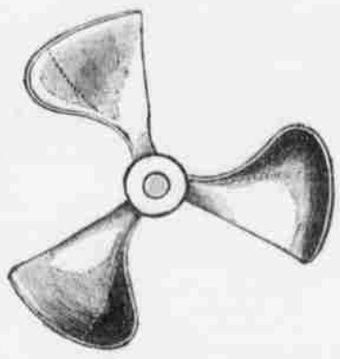
EAGLE WING PROPELLER.



Triumph in Mechanical Art!

In addition to the form of the Helicoidal Screw, a concave or pulling surface formed by a union of easy curves, and rearward curves, which not only avoids a central portion, or slip, but draws the water in from the circumference of the helix, causing a

Compacted Discharge Directly Aft.

In trial contests with the best forms of Navy and Tug Screws, it has shown a SUPERIOR EFFICIENCY, ranging from 16 to 25 Per Cent.

The EAGLE WING now on the New York Herald Steam Yacht, with an equal or less engine power gives THREE MILES PER HOUR SUPERIOR SPEED; and, in doing so, revolved not as many per minute, whilst the revolutions of the True Screw were 37.

Owners of Vessels

Using this Propeller, can, as they choose, maintain their present speed with

20 to 25 Per Cent. Less Fuel;

Or, with the same fuel, attain the above per cent of higher speed.

ITS USE APPLIES TO

Light Draught River Steamers

As well as to
