ACTIVE SUMMER IN REAL ESTATE

Eastern Investors Preparing to Secure Large Local Holdings in Salt Lake.

BUILDING WORK IS PUSHED

SEVERAL LARGE STRUCTURES NEARING COMPLETION.

Summer dullness has not reached Salt Lake real estate circles. Two parties of eastern capitalists are now in the city endeavoring to complete two of the most important deals of the season. They have been here for some time, working as quietly as possible in the hope of getting possession of the desired property before their purpose becomes known, but owing to the extent of their undertakings have not yet succeeded in coming to a satisfactory understanding with all of the owners concerned.

Real estate men say that during the past week there was an active and insistent inquiry for property. The demand was particularly great for homes and home building sites. As a consequence, considerable property on the outskirts of the city changed hands.

Apartment House Building.

Apartment house building continues to interest investors as much as ever.

Ashton and Jenkins are now arranging to finance a new apartment house enterprise and next Monday excavation for the foundation will be commenced at 8 West North Temple street for the apartment house which Joseph William Taylor is to build at that location. The building will cost $20,000. The plans were drawn by Dallas & Hedges, and the contract for the work of construction has been awarded to Miller & Jensen.

As the excavation for the Auerbach theater in Third South street, between Main and State streets, has been completed; the contracts for the work upon the structure will be awarded early this week, probably next Tuesday. Actual work upon the theater building will begin about August 1. It will be hurried along as rapidly as possible, so that the theater can be opened for play goers as early in the amusement season as possible.

Plans for New Theatre.

Plans for the Newhouse-Beck theatre are almost completed by Ware & Treganza. It is expected that the building of this second playhouse will be commenced immediately after the return of Samuel Newhouse from New York.

Mr. Newhouse is on his way back to Salt Lake from the east. He is expected here early in the week, unless he decided to stop at some city on the way.

Many important results are expected from Mr. Newhouse's visit to New York.

In addition to conferring with Martin Beck of the Orpheum vaudeville circuit concerning the $200,000 theater which the two are to erect at State and Exchange place, it is believed that Mr. Newhouse completed arrangements for the building of the $1,200,000 Newhouse hotel at Main and Fourth South streets. When Mr. Newhouse went away he had $500,000 available for the construction of his magnificent hotel, but although he had caused the old Walker home to be torn down from the hotel site, he was unwilling to begin new building operations until he had made complete financial arrangements.

The eleven-story Newhouse and Boston blocks at Main street and Exchange place are now approaching completion. The outer stone walls are up to the sixth story upon each of the skyscrapers and the work in the interior of the structures is being hurried along. It is expected that the business and professional men who have leased offices in the building will be able to move in some time this fall.

Tenants Seeking New Quarters.

The conditions at the Judge building, it is believed, will be repeated at the Newhouse structures. Although the interior of the Judge building is not yet entirely completed and elevators designed mainly for the convenience of workmen are still in use, scores of tenants have moved in already and others are following.

As many of the offices in the Newhouse blocks have been rented, the buildings will fill up with tenants as soon as this is permitted.

As the opening of the skyscrapers will mean the beginning of substantial returns to Mr. Newhouse from his Salt Lake building activities and as it will enable him to take up the consideration of other projects, it is expected that he will make interesting announcements on his return, of which the new $200,000 theater will be only a small part.

In addition to the hotel site, Mr. Newhouse owns the property at the northwest corner of Main and Fourth South streets, across from where the hotel is to be built, and the property at the southwest corner of Main street and Postoffice place.

As he did not buy this property for the purposes of speculation, but to carry out large building undertakings, considerable interest is being shown in the expected announcement of his plans.

Preliminary Work on Buildings.

Work of excavation is progresssing rapidly at the site of the $100,000 office building which the Mormon church is to erect at South Temple and Richards street; at the site of the J. J. Daly block, at State and Fourth South streets, and at the site of the Salisbury building, in Main street, north of the Newhouse buildings. Numerous excavations for smaller buildings and homes have been commenced. Several small one-story store buildings in Second South street and in Third South street are approaching completion.

The excavation for the foundation for the $300,000 McIntyre-McCornick block has been completed and the work of construction will soon begin.

Excavation for the meeting house which the Twelfth and Thirteenth wards of the Mormon church are to erect jointly is also about completed. Rutherford & Hanson, the architects, have almost finished the plans.

All of the apartment houses commenced early in the season will be ready for use by fall. Some of the smaller structures have been finished and tenants have already moved in.

New Bank Opened.

