JAIL SENTENCES FOR THE WOMEN; FINES FOR MEN

Members of "Can Rushing" Party Offer No Excuses to the Judge.

Anaconda, Nov. 22.—The party of "can rushers" assembled before Judge Daniels last evening had no excuses to offer for the disturbance of which they were accused. Joe Huot, Joe Lague and Joe Proulx, the male members of the gang, were each fined $15, which they paid. The women, Mrs. John Dugan and Josephine Gudeau, were given jail sentences of 60 and 90 days respectively.

Jesse Stokes and Arcilla Parnell, who were arrested by Chief O'Brien, attempted to condone their offense by getting married just before they appeared in court. Judge Daniels fixed a fine at $50 each upon them, but later relented and accepted fines of $12.50 each and allowed the honeymoon to proceed.

Anaconda, Nov. 22.—Coroner M. P. Mahoney has been unable to locate relatives of Fred White, the man who dropped dead on Tuesday. Nothing was found among his effects to show where he came from, and the union records did not add any information.

PRESIDENT HAMILTON TO TALK ON "BELGIUM"

Interesting Lecture Will Be Given Tonight at Daly School Gym.

Anaconda, Nov. 22.—President Hamilton of the State college at Bozeman will speak at the Daly school gymnasium tonight on the subject of "Belgium." President Hamilton's address is the third of a series of lectures on the nations in the world war. The series is being promoted by the Red Cross.

President Hamilton was in Belgium just prior to the outbreak of the world war and knows the country of which he will talk. He was much impressed with the Belgian spirit of frugality and industry. While in the country he took many notes that will be of interest now, since the little nation of Europe has been all but crushed by Prussian power.

President Hamilton is a forceful speaker, with an ability to press home his facts upon an audience. Plans are being made to care for a record crowd tonight.

ATTENDING REVIEW.

Anaconda, Nov. 22.—Camp Blethen is practically deserted today as the majority of the boys went over to Butte to take part in the parade and review in honor of Vice President Marshall.

GREAT CIVILIAN ARMY INVADES THE CAPITAL

Problem Presented in Washington on Care of War Employes.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—The population of the city of Washington has increased at least 50,000 since the war began. It is natural that the capital city, the center of governmental activities, should show this marked effect of the most extensive preparation for war ever undertaken by any country. A steady stream of new appointees to the great civilian army pours into the city; the streets hum with activity, everybody is busy and earnest; on every hand are the sure signs of a competent organization with a fixed purpose.

At the request of the United States civil service commission the Washington Chamber of Commerce has undertaken the work of directing to suitable rooming and boarding places the new arrivals who are not acquainted in the city. Hundreds of desirable rooms, with or without board, are listed, and at very moderate rates. Application for accommodations can be made by new appointees through correspondence before leaving home or by calling at the office of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, 611 Twelfth street Northwest, upon their arrival in Washington.

Stenographers and typewriters make up a large part of the additions to the force at Washington. Thousands have been appointed and thousands more are needed. Ship draftsmen for the navy department, mechanical draftsmen for the service generally, and statisticians and what are known as clerks qualified in business administration, clerks qualified in statistics or accounting, index and catalogue clerks, balance of stores clerks, and schedule clerks for the ordinance department of the army are also in great demand. Representatives of the United States civil service commission at the post-offices in all cities are furnishing detailed information concerning positions at Washington in which workers are needed.

BALK AT ROYALTY ON SERVICE FLAGS

Cleveland, Nov. 22.—Flag manufacturers in Cleveland and other cities are resisting payment of a 10 per cent royalty claimed by the United Service Flag company of Cleveland on all service flags. The flag was designed by Robert L. Queisser, formerly captain in the Ohio National guard. Its design was patented by Mr. Queisser, through a Cleveland agent, Nov. 6. The company was incorporated about two weeks ago.

The manufacturers declare that the royalty claimed wipes out their profit. Furthermore, they question the right of patent for the design and declare that patent attorneys in Washington and Cleveland have advised them to ignore the claim for the present.

It is estimated that the patent rights, on the basis of a 10 per cent royalty, would net the company a profit of approximately $1,000 a day. Captain Queisser says he will give half the proceeds to the Red Cross.

AMERICA WILL WIN THE WAR IF IT TAKES 25 YEARS, SAYS TOM MARSHALL

shall asked to be excused until the noon hour.

