R. L. Davidson Buys Property From Hughes and Thompson

TO PUT UP A BUILDING

But Is Undecided Yet Whether to Make It an Apartment or Office Structure

The first big real estate transaction of the fall was consummated yesterday when R. L. Davidson bought from R. H. Hughes and J. N. Thompson of Thompson Bros. & Hughes the 75-foot lot on the northwest corner of Eighth and Boulder. The consideration was approximately $40,000.

Davidson plans to erect a building on the property, but he is uncertain yet as to what kind. He expects to be guided in his choice by the need, and will probably erect either an office building or large apartment. The sale of the property was made by J. H. Jennings.

The transaction marks the beginning of renewed activity in this line of business. With the opening of school, the coming of cooler weather and the end of vacations, an impetus has been given the real estate market in Tulsa. J. C. Reddin of the firm of Adams & Reddin, said yesterday.

"The past 10 days," said Reddin, "has seen the consummation of a number of important sales, the most prominent being for a consideration of $70,000. The names of the parties to this transaction are not made public at this time."

Reddin pointed out the significant fact that a number of buyers during the past week have been people from out-of-town, and who are moving here to make Tulsa their home. Among these were H. Winters of Kansas, who purchased the C. W. Baker property on South Owasso for a consideration of $13,500. L. C. Duffield, also of Kansas, bought the Wygant house in Morningside for $16,500, and another sale to an out-of-town buyer was that of Fred Steiner and Otto Runderwirth to Alcock, who bought a new bungalow in the 1700 block on South Utica for $8,500.

GRADUATION DAY IN BIBLE CLASSES

Students of Holy Book to Know Today Whether They Pass

Graduation day—that magic time associated with May and June in public schools and universities of the land—comes in the fall to Bible schools over the country and will be so observed today in practically all of the Bible schools in Tulsa.

Promotion day services in a number of the schools will be elaborate, with the presentation of diplomas, graduating talks and special drills and exercises by pupils, while in other churches the exercises will take the more simple form of changes from one class or department to another and re-registration. In the First Christian church an extensive promotion day program will take the place of preaching services.

Though the Bible school is like the public schools in holding graduating exercises, it is unlike the other schools in that one never graduates out of the Bible school and its classes are carried on continuously for all ages from the cradle to life's sunset years.

In connection with the promotion day exercises Bible schools are making an effort to regain their summer losses in attendance, and several have set attendance goals for Sunday.