Early in the week Salt Lake's banking institutions received an important addition with the opening of the Merchants' bank, in the Judge building. W. J. Halloran of the Halloran-Judge company is president of the bank, and all the other men interested in the institution stand high in financial circles.

Inquiries for outside property indicate that there will be early additions to Salt Lake's industries. A number of men engaged in manufacturing enterprises in other parts of the country are looking toward Salt Lake as a favorable location.

Travelers through the city are outspoken in their praise of the hustling, enterprising spirit which attracts their attention here.

A New Yorker, who has recently crossed the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific, dropped into the Rio Grande ticket office yesterday to see Colonel Irving A. Benton.

"Right now there is more life in Salt Lake than in New York," he said. "If all my interests were not in the east I would come to Salt Lake to live. The enterprising, go-ahead spirit here appeals to me, and everything I see convinces me that Salt Lake is a great place for a business man. I like the way Salt Lakers pull together."

He hadn't seen a knocker since he struck town, he said.

NEW ROADWAY IN FEDERAL HEIGHTS

Petrolithic Pavement Forms a Link in Fine Drive to Fort Douglas.

The new petrolithic pavement through Federal Heights was completed yesterday, and there is now a pavement all the way to Fort Douglas. The Federal Heights pavement runs along the continuation of Brigham to Federal Way, and along Federal Way to the macadamized road leading to the post.

Automobilists who tried the new pavement yesterday were much pleased with it. It is the first pavement of this character in Utah and will be used to a great extent on the other streets of Federal Heights. The pavement has been in use in southern California for a number of years and is pronounced a success there. In California the first petrolithic pavements were made only three inches deep. One of this depth lasted five years without patching. Present specifications in Los Angeles call for a depth of six inches.

The method of petrolithic paving is interesting. The ground is plowed to a depth of nine inches. This is in the case of the Federal Heights paving which has been done to a greater depth than the California streets. Then the ground is thoroughly pulverized, after which asphalt oil, 70 per cent pure asphalt, is poured over it, four gallons to the square yard. The oil is turned under with a gang plow. Then an immense machine is run over the ground. The machine weighs 7,000 pounds and is so arranged that it tamps the ground with pegs shaped like sheep's hoofs. The machine is so adjusted that the whole weight of the machine comes upon each of these two-inch pegs in turn, the result being the most perfect tamping possible. This entire process was repeated with a six-inch plowing and again with a three-inch plowing, after which two inches of gravel is spread on the surface and tamped down.

The paving is described as soft yet durable and moist enough to prevent dust. There are about 400 yards in all of the new paving completed.

SCHULZ'S SIGN LANGUAGE

Detective Succeeds in Interviewing Deaf and Dumb Pair at Command of Chief Pitt.

Anyone who believes the postion of detective on the Salt Lake police force is a sinecure should consult Detective Fred Schulz. If the questioner escapes bodily punishment he will at least receive an ugly look.

Some time ago Chief Pitt received a communication from the east, which requested that he would investigate the condition of one August Johnson and his sister, who were at the time living in the city and who had appealed to the writers for monetary assistance. Chief Pitt selected Detective Schulz as the man to investigate the case and turned the letter over to him. A little later Schulz entered the chief's office with a puzzled look upon his face.

"Say, chief," he announced. "This letter says that these people are Swedes, that they don't read English and are both deaf and dumb. How am I going to talk to them?"

"That's up to you," answered the chief, with a happy smile. "A detective ought to know everything."

Detective Schulz departed, grinding his teeth with rage, but reported later to the chief that he had gained the information desired by means of the sign language. All future deaf and dumb prisoners will be turned over to him for examination.

CYCLONE AND KID READY FOR SCRAP

Two Sluggers Who Like the Going Meet at Ogden Next Tuesday Night.

On next Tuesday evening fight fans of the state will have a chance to see two men in action, who, on dope, ought to put up one of the hardest fights seen around here for many a day. They are Kid Dalton and Cyclone Thompson. Both are sluggers and gluttons for punishment. Perhaps no two lightweights in the ring today, barring always Battling Nelson, like the gaff as these two boys do and thrive under blows which would be the undoing of most men. The men are both in good shape and have had considerable time to train for the event.

Cyclone Thompson needs no introduction around Salt Lake or Ogden. He is well known and always puts up a scrap that pleases the public. Dalton is a stranger, but comes well recommended from Los Angeles, where he was picked up and put in the game by James J. Jeffries. The big champion vouches for him as one of the coming lightweights of the day, but Dalton's record does that without boosting from the boilermaker.

