PLANS WAIKIKI BEACH CAMPAIGN

Marston Campbell Thinks Work Can Be Done at Only Small Cost.

PRISON LABOR CAN BE USED

A Few Thousand Dollars Will Be Needed to Secure Skilled Workmen.

Superintendent Marston Campbell has thrown himself enthusiastically into the fight to make of Waikiki beach the beautiful and popular resort that the beach is capable of being made. He is leaving for Kauai this evening, but he says that when he returns, next Sunday, he will immediately set about drawing up a plan of campaign and working out a line of action to be followed.

Mr. Campbell believes that the work can be done largely by prison labor. But, he says, a certain amount of money will be required. With $3000 or $4000 to use, the beach can be cleaned up, the coral removed from the bathing places, and Honolulu's famous pleasure resort made one of the finest in the world.

"The hotels will certainly come in and do their share," said Mr. Campbell yesterday. "It would be too much to ask them to do it all, but they should do their share, and I think the money can be raised to carry out the work. This is a campaign that should be kept up until Waikiki beach is made what it should be.

"Personally I almost never go swimming at the beach myself. When I first came down to the Islands, it was with great anticipation of the fun I should have swimming at Waikiki. Soon after I arrived, I and several of my friends went out to one of the hotels, put on our bathing suits, and I made a rush for the water. I cut my foot badly on a piece of coral the very first crack out of the box, and I right then and there lost all desire to do any more swimming at Waikiki.

"I think that most of the work of clearing out the coral can be done by prison labor, and I believe that arrangements can be made with High Sheriff Henry to supply the labor. I will take the matter up with him in a day or two and see what can be done.

"But the prisoners cannot do all the work. They cannot be depended upon to handle powder. They can be used for drilling the holes for the charges, but there must be some skilled free labor, and this is what will take the money. It won't take a great deal, though, and it seems to me that some way should be found to raise it."

Superintendent Campbell does not believe that a dredge can be operated to advantage in the work, on account of the fact that it would take out the sand as well as the coral.

Mr. Campbell has expressed the belief that the removal of the coral is not all that is needed. The beach itself should be cleaned up and kept clean, instead of allowing seaweed to collect on it and rot and permitting broken bottles and old tin cans to endanger the feet of the bathers.

CAVALRY INVADE COURTHOUSE

Soldiers Are Called as Witnesses Before Grand Jury in Liquor Case.

It looked yesterday about the corridors of the judiciary building as if martial law had been declared and the soldiers had taken possession. This, however, was only the case, the contingent from Fort Shafter who were present having been summoned as witnesses before the federal grand jury in a liquor case.

Just what the case is the officials, of course, could not state, the grand jury being still busy with the matter. The soldiers themselves, however, have been camping in the hills back of the city, and it is reported that the soldiers know more or less about the matter. Eben Parker Ayres, who was one of the witnesses called before the grand jury, is a member of Company A, Twenty-first Infantry, and is stationed at Schofield Barracks. Ayres is a member of the Hawaiian band, and is a musician of some local fame. Ayres was called to testify before the grand jury in a liquor case.

Other witnesses called before the grand jury were Sergeant Major Lewis of the Twenty-first Infantry, Sergeant Major Lewis of the Twenty-first Infantry, Sergeant Major Lewis of the Twenty-first Infantry,
