BEGIN TRIAL OF BIG WATER SUIT

Case Involving City's Water Supply Will Be Long Drawn Out.

MANY PARTIES INTERESTED

INQUIRY WILL GO BACK TO PIONEER DAYS.

The trial of the suit brought by the Progress company against Salt Lake City and about 500 other defendants to adjudicate the water rights in Big Cottonwood creek, was begun before Judge Charles W. Morse of the district court yesterday.

The case is of inestimable importance to the city as it involves the right to the use of the water now flowing through the Big Cottonwood conduit which cost $500,000, and the completion of which was thought to have solved forever the local water problem. If the decision should be against the city it would mean that either the conduit would have to be abandoned or that an enormous yearly rental would have to be paid for the water conveyed through it.

Many Party Defendants.

When the city acquired the water rights which it now claims in the stream it bargained with its predecessors in interest to furnish them sufficient water for their needs in lieu of the rights which they surrendered. These include about 500 farmers and other water users in the district irrigated by the creek and all have been made party defendants in the suit instituted by the Progress people who claim to have a prior right to a large proportion of the water.

In order to settle the matter with the greatest dispatch it has been decided that the evidence shall first deal with those ditchs which are nearest the conduit intake and then proceed to take up the ditches further down the course of the stream separately. Judge Morse will visit the country affected Thursday, leaving with the various attorneys interested on the Murray street car at 8 o'clock in the morning. At Murray teams will be furnished and the trip of inspection begun.

Back to Pioneer Days.

The case will probably last two months, during which time no less than 400 witnesses will be examined. It is proposed to go back to the original diversion of the stream in 1852 by President Brigham Young of the Mormon church for irrigation purposes and then trace the respective rights of the parties in interest up to the present time.

The first witness to be called yesterday was Henry W. Brown of Murray. His memory carried him back as far as 1853 and he spoke of the work of President Young as if it had been done yesterday. He is a remarkably active man according to his testimony, for he said that he could toss a stone into the stream from his house and in the next breath declared the distance to be twenty rods.

The city is represented by Ogden Hiles, city attorney, and Franklin S. Richards, who has been retained as special counsel. The plaintiffs are represented by King, Burton & King and Van Cott, Allison & Riter.

Other attorneys and law firms representing various defendants are: C. S. Kinney, A. T. Sanford, Street & Bramel, Stephens, Smith & Price, Stewart, Stewart & Budge, C. E. Marks, P. L. Williams, representing the Utah Light & Railway company; Grant Bagley and J. U. Hurd.

WILL PROTECT CROSSINGS

Oregon Short Line to Construct Buildings for Watchmen at Various Street Intersections.

The Oregon Short Line railroad will install watchman service on all its principal crossings in Salt Lake. This decision was communicated to the council last evening by W. H. Bancroft, general manager, in a petition asking that the company be allowed to erect switchmen's shanties at numerous street intersections. These are Third, Second and First North streets, North Temple street, First South street and at every crossing from Fourth to Seventh South streets.

The communication was referred to the streets committee, with the power to locate the various shanties.

The action of the railroad is a result of a petition of the citizens in the western portion of the city submitted to the council three months ago, asking that something be done to protect these crossings, as the loss of life had been considerable during the past few years at these places.

At that time Parley L. Williams, general counsel, agreed with the petitioners, and the action of the railroad company is in line with the promise he made.

RECOVERS LOST JEWELRY.

Salt Lake Woman Meets With Good Fortune at Long Beach.

Mrs. W. C. Hall, the wife of Judge Hall of Salt Lake, recovered $2,000 worth of jewels which she had left in a satchel in the Long Beach railway station, according to a story published in the Los Angeles Examiner.

On Tuesday morning Judge Hall was called to Salt Lake on business and the family went to Los Angeles for a few days. In departing a satchel containing the jewelry was left in the station of the Salt Lake Route. It was handed to the station agent, who kept it until Mrs. Hall's return to Long Beach on Thursday, when she identified her property and recovered the grip and the valuables.

PEOPLE PROTEST AGAINST EXPENSE

Two of the Proposed Paving Extensions Defeated by Property Owners.

RAILROADS WILLING TO PAY

AND TWO IMPORTANT IMPROVEMENTS ARE ADOPTED.

The protest of the people against extravagant expenditures of public and private funds for improvements, the ordering of which will be used for campaign material by the "American" administration, took definite form last evening at the council meeting, when the two most important projects in the residence districts were defeated by objections by the property owners.

