AWAIT ARRIVAL OF SEC. WILSON

Cabinet Officer Expected to Straighten Out Coast Phone Trouble.

San Francisco, Nov. 5.—The telephone strike situation in Los Angeles was declared "critical" today by John Morgenthaler, president of the Pacific district council of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. He indicated that organized employes of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company there "might" follow the example of operators and electricians in Pacific northwest cities, who are on strike, despite orders to the contrary issued by brotherhood officials, pending settlement of the wage controversy, now in the hands of Secretary of Labor Wilson and other members of the president's mediation commission, at present in Arizona.

Waiting for Wilson.

Further moves in the negotiations to effect adjustment of the trouble which last week threatened to paralyze the company's service in Pacific coast states and which led Federal Mediator Verner Z. Reed to recommend that the government commandeer the plant and employes of the corporation "as a measure of national defense" were to be left to Secretary Wilson when he arrives here. Reed announced that negotiations had failed because of the company's refusal to recognize girl operators' unions.

Meanwhile representatives of the organized employes now on strike in Seattle, Portland, Tacoma and other northwest cities, resumed efforts to induce the workers to return pending final settlement.

W. F. De Laney, delegate from Seattle unions, left here last night to attend a joint meeting of delegates from northwest cities effected in Tacoma late today, where plans were to be discussed, according to reports received here, for forming a separate northwest union organization to carry on the strike.

Some were of the opinion that it was just over Butte.

W. J. M'CLAIN WILL GET ANOTHER COURT HEARING

Judge Bourquin of the federal district court today ordered reopened the sentence of W. J. McLain, who was last week sentenced to six months in jail on pleading guilty to a charge of embezzling money from the mails.

According to the announcement from the court a mistake was made in the sentencing of McLain, it being understood at the time that the man was guilty of two charges instead of two counts in one indictment. The time for re-sentencing McLain will be set later. The man was ordered released on bond until the naming of time for the new sentence.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harrington of 810 Placer street gave a dinner at their home last night in honor of Harry McCrimmon, who is here from his home in Alaska.

ARCH SPY OF NORTHWEST IS ARRESTED IN BUTTE

the mine troubles of last summer, it is declared that the man is not known to have had any conection with the work of Carl Pohl, Prussian, whose activities in Butte caused his internment about one month ago. Schutze, according to the information given out today, was more in the nature of an organizer of secret service men in the German employ.

Papers and Photographs.

Among the effects seized by the department of justice agents was a bundle of small steel files, fire arms, German government papers and photographs. The department of justice refuses to make public the nature of the documents seized or a detailed account of the articles found in the man's possession. That the government has been very eager to obtain Schutze's arrest is shown by the fact that secret service men were furnished with his photographs and descriptions and his history. It is known that Schutze was born in Leipsic, Germany, in 1885. Department of justice agents say it is without doubt that Schutze is "connected with the German army."

Another fact tending to prove the importance of the arrest made in Butte, is that Schutze is confined in neither the city nor county jail.

Take No Chances.

"We are taking no chance with the man. He is not in the local jails, but he is certainly in a safe place," was the explanation given out today from the federal building.

When Schutze was arrested he refused to give his name, and for some time denied the name under which he was arrested. It is understood, however, that the man later made some sort of a statement or admission, the nature of which is not given out.

"Schutze's arrest came after long work on the part of the department of justice," said secret service men today. "My Byrn will not be able for some time, if at all, to divulge the whole story of the man's operations in this country. Upon this case hinges the investigation into a great spy system, and little can now be given to the public, except that the man is certainly a German spy."

Schutze is held for a technical violation of section one of the president's proclamation of April 6, which forbids Germans to have fire arms in their possession.

FEDERATION LOSES PROPERTY CLAIM

Federal Court Renders Decision in Favor of Butte Miners' Union.

San Francisco, Nov. 5.—The Western Federation of Miners lost claim to lands and holdings in the Butte Miners' union valued at approximately $100,000 in a decision handed down here today by the United States circuit court of appeals, affirming judgment of the United States district court at Denver, Colo.

Charles H. Moyer, president of the federation, and two officers, Ernest Miller and C. E. Mahoney, contended in an action filed in the Denver courts that the Butte Miners' union sought to evade return of property and holdings as specified in a charter granted it by the federation.

The decision referred to above involves the ownership of property in Leeds, S. D. The case was argued before the court of appeals some time ago in San Francisco. There is also an appeal pending before the court of appeals in San Francisco involving the ownership of the Butte Miners' union hall property in this city. It is possible the decision given today may also apply to the case of the local property.

MANY HONORS FOR THE LAST QUOTA

DIFFICULT TO MAKE BOTH ENDS MEET

What a Survey of Living Conditions in the Capital Disclosed.

The Post's Washington Bureau.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 5.—"Shocking" is the term used by the bureau of labor statistics in describing the economic dependency of the rank and file of people living at the nation's capital and how hard they are put to it to make tongue and buckle meet financially.

There is a notion throughout the country that Washington is one of the richest cities in the world and it is true that many millionaires and multi-millionaires live here in fine palaces. But it is equally true, as the department of labor through its bureau of labor statistics has found out, that the high cost of living has made tremendous inroads at the national capital until a condition has resulted among persons of ordinary incomes that is positively shocking.

