WILL MAKE NO CHANGES

President Lane Is Satisfied With Present Staff of Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone Company.

No changes in the personnel of the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company are contemplated, according to President H. Vance Lane, who has had active charge since his arrival a few days ago. "I have found everything in good shape, and see no need for changes in the present staff," he said yesterday. "The spirit of co-operation inside the company is excellent, and you are safe in saying there will be no changes as long as the present good feeling and good work continue.

"I have been busy since my arrival studying the company's affairs here and at other parts of the system and preparing to start work on such extensions as are expedient as soon as possible.

"I like Salt Lake very much. I have already learned much about its enterprise, and I have seen enough to show me that what I had heard of its remarkable development is amply supported by the conditions that actually exist here. I intend to visit all parts of our territory soon, and I expect an interesting and enjoyable trip, as I understand Salt Lake's condition is typical of the growth and prosperity throughout the mountain region."

Mr. Lane's family will arrive from Omaha soon.

FIVE HUNDRED LIVES LOST IN DEADLY BLAST

is customarily at work, according to mine officials. Beyond these figures the company officials do not attempt to give estimates. The general opinion in the town is that the number of dead and imprisoned will reach 500. A few persons believe this number will be exceeded, claiming that more than half of the total force worked during the day, while on the other hand, some think the number will be smaller. The most conservative estimate places the number of victims at 300 or more.

Real Cause Unknown.

There is much speculation as to the cause of the explosion, but the most generally accepted theory is that it resulted from black damp, scientifically known as methane. It is believe that a miner attempted to set off a blast, which blew out and ignited an accumulation of this deadly gas, and that this in turn ignited the coal dust, a highly inflammable substance found in greater or less quantities in all West Virginia mines. However, all explanations of the cause up to this time are necessarily speculative. Only a thorough investigation after the mine is reopened will disclose the cause, if it is ever ascertained.

Awful Force of Explosion.

The explosion affected both mines and, so far as now known, appears to have done about as much damage in one as in the other. It has not been established in which mine it originated. Evidencing the terrific force of the concussion, props in the entry of No. 6 mine, supporting the roof, were not only shattered and torn from their position, but were blown out of the entry and to the opposite side of the river. Other evidence of the awful force is shown in every section of the mines that has been reached by the rescuers. Huge quantities of coal and rock have been loosened and hurled into every opening, and all of the underground structure is wrecked beyond semblance of its original shape.

Bodies Beyond Debris.

The entry of No. 6 mine, 300 feet from the mouth, is piled high with wreckage of two strings of cars and two electric motors. Some of the rescuers have climbed over this and found dead bodies beyond, but have made no attempt to remove these to the surface, partly because it would be almost impossible to carry the bodies over the debris, but more particularly because they do not want to lose any time in reaching other sections of the mine where it is possible men still living may be entombed.

The cars are being righted as fast as possible and removed from the entry, together with all other obstructions.

All of the headings leading off from the main entrance are being cut off by canvas and barricaded as fast as they are reached by the relief workers, so that the innermost workings of the mine may be given the benefit if the ventilating system to sustain any that may be yet living and making possible an early exploration of these workings.

All Working Faithfully.

The American miners of the town have been placed in charge of the relief work, but the Italian and other foreigners are working under them most faithfully. It is impossible for a man to remain long in the depths of the mine, and the rescue forces are divided to work in relays with frequent reliefs. Many in the relief have been exhausted and been sent to the surface.

The mines are owned and operated by the Consolidated Coal company of Baltimore. General offices are located in Fairmont, W. Va. The company is said to be one of the largest operating in the bituminous coal industry of America. It is capitalized at $20,000,000, and has in operation about 100 producing plants. Clarence W. Watson of Baltimore is president.

Monongah is a mining town in Marion county, West Virginia, about six miles southwest of Fairmont. It has a population of about 6,000, most of whom are foreigners.

Mines Separated by River.

Mines No. 6 and 8 are located on opposite sides of West Fork river, No. 6 on the east side and No. 8 on the west side. The homes of the miners occupy both sides of the river.

Along the hills, far back from the main opening on mine No. 8, there are a number of openings into the mine, and to these hundreds of relatives and friends of the entombed men frantically rushed in the vain hope that their loved ones might find escape through these channels, or that they might be more readily reached and released. So far as known, however, not a single man escaped this way, and the would-be rescuers are helpless at these points, for out of each entrance there is pouring a volume of poisonous gases which no human being can face for more than a few minutes at a time.

Pathetic Scenes.

The scenes round about the entries to the mines and throughout the town are even more pathetic than those which usually attended a mine disaster, because of a larger proportion of American and Americanized foreigners than are usually found in a purely mining settlement.

Wives and mothers and sweethearts, together with children and members of the stronger sex, move from place to place, vainly seeking information and making no attempt to conceal their grief. But little news can be given them, and such as they do get is bad. From time to time there comes word to the searchers that bodies have been found at one place or another, and in nearly every instance it is also stated that the bodies are either terribly torn and mangled or burned and blackened.

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION.

This Julia Murphy's Charge Against Robert L. Booth.

Julia Murphy is suing Robert L. Booth for $10,000 damages for malicious prosecution, and the case is on trial before Judge Lewis in the district court. Mrs. Murphy asserts that on May 1, 1905, Booth had her arrested and arraigned before Justice Williams of Bingham Junction, for obtaining money under false pretenses. He asserted that she sold him some property for $1,000 which did not belong to her. The case was subsequently dismissed upon the showing that while the property did not actually belong to her, it had been assigned to her in trust for her two children.
