Streets Repaired.

A good many prominent city streets, both business and residence, which were Sloughs of Despond last winter during the extensive efforts of Jupiter Pluvius, and which were ordered to be paved, but were not, became badly worn out during the summer season, and until now contained many mudholes and other dangerous places. It is said to the credit of the authorities, that all of these places are being graveled. Two bad places on Turner street have been raised to the grade. Three bad mudholes on Alameda street, between Requena and First, and about twenty each on Main, Temple and Spring streets, have been filled up. A number of bad places in Aliso street have also been repaired, as have two on Wilmington street. This ought to have been accomplished a long time ago, but it is better late than never, and the good work should go on.

POLITICAL.

Meetings of the Outside Parties Last Night.

The Butlerites, St. John Men, Independents and Hoodlums Gather Around the Court House and Entertain Curious Crowds.

Last evening as there were no meetings of the two political parties, the members of the various tickets shows took occasion to whoop 'er up all along the line. Lively was no name for it, and the old court house got a dose of variegated wind, from all sides, that it will not soon recover from.

The Republicans, with the liberality exhibited by them just before an election, had placed their stand at the disposal of the Butler adherents. A fife and drum opened up, and soon a crowd gathered. Major Isaac Kinley, candidate for Congress on the Butler ticket, was the first speaker. He arose and surveyed the sea of faces complacently. Just then Capt. Janes commenced a Del Valle speech on the east steps of the Court House, and the ungrateful audience deserted Major Kinley in the twinkling of an eye, and Captain Janes found himself speaking to the largest crowd of his life. The crowd stayed by the Captain and cheered so long as he spoke for Del Valle, but when he commenced to advocate the claims of Janes his crowd left him and wandered back to the G. R.'s, where the fiery Bunch, without a collar, was assaulting the English language and vociferously calling on a Times reporter to buy him a suit of clothes. The utter absurdity and wild improbability of a reporter having money enough to buy even a paper suit of clothes was too much for the audience and a greater part of it drifted around to the north side of the court house, in front of the Volks Hall saloon, where the chilly St. John men were having a pow-wow. Rev. F. D. Mather, of Pomona, was the first speaker. Mr. Mather is

"A little fat man with a little round belly
That shakes when he laughs like a bowl full of jelly."

He made a really excellent speech and the adjacent saloon did a large amount of business. The saloon was so convenient, however, that the audience lost little of Mr. Mathers' speech. An interested St. John man could slip in and get a glass of beer and be back in time to catch the next sentence.

Mr. Mather was lengthy, so when the resonant voice of "Rough and Ready," the G. B. candidate for the Assembly floated over the Court House from the Butler stand the fickle crowd got back in time to hear him begin a tirade against County Clerk Potts, and a laudation of Charley Dunsmoor. The cry "He has met Dunsmoor's sack," was raised throughout the crowd. It is said that in the late Butler Convention Ready was in favor of Mr. Potts being endorsed by that body. His change of heart was sudden. His remarks about the salaries the clerks "has" been getting, called to mind his short career as a clerk in the Court House. He also paid his respects to the "subsidized" press. He mentioned the name of a man named Mackey, who is a candidate on the Butler ticket, and some rash man clapped his hands. The man was promptly arrested for disturbing the peace.

Col. Sam Hellner, who was on the stand, was loudly called for and gracefully stepped to the front of the stage, made one of his best bows and opened his mouth. Just then S. A. Waldron seized the valiant Colonel and yanked him back and took his place. The crowd at this manifested so much disapproval that Mr. Waldron said, "You expected to hear hard words from me, but if you don't keep still you will feel hard blows." At this war-like statement the people near the stand dodged back, and Mr. Waldron entered on the discussion of the tariff question, which his long experience as a school teacher had made him perfectly familiar with. His remarks were received with such long continued applause that Major Hamilton, of the First Ward, arose and threatened to send for a United States Deputy Marshal. A death-like stillness immediately prevaded the crowd.

While Mr. Waldron was groping his way in the dense tariff fog, the crowd strayed back to the temperance meeting, where the great, good and only Will D. Gould was rending the atmosphere. Will is also a candidate for Congress and will bet a pint of but he milk he polls more votes than Kinley. There was quite a sprinkling of ladies present during Will's speech and a suspicion prevails that he stands in with the fair Belva.

By this time Waldron had finished and Hellner, Hazard and Ryan took possession of the Butler stand. A member of the cock-eyed party arose and stated that the Butlerites were in no wise responsible for the speeches about to be made, and the thirteen members indignantly withdrew, claiming that Republican hoodlums had broken up the meeting. This statement was pretty nearly true, and great surprise was expressed at Hazar's action. Many of the friends of both Hazard and Ryan tried to get them off the stand, but they obstinately refused to leave.