One of these was the paving of Fourth East street with asphalt from Brigham to Third South streets, and the other was the curbing and guttering of H street from Second to Seventh avenues. It takes two-thirds of the owners of abutting property to defeat such extensions.

Three proposed improvements were adopted without protest. Two of these, paving extensions Nos. 31 and 42, will be paid for almost entirely by the Oregon Short Line and the Rio Grande railroads and include the streets in front of their new passenger stations. The second covers the pavement of Rio Grande avenue with asphalt and the first is for Third West from North Temple to First South streets. For the reason indicated there were no protests to the improvement on either street.

Sewer extension No. 191 also carried. It includes the property between Brigham and Second South streets and Tenth East and Thirteenth East streets. This improvement has been asked for by the people in this district for a long time, but up to last night the council has refused to consider it. Last night the improvement was approved of.

A small sidewalk extension on Pierpont street from West Temple to First West was also approved. This has been asked for for some time and there were no protests.

Want Their Money Back.

Two dissatisfied women who have been waiting for some work to be done in front of their property as a result of the sidewalk and sewer extension assessments which they have paid, applied for rebates.

Mrs. Cedinia C. Young, who owns property at Third East and Ninth South street in sidewalk extension No. 108, asked for the return of $303.19, stating that she understood that the council had given up all hope of doing the work for a considerable period. She paid for the sidewalks May 2, 1907.

Mary Peck, owner of lot 8, block 41, plat B, stated that she had paid $127.40 for a sewer extension in October, 1906, and she wants the money returned to her, as no work has been done in front of her property.

The communications were referred to the engineering committee, where many other claims of a similar nature have been allowed to die an unnatural death.

NEWHOUSE RETURNS FULL OF CONFIDENCE

Says Tight Money Is Responsible for Copper Slump and His Properties Will Be Worked to Full Capacity.

There is nothing fundamentally wrong with the copper market.

Copper is down, but a scarcity of money is to blame for it, not the copper market itself. I do not believe it will stay down.

Bankers have called a halt to a certain extent, and big eastern industrial firms cannot get money they actually need for improvements, and in many cases not enough to enable them to fill orders on hand.

Even Wall street is all right; eastern financiers are playing a big game and making the street look shaky purposely; the scheme will see daylight in time.

Whether the copper market stays where it is or goes higher, my properties here and elsewhere will be worked to their capacity.

SAMUEL NEWHOUSE.

Tired, travel worn and confronted by an immense amount of work that must immediately receive his personal attention, Samuel Newhouse returned from Europe last night at midnight.

He returned filled with optimism over the general financial and mining situation of the entire country, and particularly of the west.

Above are, in brief, his sentiments on the situation as given in an interview shortly after he reached his house on Brigham street at 12 o'clock last night. That his confidence in the west and in his properties here have been but strengthened by his trip, was evident in every word he uttered. He had no time for "panicky" questions, and whenever a query was put to him regarding possible disasters in the financial world, a further drop in mining stocks, or as to the possibility of hard times, he cut the questions short and entered vigorous protests.

"Nothing Radically Wrong."

"Of course, copper is down, but don't blame the copper market for it. Put the blame where it belongs—on the money market. There is nothing radically wrong with the copper, and I don't think it will go any lower. It will probably go higher, though I do not like to make decided statements on the question in this off-hand way. I want to be able to give my reasons for such statements, and I have not the time tonight. Speculators are not the only people who are short of money. The shortage is hitting the big industrial men of the east harder than anyone else. They can't get money for necessary improvements, and this is having a decided effect on the situation. Bankers are retrenching. The stock market, however, is going to recover, I believe.

"Foreign investors, particularly English capitalists, are badly scared over the shrinkage in stocks, but it doesn't take much to scare them, and I believe that if the market would take a brace, in ten days' time those fellows over there would rush to get in again.

"I found a decided impression all over the east that a general reconstruction period is about due in this country along every line as to values. Everything is too high. Prices must come down, and it means a general reconstruction in values. Conservative financiers in the east are preparing to meet this situation, and all of them are accepting it.

Even Wall Street All Right.

"People don't want to be deceived by appearances.

"Wall street looks panicky, but it isn't. The big men of the street are playing a big game, and the street looks shaky, because they want it to look that way. Their game will all come out in the end. The market will recover and healthy conditions will prevail. I think. They do prevail now all over the country. There is too much general prosperity in this country at present to allow room for alarm over local situations."

