more than usual interest.

Braves Suspend McQuillan.

Gun Club Shoot Today.

The regular weekly shoot of the Tulsa Gun club will be held this afternoon on the Tulsa rifle range grounds two and one-half miles north of the city. With vacation days about over and several shooters returned, the largest crowd in weeks is looked for this afternoon.

Ruth Ties His Record With 54th Homer; Has 22 More Games Left

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—Babe Ruth, baseball's premier swatsman, today slammed out a homer—his fifty-fourth of the season—and tied his 1920 home run record. The drive into the center field bleachers was made off Naylor in the fourth inning of the game with the Athletics. One man was on base.

Ruth hit his fifty-fourth home run last year on September 29, also in a game with Philadelphia, with Dave Keefe on second. The Yankees are scheduled to play 22 games before their season's quota is completed.
