CITY NEWS

Fine Piano Fortes at Hall's 17 Monument Park.

THANKS.—We desire to express our thanks to Col. J. H. Gedman for a copy of his annual report as Auditor of State.

MRS. DAY'S SCHOOL.—The next term of Mrs. Day's School, corner of Euclid and Erie streets, will commence on Monday, 29th instant.

GIVEN TO THE JURY.—The case of Morgan vs. Spangler was given to the jury in the District Court, yesterday noon, after Judge Burke had charged that body about two hours. It is acknowledged the knottiest, most intricate case which has been on trial here for a long time. The jury had not come in at four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

UNITED STATES COURT.—Court met at nine o'clock yesterday morning, when the case of the United States vs. Charles Benjamin was called. Defendant is charged with passing a counterfeit $20 U. S. note in a Cyprian establishment on Seneca street. All the nymphs on the street were said to be present as witnesses. The case was not concluded at four o'clock P. M.

BUCKLEY'S SERENADERS.—This fine troupe of minstrels and serenaders had two obstacles to contend with last night, namely, the inclement weather and the opera. But they had a very good house, nevertheless, and the hill was rendered in the best style known to the art. Perfect satisfaction was given. Their last and, doubtless, best performance will be given to-night. Look out for a big house.

EMPLOYMENT.—The opportunities for enterprising young men to advance and succeed in business, were never as fine as at the present time. The avenues to profitable employment are so numerous, that he who is qualified, need not fail to secure a situation, in which he will find plenty of work, and receive rich compensation for his labor. Young men may ask, where can we best prepare ourselves for such situations? Without hesitation, we reply, at the Business College in this city.

RUN OVER.—Mr. Andrew Stedtmedter, an honest shoemaker of Rockport, was struck by a freight engine on the C. C. & C road, Monday evening about six o'clock, while standing on the track a half mile from Rockport. He sustained injuries of so serious a nature that he died yesterday morning at the City Hotel in this city, where he was brought by conductor Eustis. Drs. Beckwith and Schneider attended him during his last hours. The friends of the deceased received the remains to Rockport, yesterday, where a wife and four children are left to mourn the death of the unfortunate man.

IN JAIL FOR SAFE KEEPING.—Samuel Goodhue is now in the jail of this county, locked up for safe keeping. He formerly lived in Willoughby, whence he moved to Chagrin Falls, and from there to Missouri, last May, we believe. He has been in the Lunatic Asylum once, and ought to be there now. He was found in the city and lodged in jail by order of Judge Tilden, a week ago last Saturday. He was so violent part of the time, that the turnkey was obliged to keep him housed closely in a cell, and then he tore the bunks off and tossed them around in a very lively manner. He is very social and loquacious, and his eye burns with a cold glittering light as if it were an icicle in process of combustion.

"REPORNS AND REPORNERS IN ENGLAND."—Such is the subject of the lecture which the Hon. George Thompson, the famous cotemporary orator of England, will deliver in Brainard's Hall to-morrow (Thursday) evening. A few years ago this gentleman was considered one of the best orators, if not the foremost orator, of the age. He ran a brilliant career as agitator and reformer in England, and his fame filled all civilized lands. And now we are to have the privilege of hearing from the golden lips of this man, in the evening of his life, an account of his co-laborers and their efforts in Great Britain. The lecture will be a very interesting one, and everybody should make it a point to hear it.

HORSEMANSHIP.—Agreeable to announcement, Prof. Rockwell made his appearance about one o'clock yesterday afternoon, in front of the postoffice, driving a pair of spirited stallions simply by the movements of a whip. He found a very large crowd of spectators perched on the fence and in scores of carriages and wagons along the way. The horses had neither bridles nor reins,—nothing but surcingles to which the shafts were attached. He drove rapidly up and down the street, the length of the park, several times, performing many beautiful and daring evolutions, amid the cheers of the crowd. The stallions are admirably trained, and go in perfect obedience to the hints of the magic whip. He also drove a four-year-old colt which he had never had in harness before.

After gratifying the spectators for nearly an hour, he gave notice that he would make another exhibition at the same place this afternoon, at one o'clock, and then adjourned to the City Hotel stable, whither he invited all who desire to join a class and receive lessons in his mode of managing horses.