Here are a few of the fights he has made in the past two and a half years:

Kid Snyder, ten rounds, knockout.
Earl Sayne, ten rounds, draw.
Earl Sayne, six rounds, draw.
Caesar Attel, ten rounds, decision.
Caesar Attel, ten rounds, decision.
Joe Kelsey, six rounds, draw.
Joe Kelsey, two rounds, knockout.
Harry Baker, ten rounds, lost decision.
Jimmy Ford, ten rounds, draw.
Jimmy Ford, ten rounds; decision.
Joe Reilly, ten rounds, draw.
Joe Reilly, ten rounds, lost decision.
Len Lauder, ten rounds, draw.
Len Lauder, ten rounds, decision.
Phil Brock, ten rounds, no decision.
Pete Sullivan, fifteen rounds, decision.
Frank Carsey, twenty-five rounds, lost decision.

In the fight with Pete Sullivan on Decoration day in Los Angeles the Spaghetti Kid knocked him down five times in one round, and Sullivan was saved from a knockout by the bell.

Gets Back at Nelson.

While Battling Nelson was in the city he picked Dalton to win and incidentally answered Cyclone Thompson's challenge for the fight by saying he wouldn't want any more fight after Dalton got through with him.

Manager Lichtenstein, of Cyclone Thompson, takes exception to the Battler's statement, and answers him in a letter, as follows:

"Kindly insert the following in your column, as same will no doubt prove of vital interest to our present light weight champion, Battling Nelson. On behalf of Johnny Thompson, I take exception to the Dane's statement. That the Cyclone could not hurt him if he fought him all day. Bat can rest assured if he ever gives Johnny Thompson the opportunity to demonstrate his hitting ability in a contest both the Dane and the sporting public will receive the surprise of their lives. Johnny has fought 179 battles, and his coming fight at the hot springs on July 28 will make it an even 180. In all of these battles no pugilist ever put him down for the count. To use Johnny's own words: 'The Battler can't whip me in a week. If Nelson would like to see Johnny at his best let him come and see the Cyclone dispose of his selection, Kid Dalton, and then I think he will realize that the man to wrest the championship from him is none other than the Cyclone."

A special train will leave Salt Lake for the Ogden hot springs, where the fight is to be held, on Tuesday night, and will return to Salt Lake immediately after the fight.

BIG CHECKER MATCH ON.

Drouillard Meets Barker for $2,000 Stake.

J. A. Drouillard of Kansas City, who beat Hugh MacKean of this city in a checker match at Kansas City two years ago by a score of five to three, is matched to play C. F. Barker of Boston, champion of America and one-time champion of the world, for a stake of $2,000. The match will begin on November 2, and will be under the two-move restriction. Drouillard played Barker soon after his match with MacKean and won two games, lost one and drew five. This meeting was friendly and was not supposed at the time to indicate the merits of the two men.

RACES AT SALTAIR TONIGHT

The regular Sunday night's bicycle races will be held at Saltair this evening. As a feature a tandem match race of two miles has been arranged between Downing and Mayer on one machine and Hollister and Wilcox on the other. A big three-mile lap handicap will take care of the field of professionals. For the amateurs a half mile open and a two-mile handicap are down on the program. The races start promptly at 8:30 p. m.

WILL HONOR VICTORS.

New York, July 25.—Plans are under way for a monster homecoming celebration in honor of the American athletes. The matter was taken up today with Acting Mayor McGowan. President Roosevelt will be invited to address the victorious athletes on the day they reach New York, and Governor Hughes has assured the committee that his state desires to honor the men.

SIEGELS VS. AMERICAN LINENS.

The Siegel baseball team meets the American Linens on the Fort Douglas grounds this morning at 10 o'clock. The Siegels have now won their last four games, and since the season started have played twenty-one games, winning fourteen of them. Their line-up today will be:

Hanson, catcher; Sowadzyi or Wiscomb, pitcher; Sowadzki, first base; May, second base; Gleason, shortstop; Belford, third base; Striker, right field, Merickel, center field; Bloomfield, left field.

LEAGUE BASEBALL TODAY.

Two state league baseball games will be played today. Owing to the work going on at Walker's field on the new coursing track it is impossible to play ball there today, and the Salt Lake game has been transferred to Lagoon. Special baseball trains leave Salt Lake at 2 and 3 this afternoon, and both will take fans to the grounds in time for the beginning of the game at 3:30. Salt Lake plays Murray at Lagoon. The Occidentals meet Ogden for the first time this season in a league game at Ogden.

M'KEAN DEFEATS TEXAS MAN.

