ALL GOULD LINES MAY BE AFFECTED

Vice President of Machinists Believes Men in Transportation Service Will Go Out.

DEPENDS ON CONFERENCE

APPARENTLY UP TO GEO. GOULD TO GIVE THE WORD.

"Unless the conference in New York between our representatives and Mr. Gould bears fruit, it is my opinion that the men in the transportation service on the so-called Gould lines will come out in sympathy, and that there will be a general tie-up of traffic on these systems."

In substance, these are the words of W. J. Hannon, sixth vice president of the International Machinists' union of America, who has been assigned to the western country to investigate the strike on the Rio Grande, in which the shopmen are involved.

"If the crisis comes, which I sincerely hope it will not," continued Mr. Hannon, "it would involve the Missouri Pacific, the Texas & Pacific, the Cotton Belt and other lines, involving approximately 12,000 miles of road, and, besides the 7,000 or 8,000 men in our organization directly affected, between 25,000 and 30,000 men in the transportation departments. Conductors, engineers, firemen, trainmen, switchmen, machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths and helpers would be called out. Including the helpers, we figure that eleven unions would be affected.

Meet With Gould.

"The last official advices I had from New York is that the presidents of the three organizations already affected by the strike—James O'Connell of the machinists, J. Dunn of the boilermakers and F. J. Kline of the blacksmiths—had a conference with George Gould in New York on Thursday. I understand that Mr. Gould sent a personal representative to Denver to gather information and to study conditions, but as I have not been in Denver for some days, I do not know what has been done.

"The men in the transportation service recognize that the attack on our organizations is a direct fight on organized labor and that it will not be long before the company will try the same tactics with them. It is notorious that in fights of this kind the corporation always seeks out what it thinks is the weakest spot and there makes its assault. In the event that it is successful there, the line of attack quickly spreads. All there is about it, is that this is a fight on organized labor.

Want Old Men to Stay.

"I do not believe that the people of your city or those of any other city want to see the old men—the men who have been residents for years—be forced out and their places taken by 'stake drivers'—men who stay only long enough to get 'a stake' and then go elsewhere. The experience of people along the Santa Fe is in point. For four years there has been a strike on in the Santa Fe shops, and everywhere we go we hear the same complaint on the part of the business men and the people. The fellows who take our places get the money, send it away or get away themselves, leaving creditors behind without number. Along the line of the Santa Fe there has been a general protest and a general lamentation that the men who made their homes in the towns and cities and become an integral part and were such of the community had been displaced by wanderers who had nothing in common with the interests of the community or its people.

"I am told that of all the men who walked out in your city of Salt Lake only six were not residents—that is, residents in the full sense—of the city. I find the same true of Denver and other cities.

"Reverting again to the Santa Fe, I have to say that the strike of shopmen has resulted in a terrible state of affairs there. The companies will tell you that the men they import are competent and skilled mechanics, but they are not. The Santa Fe, in spite of the fact that it had 900 new engines, is constantly finding difficulty with its motive power. It is no secret that trainmen attribute many of the wrecks in which some of their number lost their lives to the fact that the men in the shops were not capable of keeping the locomotives in repair.

Are Against Violence.

"I see that some are inclined to make much of an occurrence in Salt Lake Saturday night wherein three strikebreakers are said to have been attacked. I would like to have it emphasized, if you will, that the unions repudiate and absolutely discountenance any baiting of strikebreakers. If the company, as it is reported, means to discover the leaders of the mob, if mob there was, we hope they will succeed in finding them, and we will do our best to help them if they want us to. We do not stand for that kind of business, not for a second."

Mr. Hannon will remain in Salt Lake a day or two. Then he will go to Ogden, and from Ogden he will go eastward. At this time he is the only national vice president west of the Mississippi. He is from Oklahoma, and was elected vice president last fall. Prior to that time he had been a special organizer.

Fifteen apprentices went out at the Rio Grande shops yesterday morning. Their walkout was voluntary, the unions not having power or jurisdiction over them.

The second conference between the executive board and the arbitration committee of the Commercial club, which was to have been held yesterday, will be held today.