These two orators spoke a duet, as it were, That is they were both up and gesticulating, and with mouths wide open, at the same time. The din kept up by the crowd was so great that nothing they said could be heard. It is to be hoped that a special joint discussion will be arranged out on the Arroyo Seco for Ryan and Hazard, and that another political meeting will not have to be broken up to give them a chance to air their peculiar views before the people.

This ended the meetings of the Butlerites, the St. John men, the Janes party and the R. & H. outfit. It was the night of the special parties, and they certainly made the best of it. It is not true that the Butler men will try to break up the Republican meeting tonight out of revenge.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Second Annual Entertainment, Literary, Musical and Terpsichorean.

The second annual entertainment of the Knights of Labor of Los Angeles Lodge No. 2405 was given last night at Bryson's Hall on Spring street, and was attended by a large and intelligent audience.

The music, which was of the best description, was under the direction of Prof. Lenzberg, and after a delightful overture, was followed by the

The programme was full of gems and received with great favor by the audience. At the conclusion of this part of the exercises a dancing programme was carried out in twelve numbers. The dancing was preceded by a grand march, composed for the occasion and dedicated to the K. of L.

Much of the complete success of the entertainment was due to the untiring services of the following ladies and gentlemen:

Reception Committee—R. W. Ready, Jos. Tiley, C. B. Caufield, Miss Carrie Price, E. M. Hamilton, J. Neubauer, Miss Susie Johnson, Miss Wright.

Floor Manager—J. Syl. Sullivan.

Floor Committee—Chas. Pillian, Mrs. J. Neubauer, Chas. A. Stevens, A. C. Smith, Miss Mamie Smith.

The joyous party broke up at a late hour, well pleased with their annual reunion.

A Pleasant Banquet.

A very pleasant affair took place last evening, the occasion being a banquet given by Mr. R. H. Hewitt, Secretary of the Agricultural Association, and T. A. Garey, Superintendent of the Pavilion, to the Directors and officers, as a wind up to the Annual Fair. The entertainment was given at Bob Eckert's restaurant, and that is sufficient to say it was in excellent style. Twelve plates were laid, the following gentlemen being present: Wm. H. Workman, President; E. F. Spence, Treasurer; L. Lichtenberger, N. C. Carter, Mr. Unruh, manager of E. J. Baldwin's ranch, George Rice, Isaac S. Smith, A. N. Hamilton, the Times, T. A. Garey, R. H. Hewitt, and a representative of the HERALD. After the good things in the edible line were discussed to a satisfactory conclusion, toasts were in order, with Mr. Garey as master of ceremonies. The first toast on the list was to the officers of the association, responded to by President Workman in a pleasant and kindly manner. The second, to the directors, was responded to by Mr. Lichtenberger, who answered for the manifold annoyances the directors have long been subjected to, and the manifold difficulties met and overcome. In the course of his remarks Mr. Lichtenberger took occasion to refer to the cloud hanging over the Association in the suit now pending in Court, to prevent the attempt being consummated to deprive the Association and the public of the valuable park property and its diversion to private parties; this is one thing which is a great drag to success. The next toast was to the agricultural, horticultural and industrial interests of the district; responded to by Mr. Geo. Rice. Following this came a toast to the press, with a pleasant reference to its service in such enterprises. Mr. E. F. Spence made response to the toast offered to the treasurer in a very cordial and hearty manner. Mr. Garey answered to the toast to the future owners of the Association. The toast to the secretary was responded to by Mr. Hewitt. After this a general freedom of conversation and jest was indulged in, the company separating at midnight after enjoying an exceedingly agreeable evening.

The Wine Trade of Los Angeles.

The market continues good and shipments are steady to the Eastern and interior cities. Mr. E. J. Baldwin, last week, shipped to New York 10,000 gallons of his Santa Anita wines, and Stern & Rose are making regular shipments to Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and other cities. B. Dreyfus & Co. are steadily shipping to New York and New Orleans. The San Gabriel winery is doing a good tradeat satisfactory rates. Other houses are also sharing in the advantages of the trade.

This cheerful state of trade is very encouraging to vineyardists, and plans are already laid to plant a large number of vines during the coming winter. Mr. J. DeBarth Shorb, Mr. E. J. Baldwin, and Mr. W. N. Monroe in the San Gabriel Valley alone, will plant 500,000 vines during the coming winter. This is but a part of the plant of the county of Los Angeles for 1885, which, with a fair rainfall, will aggregate 2,000,000 vines, mostly of foreign varieties. It is also very pleasant to notice that the young wines made from foreign vines are most excellent, showing clearly that a great advance has been made in the business of vinegrowing, and that still greater improvements will be made in the future. Los Angeles is every year attaining a higher position as a wine center and will soon rival Bordeaux.

