BIG ELECTION CROWDS

Herald Bulletins Were the Center of Attraction.

EXCITEMENT RAN HIGH

THOUSANDS WERE OUT TO LEARN THE NEWS.

Roaring Bonfires and Hideous Noises—Democrats Were Jubilant at First, But Their Enthusiasm Was Snuffed Out By the Subsequent Returns—One Small Fight.

An election night without its surging thousands would not be an election night. Unless the streets were thronged up and down with the masses, representing every walk in life, too impatient to await reading the results of the battle of the ballots in the daily papers, and eager to grasp every bit of news displayed on bulletin boards, election night would lose half its interest. Salt Lake had many a time demonstrated that its political enthusiasm is second to none, but for noises, inspiring and hideous, last night has never been excelled.

Thousands were out. Hundreds trod the principal streets, blocked every passageway, surged backward and forward, cheered and shouted themselves hoarse, and dispersed only when the last sparks of roaring bonfires had lost their glimmer. There were men and women, crazed with enthusiasm, armed with horns, bells and whistles, great and small, loud and shrill, screeching and less melodious, until the dignified citizen pulled his coat collar around his ears and walked home to escape the terrific din. And the irrepressible small boy. He was there. Because it was election, he thought he had a right to tear, burn, destroy—anything, from his bat to a buggy straw. As for the surfeit, it might as well have been rung from the north pole.

Crowds at The Herald.

The Herald bulletins, thrown on a 12x12 canvas, were the center of attraction. The crowd blocked the street half way along market row and swarmed over the intersection of First South and West Temple.

A great throng was kept interested in front of Democratic headquarters.

The most novel of all methods of noise-making occurred to Harry Barker, a bicyclist. He had a five-gallon coal oil can attached to a string tied to his wheel, and as he rode around the town, it dangled with great effect about fifteen yards behind. Big bonfires were built in all parts of the city, the builders having little respect for barrels, fences and the like.

Situation Changed.

Bulletins came early from all districts, and cheering from one side or the other greeted every announcement. The first were favorable to the Democrats, who were quick to appreciate them, but along towards 11 o'clock their exuberance gave way to disappointment. There were few wholesouled outbursts of enthusiasm after that, and before midnight the Republican drum corps was out, followed by a big crowd of rooters.

A Small Riot.

There were very few street fights reported, though an incipient riot on a small scale broke out at 10 o'clock in front of The Herald building. Tom Taylor, a youth of 15 summers, and a man of greater years, with a jag, engaged in an altercation over something or other. The jag abused the boy and the boy flooed the jag with a club. Officer Dillon came dashing into the crowd and took the fallen jag under arrest. The friends of the delapidated disciple of Bacchus pleaded for his release on the excuse that it was election night, and Officer Dillon let him go. The crowd, which had gathered so promiscuously as to fill the whole street, dispersed.

The book committee recommended the purchase of a list of books, and the secretary was directed to make the purchases.

SAYS IT IS ALL POLITICS

PRESIDENT RICH TALKS OF THE ROBERTS CASE.

Mormons Will Not Cast Their Wives Out or Illegitimatize Their Children—Converts in Virginia.

(Special to The Herald.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—Ben E. Rich is now in Virginia, and, with other Mormon elders, is holding at Richmond a mission conference. In an address delivered by him and reported in dispatches in the Washington Post, he asserted that there are 1,500 or 2,000 converts in Virginia made within a year, and forty-four elders laboring in the state. Touching on the Roberts case he said:

"The fight to unseat Roberts is not so much on the Mormon church as on the Democrats of Utah. Mormons are both Republicans and Democrats. Mormons voted for Roberts and Mormons voted against Roberts. It depended entirely on their political convictions.

"I am not in sympathy with him. I was a Republican until the St. Louis convention, which I attended as a delegate at large from Idaho. Roberts is being fought by a Republican paper in Salt Lake City, and a minister, who is also a Republican, hired to fight him. It is not a question of polygamy with this paper and this minister, but a question of politics.