AMUSEMENTS.

It may be rank heresy to say so, but somehow Dustin Farnum isn't missed in, or out of, "The Virginian." W. S. Hart takes the name part this year. The comparison is inevitable, but it is by no means to the disadvantage of Mr. Hart. In some respects he does it better than Farnum, and in all respects he does it as well. Mr. Hart is no stranger in the part of a cowpuncher, though he is having his first experience as a good cowpuncher. He played Cash Hawkins, the bad man, in the original "Squaw Man" company and won a large and enthusiastic measure of approval. Mr. Hart does the soft Virginia dialect delightfully. He may not help the picture as much from the beauty standpoint as Farnum did, but that is not his fault. And he more than makes up for it by his acting.

Frank Campeau, the best cowboy villain this or any other stage has ever seen, is still in the cast. One could find it possible to forgive a lot of shortcomings in a company containing Frank Campeau. He is the bad man with the breath of life in him, his hand ever on his gun, but with a streak of cowardice that always demands more than a shade the better of the argument before entering upon it. Mr. Campeau's work has often been commented upon with favor in this department. It seems only necessary now to say that he improves, if that were possible, upon better acquaintance. Some day some genius is going to write a play in which it will be possible to star the bad man. When that happens there will be nothing to it but Frank Campeau. He is an artist to the tips of his fingers.

In Anne Meredith a new and better Molly Wood is presented. The part at best is a difficult one. In the first two acts Miss Meredith is all that could be desired. She is sweet, and womanly, and lovable. It seems impossible to find an actress who really measures up to the possibilities of the last act. Miss Meredith comes closer to it than any Molly Wood who has been seen here, but she isn't excited enough. Genuine hysterics are permissible in a woman, a Yankee school teacher, who knows that the man she is to marry the next day is about to engage in a duel to the death. Also, hysterical joy is permissible when she finds he has escaped without injury. A normal woman would not see the man go into the duel without shedding a tear, nor would she see him come back, as from the dead, without an outburst of joyful emotion.

The company is in the main capable. Campeau and Hart, the big figures in the drama, make "The Virginian" worth while. It should by all means be seen. The engagement runs through Wednesday night and includes a matinee on Wednesday.

The Orpheum management presents a fine bill again this week, and that, for at least the first night, under extreme difficulties. The railroads have often been to blame for the state of the show the first night, but last night, whether to blame or not, the accident this side of Ogden delayed the half of the bill and crippled some of the acts slightly. However, only one number was bad, and that came at a time when any old stunt would be welcomed—after a long wait.

The pantomime work of Fred Walton and his company is something quite out of the ordinary, and the little act "Cissey's Dream" is splendidly done. The act was given last place on the bill last night, and it really may be said to be the headliner, despite its place. A wonderful gymnastic act is done by the Dantzer trio, although the contortions of the male member are too grotesque to suit the taste of most people. The dancer of the trio is one of the finest seen here this season, and her gymnastic work certainly puts her in the first class.

The clever comedienne, Eleanor Falke, with her touch of melody and her infinite amount of saucy laughter, is here once more, and she makes as much of a kit as she has done heretofore, which is saying a good deal. Sadie Sherman, billed as a baritone and mimic, makes good, not so much with her baritone as with her original imitations. One of the funniest numbers is that presented by Cole and Rags, two clever jugglers with eccentricities galore.

The one poor number is done by Gorman and West. There was a sound at one spot in the alleged act when a buzzer rang as if some one in authority had ordered the curtain down, but it refused to work, and the audience was obliged to witness the thing through. A good many kinodrome films were run through to entertain between waits, and two fine orchestra numbers with a shorter selection here and there to fill made up the musical part.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra and soloists arrived at Ogden yesterday morning, where they gave two great performances. This morning they pass through Salt Lake on their way to give a concert at Provo this evening. Professor Stephens and Professor Shepherd will both join the orchestra at Salt Lake to hold an afternoon rehearsal. Professor Stephens on the "Golden Legend," and Professor Shepherd on his own composition. All are said to be in delightful trim, being a much superior and larger organization than that of last year. There was a rush for tickets at the Clayton Music company yesterday. On the lower floor and center there remain about 200 seats unsold, and the best seats in the gallery are fast going. General admission and students' tickets have geen in great demand.