Last December congress by resolution directed the department of labor to make an investigation into the cost of living in the District of Columbia and report its conclusions to congress. The investigation is now completed. Schedules were obtained from 1,481 white families and from 629 colored families, so distributed as to be representative of the city as a whole. The conclusions reached by the investigation, now made public for the first time, are as follows:

"This little summary reveals a shocking state of economic dependency. Just how much is needed for the support of a normal family in moderate comfort is difficult to estimate. Previous studies indicate that in a large city the barest minimum upon which existence for a normal family can be maintained upon a level of common decency cannot be less than $900 or $1,000. Such a sum, moreover, is estimated to permit of nothing more than the creature necessities. To maintain a real family life upon the much eulogized 'American standard of living' would certainly demand a considerably larger sum.

"It is startling, therefore, to learn that in the capital of the nation in a year of unprecedented high prices 807 or 38 per cent of the 2,110 families investigated had yearly incomes of less than $900 and 1,295 families, or 61 per cent, had incomes of less than $1,200 a year. For families receiving less than $900 per year the family household averaged 4.4 members and the net family (that is, excluding boarders and lodgers) averaged 3.4 members; for families receiving less than $1,200 the corresponding averages were 4.6 and 3.5.

"The negroes fared worse than the whites. Out of 629 negro families 180, or nearly 29 per cent, were obliged to try to keep body and soul together on less than $600 a year and 472, or no less than three-quarters of the total, lived on less than $900. Among white families conditions were better, but not vastly so. Out of 1,481 such families there were 65 who had less than $600 to keep them through the year while no less than 355, or nearly 23 per cent, existed on less than $900 and 710, or almost one-half, had less than $1,200 a year. Further, it is of interest to note that in 211 cases (83 white and 128 negro) the family was aided by gifts of second-hand clothing. This is a form of charity which is usually accepted only under the pressure of severe need.

"The pinch of economic distress among a large proportion of families is also clearly indicated by the fact that almost one-third of the families, both white and negro, finished the year with deficits. Whether these deficits were due in part to the extraordinary price advances of 1916 or whether they represent the chronic condition of so many families cannot be determined from the facts gathered during the survey. In any case, in that particular year (1916), only 520 of the total of 2,110 families, 24.6 per cent, were able to show a surplus. The best that 964, or 45.7 per cent, could do was to come out even and 626, or 29.7 per cent, wound up the year with deficits.

"The deficits stand out with particular prominence in the low income groups. Most of these families lived literally from hand to mouth. About the best they could hope for was to come out even. Out of the total of 507 families having incomes under $900 only 81 (49 white and 32 negro) showed a balance of income over expenditure at the end of the year."

UNCLE SAM MAY REQUEST CHILDREN GIVE PENNIES

New York, Nov. 5.—New York faces a famine in pennies and the shortage has proved so embarrassing to Martin Vogel, assistant treasurer of the United States, that he is considering an appeal to the city's children to empty their savings banks in order to increase the number in circulation.

Ordinarily the government carries 10,000,000 pennies in stock at the subtreasury in Wall street, but the institution is now swept clear of its last copper for the first time in the recollection of the officials.

Bankers explain the sudden popularity of the penny on the ground of the increases in articles selling for odd cents. Cigars, cigarettes, milk and many other articles which used to be priced with the nickel as the unit have been advanced by a cent or two, with the result that dealers' requirements for small change have been augmented.

STRONG.

"Hasn't that man a strong face!" said Miss Gush, as she turned to look at the man who had just passed.

"He ought to have," replied Mr. Rounder. "That is K. O. Hammer, the local middleweight."

CHANCE TO RISE IN THE WORLD

New Political Job for Some Montana Man—Inspector of Explosives.

The Post's Washington Bureau.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 5.—It is time for Montana to sit up and take notice. A new job has come to town.

Is there anybody who wants to be inspector of explosives for the state of Montana? If so it behooves him to go hot-foot to see the bosses, for this is going to be strictly a political plum with no silly civil service handicaps attached to it.

Out in Indiana the inspector of explosives will be appointed by Thomas R. Marshall, vice president of the United States, who is the patronage dispenser for that state.

"Dear me; I hope it won't cause a blow-up," said Mark Thistlethwaite, the vice president's secretary, with a sigh. He added that there always has been entirely too much dynamite in the Indiana political situation and that he regretted to see any more injected.

Of course, it is possible that the name of the job may scare off some of the boys, for the name is not as attractive as the salary attached thereto. The duties appertaining to the job are reflected in the title thereof. In other words, the man who holds the offiee is to be charged with the responsibility of inspecting dynamite, nitroglycerin and other powerful explosives which are not listed in the catalogue of things for babies to play with. It is all nice and soft to hold a political job with a fat salary attached, but when it comes to running the risk of being elevated 500 feet in the air and distributed in small bits over the adjoining landscape, without benefit of clergy, why that's another matter which the boys should consider carefully.

It is possible that when the true nature of the new job becomes known there may be a great deal of bowing and scraping and a chorus of ejaculations, "After you, my dear Gaston," as each politician wishes the job on the other one. At any rate, the job is there and if the boys want to go after it and run the risk of a quick and unceremonious exit to eternity it is their privilege to do so.

The law creating this new position, passed in the closing days of the recent session of congress, follows:

"That the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, may appoint in each state and in Alaska an explosives inspector whose duty it shall be, under the direction of the director of the bureau of mines, to see that this act is faithfully executed and observed. Each such inspector shall receive a salary of $2,400 per annum. He may at any time be detailed for service by said director in the District of Columbia or in any state, territory or dependency of the United States."

This provision is tucked ... the bill which passed ... ulate the manufacture and ... plosives.