W. W. Witt, principal of the Lannan school, at Fort Worth, Tex., and said to be the champion checker player in the Lone Star state, was in Salt Lake the other day. He hunted up Hugh McKean, the Utah champion, and played a series of five games, of which one was drawn and the remaining four won by MacKean.

Y. M. C. A. TEAM MAKES TRIP.

The Y. M. C. A. and Riverside teams met in the morning at Riverside, Riverside being utterly outclassed by the Y.M. C. A. team. The game ended with a score of 10 to 2 in favor of the Y. M. C. A. In the afternoon, Y. M. C. A. met Garland, at Garland. The first six innings the score stood 2 to 2, at which time the Y. M. C. A. catcher, Howell, received a serious injury, which had a dampening effect on the entire team. Score ended 6 to 2 in favor of Garland.

Ludlow, pitcher for the Y. M. C. A., pitched an excellent game, while Develin, on second, made a grand showing. Metcalf, Y. M. C. A.'s shortstop, only having one assist.

BY BANDS OF STEEL.

British Possessions in Africa Connected by Railways.

(Wm. E. Curtis, in Washington Star.)

There are now more than 5,000 miles of railway in South Africa, running northward from Cape Town through the Transvaal into Rhodesia, as the British possessions in Central Africa have been called, in honor of the late Cecil Rhodes. The northern termini at present are Salisbury, the capital of South Rhodesia, and Kalamo, the capital of Northwest Rhodesia. It is now possible to go from London to either of those places in twenty-one to twenty-two days. An express train meets the steamer at Cape Town and carries passengers to Kimberley (647 miles) in thirty-one hours, Johannesburg (957 miles) in forty-seven hours, Pretoria (1,002 miles) in fifty hours, Bulawayo (1,352 miles) in seventy hours, Victoria Falls in ninety-two hours, and Salisbury (1,663 miles) in ninety-two hours, and Kalamo (1,748 miles) in a hundred hours.

Railway From Mombasa.

There is also a railroad from Mombasa into the interior of British East Africa as far as Fort Florence, a new town on Lake Victoria Nyanza, covering a distance of 584 miles, and the journey is made in about thirty-six hours with sleeping and dining cars said to be quite comfortable. Lake Victoria Nyanza is the greatest body of water in Africa and is about the size of Lake Huron. It is the real source of the Nile, just as Lake Tanganyika is the source of the Congo.

Mombasa is becoming quite an important commercial city and it is visited by four lines of steamers—British, German, Austrian and French—from Bombay and Rangoon, and through steamers come from Marseilles and Trieste. It is said to be a very comfortable passage down the east coast of Africa, with much of interest for tourists, and the East African company has provided a hotel at Lake Victoria Nyanza that is quite attractive. There is also a club there for the benefit of Englishmen and others who go in to shoot big game.

The province of Uganda is now recognized as an independent kingdom under a British protectorate, with a native ruler called a "kabaka." The present kabaka, his highness Daudi Chua, being a minor, is represented by a regency of three native chiefs and a European adviser. There is a native assembly which passes laws, raises revenue and votes a budget, and native courts having jurisdiction over the people. There is also a court of appeals, which is partly native and partly British. A good many foreigners are going in to develop the wonderful natural resources of the country. Gold, copper and iron are found in large quantities, and the rubber trade is developing very rapidly.

The missionaries, both Catholic and Protestant, have been remarkably successful, and in the Uganda protectorate at present, in a native population of 4,000,000 there are more than 1,000 churches and about 250,000 converts.

The journey from Mombasa to Lake Victoria Nyanza shows some very attractive scenery following the base of a high range of mountains and offering a view of several high peaks, including Mt. Kenlo, which is 18,370 feet, Mt. Aberdeen, 19,000 feet, and Mt. Elgon, 14,030 feet.

Through the Jungle.

Adventuresome people, who do not mind roughing it, can follow a trail northward about 200 miles to Gondocoro, the head of navigation on the Nile, and there take a steamer to Khartum, which is said to be a delightful journey. The forests are filled with wild beasts and sometimes passengers may see lions and tigers from the car windows. A party of friends who made the trip last fall saw three lions standing calmly on a hillock watching the train with evident curiosity as it passed by, and a story is told of one of the station agents who wired to the next town asking that the next train bring to his place a squad of soldiers with rifles to raise a siege that was being conducted against him by a huge lion, which had occupied the platform for nearly twelve hours. The agent had barred his doors and barricaded his windows and had been compelled to remain in seclusion without food since the previous evening. He had no means of communicating with the neighboring settlement and as there was only one train a day he was compelled to wait for the relief it brought.