"I will ask you, would you have Roberts illegitimatize his children and place the star of shame on the breast of all his wives to suit these designing politicians? He will not do it. Those of our people who have contracted plural marriages before the law prohibiting polygamous union was passed, will honor and protect their wives. They have too much manhood to throw aside those women bound to them by marital ties, even though they must take the insults and bear the hatred of the people who do not believe as they do, to their graves with them."

LAMSON CLAIMS MORE WATER

APPROPRIATES THE SOUTH JORDAN CANAL FLOW.

Proposes to Use Water to Go Over Power Wheels, Redelivering the Volume at a Point Below.

The farmers along the South Jordan canal will doubtless be surprised to learn that Allan G. Lamson has filed a notice of appropriation for the use of all the canal company's flow to run over the wheels of his power plant in Jordan Narrows, just as he did nearly two years ago with reference to Salt Lake City's canal water.

Mr. Lamson's notice of appropriation was filed with the county recorder yesterday and is dated Nov. 2, 1899. It proposes to claim the right to divert all the South Jordan Canal company's share of the Jordan river water at the headgate and conduct the flow through the enlarged ditch of the Utah & Salt Lake Canal company until after the waters pass over the power plant wheels of the Salt Lake City Water & Electric Power company, of which Mr. Lamson is president. According to the notice on file, it is the intention to redeliver the South Jordan canal water to the ditch undiminished in quantity and not deteriorated in quality after the power company is through with it.

Lamson's notice states that the appropriation is made in pursuance of the privileges granted by the revised statutes of Utah, and that the water appropriated will be put to beneficial uses in generating power for mining, manufacturing and other commercial uses in Salt Lake and Tooele counties. It is expressly stated in the notice of appropriation that all vested rights in the South Jordan canal will be respected, but the intention will be to claim and hold the use of the appropriated water adversely to the canal company and all others from the point of diversion in Jordan river down to where the appropriator will redeliver it to the canal.

WANTS FACTS ON ROBERTS CASE

EASTERN PEOPLE HAVE HEARD BUT ONE SIDE.

Dr. Hepworth of New York Prepares to Make a Thorough Investigation of the Subject.

Dr. George H. Hepworth of the New York Herald, who is at the Knutsford, will make quite an exhaustive examination of the Roberts case and the present condition of the Mormon people. He will remain here ten days or two weeks, hunting information.

"We are really at sea," said he yesterday. "We have very little information about Mr. Roberts and the church. A campaign has been made against him in the east, but there is very little information given about the case. We have no facts from unbiased sources. These I want to get.

"No defense of Mr. Roberts has ever been given out in the east, which possibly accounts to some extent for the feeling which is being worked up against him. The case is going to the American people as a jury with no defense. If he has a good defense it will be useless to present it to congress unless something is done to check the present work against him. Congress will be overpowered with petitions and resolutions from thousands and hundreds of thousands of people, and even a good defense might fall to the ground before such an influence."

TOOK LOSSES CALMLY

Barnes Men Philosophical Over the Result.

BIG SUM CHANGED HANDS

MORE THAN $20,000 TO BE PAID OVER.

Thompson Men Are Sore Because They Allowed the Democrats to Bet Them to a Standstill—Henry Newell Is Probably the Heaviest Individual Winner.

A good many Thompson men are kicking themselves this morning because they permitted themselves to be bet to a standstill by the Democrats. As late as 10 o'clock last night there was lots of Barnes money in sight with but few takers.

Isidore Morris hedged out part of the money he had bet with Tom Kearns on Monday night. At 10:30 o'clock he bet $500 against $1,000 with Alex Tarbet that Thompson would be elected.

It is estimated that fully $20,000 or more changed hands on the result in big and little bets. More would have changed hands if the adherents of Thompson had been a trifle gamer. Henry Newell and Tom Kearns are the heaviest individual winners.

Newell Wins $2,500.