Mr. Newhouse protested against discussing the financial situation further without having more time for preparation. Asked, however, as to whether or not his properties will be curtailed in production should the copper market continue at its present low level, he said, emphatically: "My properties will be run to their capacities, even should the market fluctuate at its present level. While the Montana and other properties have had to shut down we can get out and market our ore cheaper than they can, and it will be a long time before we curtail our output from present indications."

To questions concerning work on his two skyscrapers on lower Main street, and his prospective hotel, the mining magnate pleaded ignorance as far as progress on the former was concerned.

"I want to say this—I know of absolutely nothing that will stop or in any way delay work on my buildings here, and that includes my hotel. There is to be no let-up until they are completed and occupied. Mr. Cobb, the architect, will be in Salt Lake some time this week and the hotel plans will again be taken up. Meanwhile work is to be pushed on the two office buildings."

When informed that the first six cars of steel for the buildings had arrived but yesterday, Mr. Newhouse evidenced the greatest surprise. "I was informed when I reached New York several weeks ago that thirty cars had been shipped, and I cannot understand the delay. I had expected to see a great deal of steel work on the buildings set on my return."

Mrs. Newhouse Coming Home.

Mrs. Newhouse, who is now completing a successful social season at Carlsbad, the famous German watering place, will return to Salt Lake early in November, and will remain here this winter unless Mr. Newhouse is again called to Europe before spring. Mrs. Newhouse has twice entertained King Edward VII of England during the past season at Carsbad, one of the occasions being one of the most elaborate social events of the entire season at the famous resort. The past season in Europe has proved probably the most successful from the point of social triumphs Mrs. Newhouse has ever spent on the continent.

"I spent several weeks in London, two weeks or so in Paris and four weeks at Carlsbad," said Mr. Newhouse last night.

"I have some very large transactions on in Europe and in New York at present, and I may be called back to Europe before the winter is over," he said, in closing his interview. "Otherwise, I shall remain here. I am feeling exceptionally well, aside from the weariness to be expected from a long ocean voyage and a longer rail trip."

PROTEST AGAINST DELAY

Citizens of Bingham Junction and Sandy Want Interurban Car Line Completed.

The business men of Bingham Junction, Sandy and Murray have decided to ask the county commissioners of Salt Lake county to force the Utah Light & Railway company to construct its proposed line from Murroy to Bingham Junction and Sandy this year.

The company secured a franchise for the construction of such a line, which provides that work must be started on the road within sixty days after the county commissioners notify the company to such effect and that in failure to comply with the notice the franchise may be declared null and void by the county commissioners.

A committee of business men from the three towns met in Murray and discussed the situation, the following committee was appointed to take the matter before the county commissioners: W. W. Wilson and J. C. Burgon of Sandy, and L. C. Miller and J. W. Cahoon of Murray. The efforts of these men will be seconded by John P. Cahoon, L. A. Copeland, Richard Howe and W. H. Haigh.

"Our line was completed to the city limits of Murray before we ever secured the franchise for the Murray-Bingham Junction-Sandy line," said Joseph S. Wells, general manager of the Utah Light & Railway company last night. "We cannot do everything at once. We shall build the line to Bingham Junction and Sandy as soon as we can, but it will not be this year. We have been doing so much work in Salt Lake that we have been unable to touch outside work. It takes time for street railway construction and it costs a lot of money. We will get around to the Murray road as soon as we can."

On September 20, she said, she went to his place to tell him that "it was all off" between them, carrying the overcoat and a pair of scissors with her. It was her intention, she said, to cut the garment into ribbons before his eyes, but he knocked her down and carefully hung the overcoat upon a nail in the saloon.

An eye witness, who had been called by the prosecution, testified that Miss Ross had thrown a pool ball at Doles and taken other liberties before he struck her. Judge Diehl dismissed the case.

There is no other treatment for catarrh that in any way resembles Hyomei, none that gives such quick curative results and lasting satisfaction, no medicine that can take its place, none that can be sold on a guarantee like this, to refund the money unless it cures.

Catarrh is a germ disease, and can be cured only by breathing Hyomei, so that the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs are reached by its antiseptic healing powers. In this way all catarrhal germs are killed, the irritated mucous membrane is healed and catarrh is driven from the system.

This wonderful medicated air treatment does not drug and derange the stomach, but is breathed through a little pocket inhaler that goes with every dollar outfit.

The unusual way in which F. C. Schramm sells Hyomei attests his confidence in the remedy. For sale by F. C. Schramm, corner First South and Main streets. "Where the Cars Stop."