Takes a Rest.

"You know even though I am a democrat, I take a bath occasionally. That's what I'm going to do now," he jokingly said to Governor Stewart and those who had escorted him into the hotel lobby.

Before resting Mr. Marshall consented to an interview. He explained that he had signed a contract to appear on the Chautauqua circuit long before the war started and that he had decided upon a lecture on National Tendencies.

"The lecture dealt with legislation," explained Mr. Marshall. "It was an argument that would have provoked discussion. Then the war came on, and I, being under contract, was in honor bound to fulfill my engagements. I have tried other subjects, but my auditors insist upon a talk on the war.

His Purpose.

"While I am a man of peace, I am of the firm conviction that the war should be prosecuted until autocracy is crushed. I am doing all in my power to say such things as will get the people together. I am forgetting politics, religion and everything else and devoting my efforts to a sensible talk that will solidify the people behind the government.

"There are two things I can't understand. One is the pacifist. No man loves peace better than I love it, but what kind of a pacifist can want our country to lay down?

"If we had not joined the allies in the war the Germans would have done one of two things. After the war they would either have come over here and we would have been compelled to defend ourselves on our shores or they would have established German institutions in South America, which would have forced us to defend the Monroe doctrine and cost us more in men and money than the present war will cost.

Way to End the War.

I firmly believe in Mr. Bryan's statement to the pacifists that the quickest way to end the war is to fight it out in the quickest time."

Mr. Marshall added that he cannot understand the opposition of the socialists, for since this country entered the struggle, many of their principles have been adopted. He then paid a neat tribute to Charles Edward Russell, the former socialist.

Respects to Russell.

"I understand Mr. Russell speaks here tonight," declared Mr. Marshall. "He is a great man. I'm sorry I cannot have time to hear him. He is an unusually thoughtful and high-minded citizen."

Getting back to the war, Mr. Marshall said: "Only one of two things can happen. Either we win, or Germany will win. Of course I believe we're going to win. How any of these pacifists or socialists can believe that we would be better off if Germany won, is beyond my comprehension.

"This country will win this war, if it takes 25 years to do it. The American people are slow to start, but after they have started they show a determination to push ahead to a finish.

"Our soldiers will show themselves far superior to those of Germany. In our army every man is a commander unto himself. The German soldier is different. He simply obeys orders. Our soldiers will show an initiative. This will be borne out when our men get into action."

Lecturing for a Month.

Mr. Marshall declared that he has been lecturing for a month during which time he has filled 20 engagements. When he leaves here tonight he goes to Holdredge, Neb., where he delivers his final lecture. From there he will go to his home in Indianapolis. He admitted that the work is tiring. The long jumps have fatigued him considerably and he said he is happy to think that the tour is nearing its end.

At tonight's lecture in the high school auditorium J. Bruce Kremer will preside and Governor Stewart will introduce Mr. Marshall.

MARSHALL AND RUSSELL CHEERED AT LUNCHEON

As Guests of Business Men They Talk of America's Future.

Vice President Thomas R. Marshall, who says he came from Indiana but is now of the United States, was the principal speaker at a joint luncheon of the Butte Rotary club, the Butte Ad club and prominent citizens of the community in general at the Butte Grill at noon today. The spacious dining room was crowded. Every seat at every table was occupied and the seats in the gallery along the sides were also filled as well as the stairways. Other guests of the luncheon were Charles Edward Russell and Gov. Sam V. Stewart.

Lieutenant Governor McDowell presided at the meeting. Mr. Marshall sat on his right, with Governor Stewart to the right of the vice president and then Mayor W. H. Maloney. On the left of the chairman was Mr. Russell, with President H. J. Lonskey of the Butte Ad club, J. Bruce Kremer and others.

Brief remarks were made following the luncheon by Mr. Lonskey, Fred Sckoff of Chicago, President Dr. John A. Denovan of the Rotary club and others. Mr. Russell was introduced as the first speaker.

Mr. Russell, who has a deep voice, paid a tribute to the patriotism of the business men of the country.

For the Republic.

"No one in this country," he said, "holds property in fee simple. It is all held in trust for the benefit of the republic, whether it be property, money, labor or life."

He said the American people would go through with the war to a successful finish, "for I believe," he said, "in the divine mission which carries freedom to all the sons of men."