ELLIS VILLA COLLEGE.

A Coachman Defends the Reverend D. W. Hanna.

Last evening a young gentleman, with a pale blue necktie and a strong English accent, entered the HERALD editorial rooms and asked for the religious and educational editor. Being referred to the gentleman who, in connection with his duties as race reporter, attends to these matters, the young man said, "I am a coachman." The reporter, having no wealthy daughters, was not a whit alarmed at this statement, and bravely met the fascinating eye of the gallant coachman. "I have called in to correct a statement in this morning's HERALD about my friend Hanna, of the Ellis Villa College. I am coachman for Mrs. Hoadly, a wealthy lady from the East and a great friend of Mr. Ellis. She boards at the College and I live out there. Mrs. Lassague caused a good deal of trouble and the girls didn't like her. Mr. Hanna tried to get her to leave, but she wouldn't do it, as she was engaged for a year. Mr. Hanna did not strike her, but merely pushed her out of the hall."

"The music teacher said that Ellis caused the whole trouble with Hanna, and that Ellis was mad because she refused to sing any more in the church choir until she had been paid for the last month's singing. "Now nobody hired me to come here. I just did it for Mr. Hanna, as he is a nice man and is nearly broken-hearted over this affair. Mr. Hanna did not strike Mrs. Lassague, but he would have struck her if he had not been so good-natured. She called him a liar and a scoundrel. Mr. Ellis and Mrs. Lassague used to be good friends, and I guess they fell out about her singing. I don't know of any other cause for their disagreement."

This young man who gave the name of Hamilton, insisted that he came to this office of his own free will, and merely to help Mr. Hanna. He also left a communication which embodies the facts given above. It would seem that the reverend gentleman is a little short on friends when the coachman is the only man to appear in his defense.

The coachman has an eye for female beauty and is extremely well satisfied with his position as a member of the happy Ellis Villa College family. The religious reporter having heard of the elopement of a Miss Morosini, a wealthy New York girl, with a coachman lately, was disposed to exchange jobs with the good looking young handler of the reins but the proposition was rejected with scorn.

The case of The People against D. W. Hanna, charged with battery on Mrs. Emilie Lassague, has been postponed to November the 10th, when no doubt the whole facts will come out. The sympathy of the people at present is decidedly on the side of the lady, but it is to be hoped that the gallant defense of the coachman will set the lide in favor of the Reverend Mr. Hanna.

It seems that financial troubles are also environing the Ellis Villa College, as on yesterday Thomas Stovell filed a mechanic's lien against the college building and grounds to the amount of $10,440.99.

Raisins in Fresno.

The rapid march made in the development of the State is well illustrated by the remarkable progress made by all the well managed colonies of the State in the business of fruit growing, curing and canning. Among other settlements that of Fresno has done nobly. Concerning progress in that settlement the Fresno Republican says: "The raisin crop of Hunter's Vineyard is much larger than expected, eighteen thousand boxes being the first estimate. Twelve thousand boxes have already been stored, and the whole crop is estimated to reach 23,000 boxes. The smaller and inferior raisins will be sent in bulk to St. Louis to be used for flavoring St. Louis wine made of fox grapes. The best part of the crop will be packed after the Spanish style, in boxes with all the gorgeous paraphernalia of chromos, gilt paper, lacework and all such fancy fixings, which the Eastern trade demands. During his eastern trip Mr. Butler made a thorough study of the raisin trade and its demands, and his ambition is now to produce the Twelve-crown Dehiza brand, which bring $20 per box of twenty pounds, or $1 per pound.

RAISINA VINEYARD.

The Raisina Vineyard, owned by T. C. White, is one of the best managed, best kept and in every way the best in the country. During our visit four thousand trays of dried Gordo Blancos were already in the sweating-house, in large boxes. As many more trays were in the field drying. The crop this year was altogether the largest ever gathered and every way highly satisfactory. The raisins were fine, large, evenly corrugated and exhibited none of those flat patches so common with inferior raisins. The absence of rain has been very favorable to the sun-drying process; indeed, few seasons have been better.

HEDGEROW VINEYARD.