The former is "in" something like $2,500, and the latter wins $2,160. Other Republicans won anywhere from a new hat up to $1,500. Little money was won by the men who pride themselves with always being on the "inside." It was these wise ones who were on Barnes as long as any Thompson money was in sight until the result was definitely known.

The men who lost took their fate philosophically. They said they had backed their honest judgment, and considered every one of their wagers as easy as "getting money from home." Figure as they would, they could not see anything but victory for the Democratic ticket, but they are wiser this morning.

Bets Looked Safe.

Until 11 o'clock it looked as if the Barnes money was perfectly sure. Up to that time the returns, while showing Democratic losses, were of a nature that indicated the election of the Democratic ticket. Then the Thompson precincts began to be heard from, and the Democratic lead was cut down to nothing and Thompson forged ahead.

Even then, although they might have done so, the bettors made no attempt to hedge. They held up until the very last minute in the belief that it was not possible for Colonel Lannan's ticket to win out. When even the strongest supporter of the Democratic ticket saw that it was no longer worth while to hope for victory, the men who had lost quietly sought their homes with never a word of complaint against anything except their own poor judgment.

"We'll get it all back on the next election," said a young Democrat who had lost $1,500. "I'm willing right now to bet on the election of the next Democratic ticket, no matter who the candidates may be."

MANY INDIANS OUT.

Big Bands From Both Agencies Now In Colorado.

(Special to The Herald.)

Vernal, Utah., Nov. 7.—Sheriff Preece, Isaac Barton and Leslie Ashton came in from Colorado last night and reported that the Utes from both agencies are across the line in a fair number, after game. Parties from Rangely report seeing between 200 and 300 Indians in the western portion of Rio Blanco and Routt counties. It is reported as a singular fact that no squaws or papooses were seen, which gives rise to the belief that the Indians are anticipating some trouble with the Colorado wardens.

Sheriff Preece stated that no wardens were seen. It was known, however, that Sheriff Williams of Rio Blanco county was on his way to the western borders, and would endeavor to have the Indians returned to the reservation without causing trouble by coming in conflict with the game warden.

A great many whites are also reported out after game. The general sentiment in that section is with the Indians, as it is thought only just that they should have an equal chance with the hunt.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Charles H. Manion of Mountain Home, Ida., who has been in the sheep business in the Red desert, about Granger, for some months, said last night at the Cullen that there was some fear among the owners that a severe winter would cause heavy losses.

"The range has not been very good during the summer," said he, "and there are as a result many poor sheep, which will not be able to winter through severe cold and a scarcity of food. Sheep owners are now trying to figure out whether or not there is going to be much snow. With the small amount of grass left they must feed the flocks if there is a deep snow.

"Many of them have already made preparation. They have purchased a large amount of corn, and for the first time that I know of this will be fed to sheep. They will not feed it in troughs, but will scatter it about the ground and the sheep will pick up grain by grain. Were it fed from troughs the weaker sheep would be crowded out and they would starve to death. Probably they will be able to get through the winter without great losses."

"The Mount Morgan mine, near Rock Hampton, in North Queensland, Australia, is one of the biggest paying properties in the world," said A. Harlovich, a traveler from Australia, at the Knutsford yesterday. "You talk about mining booms, there was a big one some years ago in that property. There are 1,000,000 shares, which are now valued at £5 each. At one time they were worth £17 each, that is $85,000,000 for the total. The mine has produced an immense amount of gold, and though I don't know the exact figures, I am of the opinion that it is the largest gold producer in the world. The gold runs almost pure, for it averages within 4 pence of being pure.

"There was the wildest kind of excitement when this stock went up and down, many men were ruined and many made immense amounts of money."

"There is a dangerous place on Snake river, three miles below the Short Line bridge near Huntington, which is known as Whisky Rapids, and thereby hang a tale," said W. N. Henderson at the White House yesterday.