Mr. Marshall was introduced as a member of the Rotary club of Indianapolis and an honorary member of the Rotary club of Phoenix, Ariz.

"I am glad," he said at the opening, "that I have an opportunity of breaking bread with Charles Edward Russell."

He then paid a very eloquent tribute to Mr. Russell.

Speaking of Americans, he said, in reply to the manner in which he had been introduced as a distinguished American:

Distinguished Americans.

"I am not a believer in distinguished Americans. I prefer to take my chance with the common crowd, the men who meet on the level and part on the square."

In regard to administrative difficulties he said:

"There is no more possibility for the wise man—and I am referring here to my superior and not to myself to give good government to a foolish people than there is for a brave general to lead an army of cowards to victory on the battlefield. For good government in the United States depends not on the president, the vice president, congress or the supreme court, but on every right thinking man and woman."

Mr. Marshall provoked cheering and laughter when he declared that he was "the only living vice president in captivity and a native of Indiana which had produced more first grade second class men than any other state in the country."

To Preserve Freedom.

Mr. Marshall devoted a good part of his talk to the sacredness of freedom and the duty which the present generation owes to future generations. He hoped that the present would be the last great war in human history, but he was afraid that while human nature is human nature there was little possibility of this, although the altruistic idea was that all differences between nations would be adjudicated on the common grounds of argument and justice.

"And yet," said the vice president, "everything is lost if American ideals shall perish from the earth and we shall be farther away than ever from the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man."

Of America after the present war Mr. Marshall said:

"Out of the sadness and bitterness of the war we shall come into a period in history when we shall be bound together by common ties, not the ties of politics, but on a platform which shall stand for the glory, honor and dignity of the United States."

American Ideals and War.

Of American ideals in the war Mr. Marshall said:

"I would rather go down to defeat with our boys in France than trample over the dead bodies of our principles and ideals."

And then as he concluded his talk he turned to Mr. Russell and said referring to Mr. Russell's remarks about aristocrats and the common people:

"I want to say to you, Mr. Russell, that the aristocrat is going to rule the world, for the future is going to provide a rule of the best, and the real and the best aristocrat will be the greatest democrat."

The Governor Speaks.

Governor Stewart, who was received by the audience standing, said that Montana, "the youngest but the sturdiest of the states," had done its duty wonderfully in the offering of volunteers to the army at the outbreak of the war, the Liberty loan purchases, the Red Cross donations, the Y. M. C. A. pledges and the contributions to the Knights of Columbus fund. He said that there are 14,000 Montanans under arms in various camps at the present time and that the Second Montana, "which had done signal service in Butte in driving treason and anarchy from the borders of Silver Bow county and re-establishing law and order," was now on the high seas on the way to France.

"When they return," he said, "and they shall do so with victory crowning their banners, no Montanan can feel ashamed of the part which this state has played in the great war."

Mr. Stewart spoke of the conditions at Camp Lewis, which he visited recently, and said the boys were contented and well cared for.

As an introduction to the luncheon the A. C. M. band, under the leadership of Sam Treloar, played selections in the lobby of the Butte hotel. Selections were also played when Mr. Russell concluded his talk and the "Star Spangled Banner" was the offering when Mr. Marshall sat down.

Mr. Marshall's talk was punctuated with funny stories. Several times the audience cheered and clapped most enthusiastically. It was the most enthusiastic meeting ever held by the Rotary club.

One of the features of the occasion was the presentation of a huge American flag to the Second Montana, now of the 163rd United States infantry, by Governor Stewart on behalf of the Rotary club.

This afternoon Mr. Marshall delivered a brief address to the students at the Butte high school before going to Hebgen park for the review.

ARTILLERYMEN REVIEWED FROM AUTO BY OFFICIALS

Vice President and Governor Cheered Generously by a Great Throng.

More than 8,000 persons gathered at Hebgen park this afternoon to witness the first military review in the history of Butte. Vice President Marshall and Governor Stewart, who reviewed the Washington Coast artilleryman, were generously cheered as they appeared at the park. They reviewed the troops from their motor car.

The park was massed with motor cars and persons who came on foot and in street cars to witness the review. Two thousand or more children were in the crowd. About the big ball park the automobiles were so thick that traffic policemen had difficulty keeping the streets from becoming blocked.