NEW YORK PAPERS.—We are under frequent obligations to Starr for New York papers in advance of the mails. His news room contains the latest and most interesting periodical literature.

CLEVELAND MANUFACTURES,

IRON WORKS.

STOVES AND HOLLOW WARE.

There are but two establishments in this city exclusively devoted to the manufacture of stoves and hollow ware. These, however, manufacture on an extensive scale. We have already noticed one of them, and will now proceed to glance at the capacity, facilities and extent of the other, of which Messrs. Woolson, Hitchcock & Carter are the proprietors.

The senior partner of this firm has been engaged in the manufacture of stoves for a great length of time—probably longer than any other man in the business here. This experience is of great account in enabling the company to produce goods of a superior quality and adaptation to the various purposes required. Their business was established in 1841, with a capital of $10,000, and a force of workmen numbering 12 or 15, to whom they paid from 75c. to $1.50 per day. In 1855 they erected their present works, (situated on the canal corner of Commercial street and Central Way,) at a cost, including machinery, &c., of over $30,000. The lot extends along the canal 575 feet and is 200 feet deep. The main building is of brick, two stories high, and the whole is 180 by 180 feet. There are three moulding floors, the first 75 by 150 feet, the second 30 by 150, and the third 30 by 100. These floors contain 19,350 square feet of moulding room. The engine occupies a separate building, used also as a blacksmith's shop and for other purposes, which is substantially built of brick, and contains the cylinder blower, the blast of which is conducted to the cupolas in the main building by a tin tube 15 inches in diameter and 150 feet long. A third building is used exclusively for finishing and storing hollow ware. There is also another building occupied as a pattern shop and for other mechanical purposes connected with the trade.

There are two cupolo furnaces, the blast for which is furnished by two fan blowers and one cylinder blower. There are four heavy iron cylinders or drums, and four heavy grindstones constantly running. Two of the cylinders are filled with loose castings, which are cleaned and polished by trituration; one grinds up all the cinders and separates and saves the small particles of iron, which would otherwise go into the dust heap; while the fourth cylindrical drum contains several large cannon-balls which roll around inside as the cylinder revolves, and grind to the finest powder the charcoal and other substances used in preparing the moulds for fine castings. Heavier castings and hollow ware are smoothed on the grindstones. This machinery, together with numerous drills and other devices of a labor-saving character, is driven by steam power.

The annual consumption of raw material is about as follows: 1500 tons pig iron; 200 tons Lehigh coal, 200 do. Coke, and 200 do. Ohio coal. The iron is mainly from the furnaces of the Mahoning and Tuscarawas Valleys, Hanging Rock and Lake Superior.

The establishment manufactures over one hundred different patterns, sizes and styles of cooking and heating stoves, for wood and for coal, which they sell in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota. The capital of the firm is over $700,000, and they employ from 66 to 100 hands, at wages from $1 to $5 per day.

OUR HOME OPERA TROUPE.—One of the largest and most brilliant audiences that was ever congregated within the walls of the Academy of Music greeted the first appearance of our home amateur opera troupe last evening, and heard with unmingled pleasure the performance of the opera of "The Doctor of Alcantara." As far as the singing, the acting, and the eclat of the occasion were concerned, the whole affair was without exception the most successful of any amateur musical entertainment ever given in our city. Considering that the ladies and gentlemen connected with this performance were not professional opera singers, that they did not have the advantage of singing in the melodious language of Italy, and that this was their first appearance before the public in opera singing, they are entitled to the highest amount of credit for their success, and to the congratulations of every one of the delighted audience who heard them.

The leading ladies, Mrs. Underner and Misses Wooster and Emmons, sang and acted their parts in a manner that would redound to the credit of professional singers. We, as Clevelanders, feel that the musical fame of our city will be well kept up by these ladies. Our young friend Mr. F. B. Stedman made a most admirable Dr. Paracelsus. He made himself perfectly at home in his role. One looking at the old and gaunt looking figure that personated the Doctor, would hardly imagine that it was the handsome and youthful Stedman. The Carlos of Mr. Perkins was well sung and acted. Messrs. Foote, Krabil, Hunter and Northrop filled their parts in the most creditable manner.