"In the winter of 1890 a steamboat company had built the steamer Norma to ply between the bridge and the Seven Devils mining country, just as soon as the dangerous reefs and rocks in the river were cleared out. A government survey to determine the cost of clearing the obstructions had started and the company had decided to have a little work done under the direction of the engineers before the regular government work should start.

"Four workmen were sent in a wagon with their camping and blasting outfit. But they wouldn't leave Huntington sober, for they knew it would be weeks before they would have a chance to return. They not only got drunk, but got the driver drunk, too. When they reached what is now known as Whisky Rapids, the wagon was turned over. Three of the men were pinioned under it, while the driver had his face cut open and the other was staggering about trying to release his comrades, who were moaning and yelling. The thermometer was same 10 degrees below zero, and there was a strong wind blowing down the river. It looked as if some of the fellows would freeze to death.

"But the engineers, hearing their cries, came to the rescue. They were shivering with frozen fingers and noses. The situation was so laughable that the chief of the party named the place Whisky Rapids, and it is down on the map under that name."

BRIDEGROOM BELATED.

Castledale's Popular Physician Weds Indiana Girl.

There was considerable nervousness and not a little suppressed excitement at St. Paul's church and the Kenyon hotel yesterday because of a bridegrooms delay.

Dr. C. E. Pearson of Castledale and Miss Dorothy Reed of Indianapolis, Ind., were to be married at 12 o'clock at St. Paul's. Miss Reed came all the way from Indiana to wed the doctor who is a rising young physician. Dr. Pearson did not reach the church in time so the bride and Rev. Mr. Wallace, who was to perform the ceremony, waited some time. A telephone message came to the Kenyon for the doctor. There was for a few moments a scurrying about of bellboys and nervousness at the church. The bridegroom was found and he hurried on down as fast as he could go so that the ceremony was performed without further delay.

Dr. and Mrs. Pearson will leave for home this afternoon making their residence at Castledale.

BACK FROM CAPE NOME

Salt Laker's Opinion of the New Gold Field.

WILL BE MUCH DISTRESS

PROVISIONS ARE SCARCE AND PRICES HIGH.

Mr. Seckels Does Not Think Much of the Beach Diggings—Salt Lakers Doing Well at Dawson City—Witcher Brothers Have Some Good Claims.

Louis Seckels of Salt Lake, who went to Dawson and the Klondike country two years ago in the interest of A. W. McCune and William L. Hoge, returned yesterday and he gave some information about the north which has not heretofore been published.

"I didn't recommend that the gentlemen who sent me should make any investments in Klondike properties," said he, "for I don't consider that there is any large amount of money to be made there. The Canadian royalty and restrictions and the high prices demanded for property made the investments uncertain. There is money being made at Dawson, but by men who discovered claims or purchased them at low prices.

"There is great excitement at Cape Nome and there will be a tremendous rush next summer. Hundreds of persons have left Dawson for the new diggings, until in that city labor has become scarcer and, therefore, more costly. Prices are very high at Anvil City. Lumber is worth $150 per thousand, coal is sold for $30 per ton, flour is $80 a sack. Stevedores were paid $2 per hour for unloading steamships. Other prices are in proportion.

"There will be suffering this winter, and if a fire happens to strike the place it will burn everything to the ground and there will be great suffering and privation. The larger part of the population might starve to death, for the provisions on which they are to live would be destroyed.

"I don't think much of the famous beach diggings at Cape Nome. True, a great deal has been made by some persons, but the average returns are not more than $8 and $10 per man per day, and I would rather have $2 in Salt Lake than $10 at Cape Nome. The creek claims are very rich, but how long they will last it is quite impossible to say."

Mr. Seckels was in the employ of the North American Trading & Transportation company as an assayer at Dawson during a large part of the time he spent there. The company is one of the largest operating on the Yukon river. Speaking of Salt Lake men in the Klondike, he said:

"Captain Donovan is running the McDonald hotel, which is owned by Alex McDonald, the Klondike millionaire. John Bechtol has the Regina club, a headquarters for Canadian officials, and he is doing well. Harry Edwards has Chisholm's saloon and he is making a good living. Tom Lloyd is in charge of Jim Hall's mining property and is doing well. The Witcher brothers have a good lay on Sulphur creek. Bill Martin, an old miner of Salt Lake, will be at work on Eldorado creek this winter."