CLOSE FRIEND TELLS OF PARTY

Mrs. E. H. Nagle Was With Beers and Mrs. Walker at Hermitage.

EVENTS PRIOR TO TRAGEDY

FAMILY TROUBLES WERE TOLD TO CONFIDANTE.

The only new development in the Beers case yesterday was the receipt by The Herald of a statement from Mrs. E. H. Nagle, who was an intimate friend of Mrs. Walker, and to whom she referred in her statement from Los Angeles printed in The Herald Saturday morning. Mrs. Nagle was in Ogden at the time of the celebrated interview between Mrs. Walker, Lawrence and the Beers, which will be one of the crucial points in the trial. Her evidence as to what happened on that occasion is interesting.

She said that she and her husband were great friends of Mr. and Mrs. Walker. They frequently went out with them for the evening. On some of these occasions Beers and his wife were along. On none of them did Mr. and Mrs. Nagle observe anything approaching improper conduct between Mr. Beers and Mrs. Walker. Mrs. Nagle had been acquainted with Mrs. Walker for some time. She said:

"We used to go about together a great deal. She never flirted or seemed to me other than a perfect lady. When an acquaintance of hers or of her husband's would speak to Mrs. Walker she would simply nod or stop to speak for a moment. She seemed to have no gentlemen friends up to the time she met Beers. The first we heard of the Beers intrigue was in the newspapers. Prior to that time Mrs. Walker had told me that she was going to get a divorce. I told her she was foolish, as Mr. Walker had never given cause for such action on her part. She said that it was a matter of money. that Walker wouldn't pay some bills she had contracted. This seemed to me to be trivial, and I told her so. I had no thought of another man in the case, and I had seen them together often, too. She went to Ogden the night of Sept. 6 and returned the morning of Sept. 7. On her return she told me she had been there on business, and I asked her no further questions about her trip. The next day she asked us to go to Ogden with her and make a Sunday party up the canyon to the Hermitage."

The Hermitage Outing.

It seems that Mr. Nagle was too tired, Saturday being his hard night's work, but he allowed Mrs. Nagle to go to Ogden Sunday morning.

"Mrs. Walker and little Josie met me at the station, and we walked to the Hotel Healy, and thence we all three went to the Hermitage. I had heard nothing about Beers being there. I was surprised to find him at the Hermitage when we arrived. He said he was waiting for Mrs. Beers and a party. They didn't show up, so we had dinner and spent the evening together. We slept there that night. Mrs. Walker, Josie and I had the same room. There was never a time from the minute that I reached Ogden until I left at 2 o'clock Monday that Beers and Mrs. Walker could have been alone together for more than a minute or two. Beers came into Ogden with us Monday morning. I do not know anything about the interview at which Mrs. Beers is alleged to have attempted to commit suicide, as it happened after I left Ogden."

As a matter of fact, Mrs. Walker must have gone almost directly from the train where she saw Mrs. Nagle off to the Colonial, where the row occurred.

WANTS PROBATION OFFICERS

Mayor Asks Council to Change Its Attitude in Regard to Juvenile Court.

Mayor Bransford yesterday evening asked the council to allow him to appoint two probation officers for the juvenile court at salaries of $75 a month each. The communication was referred to the municipal laws committee.

This same question came up while Ezra Thompson was mayor and because of the violent opposition of Chairman Crabtree of the committee on municipal laws, the application of the juvenile court for two officers was refused.

In his letter to the council the mayor says he believes the city should aid the court in every way possible. As Mr. Crabtree was instrumental in electing Bransford, his attitude on the matter will no doubt be changed.

the subject from real estate (of which you know we have the best list in the city), let us discuss with you the subject of surety bonds.

Suppose you have to give a bond for some purpose, say as administrator of an estate, or on an appeal in a suit, or as treasurer of a corporation or lodge, isn't it an imposition to ask a friend to go your bond? Suppose your bond is for $5,000. Your friend is increasing his liabilities just that much. It's like asking him to endorse your note. It injures his credit just that much.

Why not be independent? We make it a business to furnish bonds to responsible persons for a small consideration. We write them in the biggest and best surety company in the world.

There's another phase. Are you an employer? If so, are all your employes who handle money bonded? It will not cost you much to have bonds written for all of them. Then, if you should lose any money through dishonesty of an employe, the surety company will make it up to you in full. It's a pretty good restraining influence on an employe, too. It helps him to resist temptation to know that he must deal with the surety company if he steals from his employer.