The orchestra, under the lead of Mr. Konigslow, ably sustained the singers and discovered the music with additional credit to their well-established reputation.

To say that "our opera" was a mere success does not convey a just idea of its merit. It was a decided success, and all who attended were agreeably disappointed in their expectations, judging from the complimentary remarks that were made. Not being musical ourselves, we are unable to give a scientific criticism of the music but pin our faith that it was of the first order upon the fact that it was under the direction of those accomplished musicians Messrs. Underner and Finn.

The opera will be repeated to-morrow evening, and for the benefit of those who did not attend, we will give the names of the leading actors, and the argument of the piece:

Doctor Paracelsus.....Mr. F. B. Stedman
Senor Balthazar.....Mr. H. Foote
Carlos, his Son.....Mr. W. N. Perkins
Perez, } Porters, }.....Mr. A. G. Krabil
Sancho, }.....Mr. Hunter
Don Pompous, Alguazil, Sorcerers, Magicians, &c.....Mr. A Northrop
Donna Lucrezia, Wife to Dr. Paracelsus, Miss Cassie Wooster
Isabella, her Daughter.....Mrs. John Underner
Inez, her Maid.....Miss Angie Emmons

ARGUMENT.—Carlos, the son of Senor Balthazar, has fallen in love with Senorita Isabella, daughter of Doctor Paracelsus. In the mean while Isabella has been betrothed to a young man, with whose name she has not been made acquainted. Surprised by her mother in listening to a serenade given by Carlos, she confesses her love for him, and refuses to marry the unknown intended. Carlos contrives to have himself conveyed into the house in a basket, under cover of a present to Inez, the confidante of Isabella. Carlos takes advantage of the absence of every body to get out of the basket and conceal himself. The Doctor and Inez, in trying to hide the basket from the quarrelsome Lucrezia, drop it in the river, and afterwards learn that there was a man in it. Attracted by the despairing screams of Inez, the night watch appear, led by the alguazil Pomposo, who informs them that they are under the surveillance of his men, as suspicious persons. After the departure of the night watch, the Doctor and Inez are left brooding in fear and dismay over their crime, when Carlos enters, to the great terror of the Doctor and Inez, who immediately suspect him to be a police spy. He discovers himself to them as the son of Senor Balthazar, being at the same time unaware that his lady love and his intended are one and the same. Transported with joy, the Doctor asks him to take a glass of wine with him, which wine, brought by Inez, proving to be one of the Doctor's poisonous decoctions, plunges Carlos at once into a death-like swoon. The Doctor, believing him dead, and afraid of being detected in his his second imaginary murder, conceals Carlos in a sofa, in which act he is disagreeably surprised by the sudden arrival of Balthazar, who comes to conclude the arrangements for the marriage of his son and Isabella. His presence being objectionable to them, they put every obstacle in his way, so that at length he is forced to pass the night on the sofa, beneath which his son's body is concealed. When he is asleep the Doctor and Inez, fearful of discovery, enter to remove the body from under Balthazar, who awakes, and starts up in fear. Carlos, by this time recovering from the effect of the opiate, contrives to get out of the sofa, and his father, meeting him in the dark, utters a cry of alarm, which terrifies the Doctor and Inez, and attracts the neighbors. Mutual explanations take place, and Isabella and Carlos prove to have been loving at cross-purposes, as they were, from the first, intended for each other by their respective parents.

A SICKENING SPECTACLE.—A quite well dressed woman was making her way, afoot, along the north side of the public park about four o'clock yesterday afternoon, when she fell heavily forward upon the frozen ground, causing her nose to bleed profusely and bruising her face. Cause why? She was beastly drunk. A small boy sight or ten years old, evidently her own, was with her, toting along as best he could a fancy chair. The woman picked herself up and staggered around in a very unsightly manner, crying and making all sorts of demonstrations, when two men of her acquaintance came along, procured an express wagon, got her and the boy aboard and drove them to their home, we know not where, in the country. She appeared to think a good deal of her boy, who nestled down close beside her on the bottom of the wagon, for she patted his face and brushed away the little fellow's tears in an affectionate, though somewhat maudlin way.