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

Ruling By United States Judge In San Francisco Affects Banks.

San Francisco, Nov. 7.—An important banking decision was rendered today by United States Circuit Judge Morrow in the case of J. Frank Aldrich as receiver of the Tacoma National bank vs. Louis D. Campbell. Judge Morrow ruled that the comptroller of the currency has jurisdiction to enforce by assessment the individual liability of the stockholders of an insolvent national bank, equally and ratably, and not one for another, to the extent of the amount of their stock in the bank at the par value thereof.

Acting within this clearly defined authority an order of the comptroller directing an assessment is absolutely conclusive upon the stockholders of the bank and cannot be controverted by them in any defense they may seek to interpose against an action based upon such an assessment.

HOBART HAS A GOOD DAY.

Took Great Interest In the Elections Held Yesterday.

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 7.—At a late hour tonight Vice President Hobart's condition was reported to be more favorable. It was stated at his house that Mr. Hobart had been able to sit up in a chair at the window for a short time and had eaten some solid food, something that he had not done in three weeks. He was less nervous tonight than he had been for some days and his family felt encouraged over his apparent improved condition. Dr. Newton, who remained at the house tonight, would not offer any encouragement as to the vice president's recovery.

During the day Attorney General Griggs called and had a short interview with the vice president. Mr. Hobart was cheerful and he told Mrs. Hobart that he hoped to be able to take her out for a drive before long.

It was undoubtedly the best day the vice president has had for weeks. He appeared greatly interested in the elections and inquired especially after the Ohio result. He instructed his private secretary to procure for him the earliest possible returns from Ohio and the other states. The early returns were furnished him, but did not remain awake for the later news.

FORMER WIFE'S JEALOUSY.

Shoots Her Divorced Husband and His New Wife.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—August Wischman, a well known saloon-keeper and his wife, Rose, were shot and dangerously wounded at 1:30 this morning by Mrs. Leona J. Lay, Wischman's divorced wife. The shooting occurred at Thirty-fourth street and Cottage Grove avenue as Wischman and his wife were on their way to their home.

As they passed the corner, their assailant stepped from the shadow of a building and fired two shots. One of the bullets entered Wischman's left breast above the heart and the other penetrated the right breast of his wife. As her two victims fell the would-be murderess fled, but was captured later by the police.

Mr. Wischman was taken to Mercy hospital, where it was found that he is fatally injured. Hopes for the recovery of his wife is entertained. Mrs. Lay was taken to the police station by her captors, where she admitted the shooting. She declared she was the former wife of Wischman and that she was prompted to the act by jealousy.

GEORGE BYWATER'S DEATH.

Well Known Citizen Succumbs to Stomach Trouble.

George J. Bywater, the oldest son of the late George G. Bywater, died at his home on Monday from chronic stomach trouble. Mr. Bywater was a decorative artist of considerable note, and was foreman of the Oregon Short Line paint shops at the time of his death, and for many years was connected with the Union Pacific and the old Utah Central in a similar capacity. He was considered throughout the west as one of the best car painters in the service.

The deceased had charge of the decorating of the Salt Palace and made all the tests for applying the salt to that structure. He had considerable talent in a dramatic line, and was well known as a reciter and an elocutionist.

The death of Mr. Bywater is the third death that has occurred in the family during the past fourteen months. The funeral will take place from the Fifth ward meeting house at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The remains may be viewed from 12 o'clock noon to 1:30 p. m. at the family residence, 249 West Sixth South street.

Deceased left a wife and six children, five sons and one daughter. The youngest child is 7 years of age.

Stone Wall Removed.

The old stone wall that has stood so long in front of the offices of the Mormon church is to be removed and a neat iron fence is to be put in its place.