The next vineyard in size is the Hedgerow Vineyard, owned by Miss M. F. Austin. This vineyard is just now attracting much attention on account of the new fruit dryer erected here and the experiments performed in drying grapes by evaporation and moderate heat. The dryer is the Schmidt Mammoth Dryer, as we understand, a new California invention. The dryer consists of a furnace, a drying room and a perpendicularly situated fan wheel. Every charge of the dryer is twenty tons of fresh grapes. One charge has been dried very successfully. The time occupied was three days, but judging from the condition of the raisins we think four days would have been better. The raisins are of rather lighter color than the sun dried. The corrugation was even and fine and the taste splendid, without any taste of the "cooked" flavor so common in evaporated raisins, or even in those dried at a too high solar heat. We also saw some prunes which were very fine but also hardly sufficiently dried. We have the greatest hope that this dryer will prove a practical success, as it would enable our raisin makers to get their crop to the market fourteen days earlier than the raisin crop from Spain.

Local Whaling Business.

The whales of the Pacific Ocean seem to be in love with the Pacific Coast, and are hugging it very closely from San Francisco to San Diego, and are running very near to land. Hundreds of these sea-going animals, which are warm-blooded and not fishes, are now within the reach of hunters of that game. From San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara expeditions have been successful, but from San Pedro but little effort has been made.

Mr. T. J. Higgins, formerly of this city, engaged in the pork packing business, has concluded to go into the cutting of larger game than that of porkers, and is making arrangements to catch and kill whales for a season.

Concerning this project, the San Diego Sun says: "Mr. T. J. Higgins has returned from San Francisco, where he secured the services of two of the best whalemen on this coast, and a full crew. Boats, guns, etc., will be in readiness to occupy the old whaling grounds near Ballast Point, and commence operations about the middle of November. Mr. Higgins means business and says that he intends to make up for lost time in the whaling enterprise."

Reward for T. W. Cover.

A reward has been offered of $1000 for the recovery of T. W. Cover if alive or for his body if dead. Mr. Cover, who was widely known in Los Angeles, was lost on the Colorado Desert, in the county of San Diego, on the 22d of September last. He was last seen about twenty miles east of Helm's cañon. If he died a natural death the sands might have drifted over and covered him in a short time, but they may have been off again before this time. If uncovered, the coyotes would have scattered his remains long ago. It is quite likely that his remains will not be found unless they are in possession of Indians who are holding him for a reward. The fate of a bold, strong, experienced prospector should be a warning to others not to go prospecting on the deserts alone.

Republicans at Wilmington.

EDITOR HERALD: The Republicans held a great mass meeting last night in the hall at this place, when the people turned out en masse to hear the great speaker of the evening, Hon. Tom Fitch, who, I am sorry to say, made a very poor impression. No one doubts his ability as a speaker, but his doctrine is very shallow, more fit for a variety show than for good, sound judgment.

Col. Markham made another of his go-as-you-please speeches, and promised to do everything for this district, if elected. Hon. R. F. Del Valle and party left a good impression behind them here, and I think that the Republicans may well be afraid of this section of the county, which is for Cleveland and Hendricks and the whole county and local ticket. Martin Murphy.

Nearly all the old residents of the coast counties have known Martin Murphy, of Santa Clara, who came overland to California with his father, brother and his wife and four small sons, in 1844, being the first family of white persons that ever crossed the plains to California. The readers of the HERALD must bear in mind that then there was no trail, no overland road, no guide but the silent sun and the stars. There were rivers without fords or bridges, forests without paths and infested by wild beasts and savage Indians, while mountain chains had to be climbed and descended. Such a trip would be a foundation for a romance. It was a trip that but few would dare to take, but these brave sons of the county of Wexford, the Emerald Isle, fought and cut the way for civilization to cross the continent. After settling near where Fort Sutter was afterwards established, the family removed to Santa Clara, where the leader, Martin, has ever since resided till the day of his death, which occurred last week. The Murphy family, James, Martin J., Patrick W., Bernard W., and James, the brother of Martin, have been a part of the political history of California for the past thirty-five years, and no State Convention of the Democratic party was complete without some member of this family being present. With wise forethought the family invested its lands in several counties from Santa Barbara to San Francisco, which are now worth millions of dollars. James T. Murphy, it will be remembered, is now one of the Cleveland and Hendricks Electors. Some member of this remarkable family has been continually in some honored office of the State for many years, and when the head and leader of the number is taken away, it is fitting that a recapitulation of his character and services should be mentioned. It is impossible to separate the history of this family from the entire history of the common wealth, for no one would do it if he could or could do it if he would. A brave man has gone to rest.

Go Where You Will,

The great demand for the "Gum Tree Cough Syrup," which is made from eucalyptus, proves it superior to other cough remedies that make you sick to take them. C. F.