The spectacle was a novel one, apparently; for a good share of the city quickly gathered about the place where the woman was helped into the wagon, all looking and gaping with all their eyes and with lower jaws, instead of beards, upon their bosoms. Curiosity is a great thing, and some dog-fight will at any time draw away a crowd from attending upon the words of never so eloquent a man.

CHEESE MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION.—The Ohio State Cheese Manufacturers' Association will meet at 11 o'clock this forenoon in Lyman's Block, near the County Court House. The object for which the Association was organized, is the protection of the interests of dairymen. Various topics will come up for discussion in the meeting. It is expected that there will be a large representation of those in the dairy interest from all parts of the State.

In the evening X. A. Willard, Esq., of Little Falls, New York, will deliver an address in the same place. We understand that Mr. Williams, President of the New York State Cheese Manufacturers' Association, is in the city. The convention will be in session to-day and to-morrow.

GREAT BILLIARD MATCH TO-NIGHT.—The much talked of billiard match for the championship of Ohio, and the golden cue, will take place at the Academy of Music this evening. The contestants will be John Frawley, of this city, the present champion, and Charles W. Davis, of Cincinnati. Besides the championship of the State, a purse of $500 is to be played for.

A great deal of interest has been taken in the game, which, from the acknowledged skill of both players, will be no ordinary one. The ticket office will be open from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M.

SLEIGHING.—There was an uninterrupted fall of snow all day, yesterday, though not heavy, and there was a sufficient accumulation in the course of the afternoon to justify a few cutters in making their appearance. Unless strong reinforcements should have been received last night, we shall hardly be able to bring to-day, on our sleighing facilities, privileges and blessings.

CAN THE LEOPARD CHANGE HIS SPOTS?—Our readers in the city have not forgotten Mr. A. Montpelier, who kept the "Varieties" here some months ago. He has turned up in New York, and is mean as ever, as the following squib from a metropolitan journal of recent date shows:

"Mr. Montpelier, the French gentleman from the West, who came to this city and opened the Varieties in the Bowery, and failed to make it pay, and afterward reopened it as the National Circus, with a quadroone company, established on the plan of poor patronage. On that evening he told all the company to call at the box office on Monday morning, the 8th, and get their salaries. Monday morning came, and the actors were on hand waiting for Montpelier, but nary a "Montpelier" showed up. There stood the actors, waiting patiently, some with carpet bags in their hands, others with bundles; there also were the poor scrub women and others who had toiled for the manager, and had not received their "equiv." As the time wore on, and no signs of Montpelier showing up, curses loud and deep were lying round very loose, for the benefit of what the boys called the big fat parlevous."

DIED.

RANDERSON—Robert Randerson, at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, January 23d, Age, 18 years.

Funeral from Hanover Street M. E. Church, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, (Wednesday) Jan. 24th.

The deceased was for many years a consistent member of the M. E. Church, and died in peace.

Friends of the family are invited to attend the funeral.

LOCAL NOTICES.

An Immense Emigration.—An immense emigration will pour down into the Southern States with the restoration of peace. Thousands of Southern refugees, from all the towns and cities of the North, will return, some thousands of Northern soldiers will move in the same direction, and settle, in the closest bonds of union, among their Southern brethren; and, in obedience to the laws of demand and supply, thousands of Northern farmers, mechanics, and laborers, will swell the mighty volume for the repeopling and rebuilding the waste places of "the sunny South." In anticipation of this grand diversion of the tide of emigration, and the increasing demands upon them, the proprietors of HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS are putting up additional thousands of boxes of their universally popular tonic and alterative.

We have the testimony of soldiers, sailors, travelers, trappers, miners, emigrants, refugees, farmers and planters, North and South, "a cloud of witnesses," that as a safe and reliable remedial agent, and as a protection against all the complaints incident to exposure, privations, changes of climate, diet, water, and habits of life, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, used as directed, answer their weight in gold, North or South.—[Communicated.]

It is also proper to state that the Bitters are sold exclusively in glass, and never under any circumstances by the gallon or the barrel. Impostors and imitators are abroad, and the only safeguard the public has against them is to see that the Bitters they buy