"The Telephone Exchange" is this week's offering at the Lyric. It is a comedy opera and opened its run last evening to one of the best houses the Lyric has ever seen. Standing room was at a premium, and much applause was given each number, especially the prize cakewalk. All of the costumes are pretty and the songs and dances new and novel. The fun dished out by Mortimer and West and the others is far in advance of any so far. One or two weak spots in the bill slide by so fast and are so overshadowed by cleverness that they do not count.

BIG FIGHT ON IN MASSACHUSETTS

Taft Not Likely to Get Instructed Delegation From Old Bay State.

Boston, March 30.—Tomorrow Republican voters in Massachusetts will have an opportunity at the state primaries for the spring conventions to express their preferences for the party's candidates for president. The campaign which closed tonight has been one of the warmest previous to a national convention for many years. It has been fought on the question whether the coming state and district conventions shall instruct the thirty-two delegates to vote for Secretary William H. Taft for president and adopt resolutions in his favor, or whether they shall leave the delegates free to act at Chicago as they see fit. No other presidential candidate has been mentioned. The party leaders have been considerably divided on the question of instructed or uninstructed delegations.

Both Sides Make Claims.

Tonight the leaders of the Taft movement claimed twenty-five of the thirty-two delegates to Chicago. The advocates of an unpledged delegation claim twenty-nine delegates who, they say, do not wish to be bound, but they admit that Secretary Taft will have at least fifteen Massachusetts delegates at Chicago.

There are five candidates for the four places on the state ticket for delegates at large to be chosen at the state convention on April 10, and there are more or less strenuous contests in nine of the fourteen districts—the Second, Third, Fourth, Sixth, Eighth, Tenth, Eleventh, Thirteenth and Fourteenth. In the other five the candidates will probably have no opposition at their conventions, notwithstanding some are outspokenly for Taft while others are reticent as to their preference for president.

Long Against Taft.

There is apparently no opposition to making Senators Henry Cabot Lodge and W. Murray Crane and ex-Governor John L. Bates, three of the four delegates at large. The contest is over the fourth delegateship, for which Colonel Sidney O. Bigney and former Secretary of the Navy John D. Long are aspirants. The Taft supporters favor Bigney, while those favoring an unpledged delegation are for Long. The contests in the Second and Sixth districts have been waged with great vigor especially in the last three weeks.

OFFICER GOES WRONG.

Misappropriates Funds Belonging to Bingham Local Lodge Woodmen of the World.

(Special to The Herald.)

Bingham, March 30.—R. R. Henry, record keeper of the local lodge of the Woodmen of the World, was arrested for embezzlement and arraigned before Judge Lee at 11 a. m. today. He was released on $250 bonds, with C. E. Adderly and John Sindar as sureties.

It is claimed that Mr. Henry failed to remit the amounts collected from the members as premiums on policies carried by them and that the same have lapsed.

D. A. Moulis Kologewkis and George Tascosis, two Greeks charged with stealing coal from the Rio Grande Western railway, were arrested at 4 p. m. today. Each deposited $5 for his appearance before Judge Lee at 2 p. m. Tuesday. The five Italians who were arrested Sunday for a similar offense forfeited their bonds and have disappeared.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Goodell died at 1:30 today. Rev. Spalding of Salt Lake City will conduct the funeral services at residence at 3 p. m. Tuesday. Burial at Bingham cemetery.

FIRE DESTROYS HIS OUTFIT.

Ephraim, March 30.—A new buggy, a lap robe and an overcoat were completely destroyed by fire at Gunnison on Saturday. Al Larsen, who was the owner of the vehicle, left it standing near a bunch of willows while he finished cleaning his irrigating ditches, and burning some rubbish near by. A wind came up very suddenly and he forgot that he had left the buggy where it could easily get burned, and not until it was completely destroyed did he think of it.

