THE RAT-CATCHER OF PARA.

The Boa Constrictor of Brazil and the Work He Does.

[Para Cor. Pittsburgh Chronicle.]

The rat-catcher of Para is not a cat, an owl, a ferret, a compound of Wire and Strychnine, a paste of poison, a terrier, nor an exhibitious boy with a borrowed shotgun and the fragments of three fingers on his left hand and otherwise mutilated and disfigured for life, but the boa of the country, the Giboa, or boa constrictor. A great serpent is left at large in many of the stores and warehouses and in several of the residences. During the day it coils itself in the cellar into the likeness of a section of hawser in the hold of a vessel; or lies in the store-room behind the bales and boxes in the similitude of a discarded stove-pipe; or it loops itself among the rafters of the garret into the semblance of a Brobdingnagian Bologna sausage hung up to dry; as harmless as the usual serpent of monstrous size depicted in glowing colors on the swaying sign of canvas at the door of the side show to a traveling circus in the United States.

At night, however, when all good people of the city are suspended in their hammocks, the ratter awakes and takes possession of the building from the foundation to the roof-tree, and the ease and expedition with which the legless incarnation of longitude goes up and down the stairs, and under, around, and about the chairs and tables, in the pursuit of rats and mice and such small game, is something marvelous for the bats and bug bears and other night-seers and flyers to behold—I imagine, from all I have heard. Presumably, many a time and oft, the head of a family, in getting out of his hammock, stepping upon the cool body of his rat-catcher in the darkness in the instant of his misapprehension that it is the corpse of one of his numerous progeny that has succumbed in the night to one of the myriad diseases incident to childhood and Para, and tumbled on on the floor.

Presumably, also, now and then, the chief clerk returning late from the club and staggering up to his swinging and very uncertain couch, and falling across it, gets his sprawling hands against the very substance of the serpent in his delirium, to convince him of the error of his ways at once and work a reformation in his habits in the course of time. Presumably, also, occasionally, during a dearth of rats and mice, a member of the family disappears mysteriously, leaving nothing behind him out of which a surmise of the smallest quantity of soothing syrup can be cooked by the survivors, except his hat and other nowday apparel. But I have not heard of the occurrence of any such accident in reality, and the serpent may be set down in truth as a remedy for rats as safe as any in use in any other part of the world, except China, where the people are their own rat catchers—every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost; and where, to make assurance doubly sure and take a bond on fate, John Chinaman, after killing a rat, cooks and eats it.

But after all, when it is considered the grand role the serpent has played in many of the religions of the globe, receiving divine honors in more than one country at the hands of untold millions, it is tough on one of the most magnificent species the world has ever seen to take it down from the temple of worship and put it to catching rats in a warehouse. But this is an iconoclastic age; and the serpent is not the only god that has succumbed to Mammon.

A little boy was last week sent by express from Boston to Pittsburgh. Little children, however, can't be too careful how they express themselves.

IS RECOMMENDED BY ALL PHYSICIANS as a Blood Purifying Liquid. It is a sure remedy for Dyspepsia or Chills and Fever, and especially for all Kidney and Liver Complaints. IS THE GREATEST DISCOVERY OF THE AGE. Extracted in a pure compound of all the choicest Tropical Fruits and put up expressly for Medical and Family Use. Families and invalids should always be provided with a bottle of SIMMONDS' EXTRACT OF TROPICAL FRUIT. It is good for Sour Stomach, Sick Headache and all Stomach Troubles. Also Billiousness and Dyspepsia, and acts as a light purgative. No necessity for taking a strong Cathartic. The best physicians recommend it to everybody, particularly recommended by the faculty for Ladies Complaints. Extracted from the following Tropical Fruits: Pineapple, Orange, Mango, Papaulla, Banana, Tamarind.

MALARIAL DISEASES OF ALL KINDS SPEEDILY YIELD TO THE POWERFUL ACTION. NOTHING EQUALS IT AS AN APPETIZER.

Its tonic properties are grand, and it renews wasted vitality and rejuvenates the system. Try it and become convinced. None genuine except my signature is across the cork. G. SIMMONDS.

Kept by leading druggists and grocers.