Led by Major Drever, the Washington troopers swung past the reviewing officials with a quick step that brought wave after wave of applause from the crowd. The officers, as they swung past, saluted with all the precision of veterans of the French trenches, and the soldiers "right faced" in absolute form. The 200 or more artillerymen who formed the body of troops were led into the park by the Anaconda Copper Mines band.

Prior to the military review at Hebgen ball park, the vice president spoke at the high school to the assembled students. He told the students of the duty that the young people of the nation owe in this time of war, of their possibilities to serve the nation and of their importance in the great reconstruction that will follow in the wake of the war. He was escorted from the high school to the park by a body of troops and a score of automobiles.

The vice president and governor, owing to the talk at the high school, were a few minutes late in reaching the park. It took a squad of patrolmen to form a lane for the entrance of the car with the high officials. As the car appeared in the park the artillerymen came to attention and the crowd started a roard of cheering that lasted for minutes. The vice president and the governor both acknowledged the cheers and often waved a friendly salute to some body of more than usually demonstrative persons.

DARWIN

You must give vent to Darwin
That man sprang from the beast,
For there are some expressions
To prove some points at least.

A man may have a frog in this throat
And a woman may have a dear face,
For many of them have two nice bare arms
In almost every case.

Some people have a sheepish look
And others have horse sense;
While others try to "buffalo" you
Where there is some expense.

When fake ads were all lies;
But we live up to our promises

MRS. MARSHALL IS GUEST OF WOMEN

Entertained at Luncheon in Silver Bow Club—Reception Follows.

Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the vice president, did not spend quite as strenuous a day in Butte as her husband. At the station she was met by a committee of ladies, headed by Mrs. W. W. McDowell, Mrs. Harry Gallwey and Mrs. J. K. Heeslet, and driven to the Thornton hotel, where she spent the morning in rest.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon Mrs. Marshall was the guest at a private luncheon tendered in her honor by Mrs. McDowell in the Silver Bow club. The members of the women's reception committee, 22 in number, attended. After the luncheon Mrs. Marshall was the guest at a public reception.

Mrs. Marshall is greatly impressed with the west as she has found it on her tour of the country. "I love the west—the far west," she said in an interview at the Thornton hotel this morning. "The only thing I don't like are the mountain roads. I've had tolls of them and I do not care for them."

Mrs. Marshall answered questions in a voice that sounded Kentucktian, but which she declared is Indianian.

"I was never out of Indiana until Mr. Marshall and I went to Washington," she declared, adding: "You see both our fathers were Indianians.

"Do you knit?" Mrs. Marshall was asked.

"Yes," she answered, "all the time. I'd be knitting now if the good ladies in Butte hadn't made such great plans for my entertainment."

Mrs. Marshall recently adopted a litte boy. "A Belgian or French orphan?" she was asked.

"No, Irish Catholic," Mrs. Marshall laughed, "and his name is Clarence Ignatius Morrison. We call him Morrison Marshall. I'm crazy about him. He's 15 months old and I feel as if every moment away from him was wasted."

The wife of the vice president added that the baby is at present with her father, William E. Kinsey, on the latter's fruit ranch in Arizona. "We have just come from visiting him," she declared.

"Yes, we are Hooverizing," concluded Mrs. Marshall, "but as we do not keep house it is in a very small way."

LA FOLLETTE SPEECH TO BE PROBED NEXT WEEK

Washington, Nov. 22.—Chairman Pomerene of the senate privileges and elections committee returned to Washington today and announced that his subcommittee plans to proceed next Monday with investigation of the alleged disloyal St. Paul speech of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin.

During the suspension of the inquiry former Secretary Bryan has communicated with Senator Pomerene regarding the Lusitania case and statements made by Senator La Follette. Mr. Bryan probably will be one of the first witnesses called. Senator La Follette will be allowed to cross-examine all witnesses.

THE TWO KETTLES.

Chinese Consul Goon-Dip of Seattle was talking in his humorous way about marriage.

"There is a great difference," he said, "between the American marriage, where the young people fall in love and get engaged, and the Chinese marriage, where they are spliced first and make each other's acquaintance afterward.

"These two kinds of marriage are like two kettles of water. The first, an American kettle, is taken at the boiling point from the fire by marriage, and ever afterward keeps growing cooler; but the other, the Chinese, is a kettle of cold water put on the fire by wedlock, and ever afterward growing warmer and warmer, so that at the end of 50 or 60 years we Chinese wives and husbands are madly in love with one another."