Funeral services over the remains of the 14-year-old son of Richard Woolsey were held in the meeting house yesterday at 5 o'clock. Many relatives and friends were present to pay their respects to the departed. His parents are heartbroken, as he had only been sick for a week and never looked for the sudden change. Pneumonia was the cause of his death.

FOUR MONTHS IN JAIL.—Peter Sera, an Italian who passed about $300 worth of bad checks about two months ago, was sentenced to four months in the county jail by Police Judge Diehl yesterday. Sera's trial was delayed because he pretended to have wealthy relatives in Italy who would assist him in his trouble and pay back the money he obtained from his victims. As his relatives did not materialize after two months of waiting, Sera agreed to plead guilty and throw himself upon the mercy of the court.

This is the time heretofore set for the passing of sentence on Sullivan.

SCANDAL IN THE BUREAU OF FORESTRY

government had nothing to do, and that their expenses had been paid out of the federal treasury.

He knew, he said, that it was not safe to attack the forestry bureau because of the influence it had over the country. "That influence," he declared, "is used to such extent that men's motives are bound to be impugned and men are certain to be attacked in the newspapers and in the cheap periodicals of the country every time they presume even to suggest that this service is not entirely free from criticism."

False Entries in Forestry Books.

Mr. Scott protested that Mr. Mondell was mistaken in saying government money had been improperly used, but in reply Mr. Mondell suggested that there had been false entries in the forestry office books in order to cover up the expenditures.

The amendment was adopted, and its adoption served to make Mr. Mondell more aggressive. He followed up his success and attacked the bureau's publicity department and offered an amendment prohibiting the use of any part of the appropriation to pay for any newspaper or magazine articles advertising the bureau's work.

Mr. Scott again sprang to the defense of Mr. Pinchot and read a letter from him justifying the news items on the ground that it was necessary to convert scientific knowledge into common knowledge, and that the periodical press was the best means of distributing the information to the people.

Amendment Adopted.

The subject was discussed for some time, when Mr. Mondell insisted that he was not opposing the distribution of the information when given out in a proper way. His amendment did not, he declared, reach those news items bearing the statement that the news emanated from the forestry bureau.

The amendment was adopted.

The chair overruled a point of order against another amendment by Mr. Mondell providing that no part of the appropriation shall be used "for the administration of any lands in a national forest in a township in which less than 50 per cent of the land is public land and less than one-fourth of the public land is timbered."

Following a brief discussion the amendment was lost.

Speaker in a Rage.

Mr. Williams (Miss.), the minority leader, opposed a motion by Mr. Scott to lay the bill aside, and forced a vote by tellers. The motion carried, 57 to 45.

Mr. Williams filibustered again on a motion to adjourn. By a vote of 65 to 45, a strict party vote, the house agreed to adjourn, but the Democrats, under Mr. Williams' leadership, forced a roll call on the question, thereby making good his threat of last week to require such a call on every affirmative vote until certain legislation is enacted. While the roll was being called members poured into the chamber in such numbers that it soon took an opening day appearance.

Speaker Cannon clearly displayed anger when Democrats rose in sufficient numbers to order the call. He brought down his gavel with such force that it flew from his hand, and he threw himself back in his chair to await the conclusion of the tedious procedure.

The vote resulted: Ayes, 103; noes, 88. The house accordingly adjourned at 5:31 p. m.

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND

London, March 30.—The house of commons tonight, after a lengthy debate on the question of home rule for Ireland, adopted by a vote of 313 to 157 a resolution moved by John E. Redmond, the Nationalist leader, that "in the opinion of this house a solution of this problem can only be attained by giving the Irish people legislative and executive control of all purely Irish affairs," after the resolution had been amended by adding the words, "all subject to the supreme authority of the imperial parliament."

It was known beforehand that the debate could have but an academic interest because the government had already pledged that there would be no deal in the matter of home rule until it had been given a mandate at the general election. But the debate was made notable by the strong declaration of Chancellor Asquith, which was all the weightier because made at the moment Mr. Asquith is actually assuming the premiership.