It is also possible to take a through train at the East African seaport of Beira, on the Indian ocean, three times a week, and go direct to Cape Town, a distance of 2,037 miles, with sleepers and dining cars. Beira is a Portuguese town in the state of Lourenco Marquez, south of the mouths of the Zambesi river. The railway is owned partly by the Portuguese and partly by the English. The dining and sleeping cars are managed by the colonial government and the Zambesi express, as it is called, looks very much like one of the limited trains on our railroads.

The Zambesi river is crossed at Victoria falls by a bridge 650 feet long and 420 feet high, which was built by an American company and opened to traffic in September, 1905.

As usual, cholera has broken out among the pilgrims, who fall easy victims to the disease because of insufficient nourishment, fatigue and the privations, discomforts and exposure to which they have been subjected during their journeys. When these plagues occur the pilgrims die like the locusts of Egypt, and go straight to the presence of the prophet. Therefore they do not dread death or take sanitary precautions to protect themselves, as they otherwise would.

Water and Light for Medina.

Consul General Rayndal of Beirut, who is the best posted American in all that country, wrote the secretary of state not long ago that an English firm had been given a contract to light the great Islanic sanctuary at Medina with electricity, and also that the sultan has issued an irade to furnish a pure and sufficient water supply for the city of Medina. The latter is extremely important because of its effect on the plagues that recur every day.

Extraordinary efforts are being made to protect Egypt, Palestine and other sections in that neighborhood from the cholera. For years every plague that has occurred could be traced directly to returning pilgrims, who brought the disease with them from Mecca.

This railroad from Damascus, when completed, may enable the sultan to suppress the chronic rebellion in Arabia by furnishing means of transportation for troops and military supplies. Hitherto he has been compelled to rely on ships, which have landed his men, his munitions of war and provisions on hostile shores where means of interior transportation were very difficult to obtain and to operate. Thousands of men have been sacrificed every year in attempts to put down these rebellions. Shiploads of conscripts have been sent from various ports on the Mediterranean, but few of them have ever returned. Their bones lie bleaching on the deserts of southern Arabia.

There is a good deal of railway building in northern Africa and the Egyptian trunk line, following the valley of the Nile, also, is being pushed rapidly southward, so that very shortly it will be possible to cover the entire distance between Khartum and Cairo on the cars.

The Railway to Mecca.

The railroad which the sultan of Turkey is building from Damascus south to Mecca for the transportation of pilgrims to the holy city of Mohammed and at the same time for the transportation of troops to suppress the revolutions organized by the Wahabites, who refuse to acknowledge the spiritual as well as the temporal authority of the sultan, is progressing rapidly. German and French engineers are in charge of the work and the labor is done by soldiers of the Turkish army, who are paid no wages and are very poorly cared for. Most of the material comes from France and Belgium, but a little has been imported from the United States.

The sultan has recently issued an order requiring the road to be completed to Mecca, a distance of 280 miles, before the next pilgrimage, which will take place in the winter of 1908-9. He has also ordered the construction of the branch line, a distance of eleven miles, from Mecca to Mount Ararat, where important religious ceremonies occur annually during each pilgrimage.

Last year the number of pilgrims visiting Mecca, according to the official reports, was 280,000; this year the number is estimated at 300,000, although those figures are believed to be greatly exaggerated. About two-thirds of these pilgrims are expected to patronize the railway, and trains will be run especially for their accommodation.

DRAMATIC NOTE.

(Cleveland Leader.)

"I understand you've been working with a bunch of trained fleas."

"That's right."

"Got any dates yet?"

"Provisional. The act's been rehearsed to perfection, but the managers are a little uncertain about how it'll hit the public. So I am going to take it to a one-night stand next week and 'try it on the dog.'"

THE EASY WAY.

(Washington Herald.)

You meet him now
Upon the street,
And here is how
He doth you greet:
"Well, Bill Taft heads the ticket, bo!
You'll recollect I told you so."

You have not seen
This man for years;
But you're not mean,
As it appears,
For you just grin and shift your quid
And say: "That's right. I know you did."

AT ALL SODA FOUNTAINS

INSIST!!!

When you step up to a fountain or into a place where bottled drinks are sold tell the man you want Coca-Cola. Close your ears to the "just as good" argument because there is nothing just as good as Coca-Cola. INSIST. You have asked for Coca-Cola because you are convinced that is what you want—don't let a smooth-tongued salesman rule your judgement. If the man insists go to a place where they give their customers what they ask for. Imitations are made to deceive you, not to please you.

Coca-Cola

THE REASON—Coca-Cola not only quenches thirst and pleases the palate but it relieves fatigue, and is the only beverage that has vim and go to it.
