The coming week bids fair to be a very busy one in a social way. So many large affairs in either musical or society circles are planned that already the popular ones are beginning to wonder how the season is to turn out. At least two large dances are scheduled for the near future, and there are a number more in course of arrangement. The out-of-town guests are to receive a great deal of attention during the autumn months, as they are numerous and, altogether, the fall of 1908 promises much in a social way.

* * *

The remodeling of the Alta club is completed, and the bachelors have announced their willingness to have the sacred precincts invaded for an hour and a half two evenings a week. By retiring early on the other nights it is thought they may be able to stand the strain that often. The club itself is a dream—that is, with limitations. The long time spent on it would indicate that the repairs have been most extensive.

There was one good haul overlooked at the time of the Yellowstone park hold-up, and it was a Salt Lake man who was the one who didn't lose by it, too. Following the return from the scene of action, a company of friends was asking the wife of this man for details, and exclaiming over the thrilling account.

"Did your husband lose much?" she was asked.

"He gave up everything but his brogue," was the ready reply.

* * *

The call had been extended long beyond the usual time for such an occasion, and the two callers were seeking vainly some means of saying good-bye. Just at this trying stage, a younger daughter of the house entered an adjoining room and set a phonograph working, all unconscious of the callers. The tune that slowly and with deep feeling rolled to their startled ears was, "Bid Me Good-bye, and Go."

* * *

The younger set, which has kept the town in a constant whirl since the schools and colleges closed in the springtime, is rapidly putting away summer things and getting back to work. Whole parties of them have departed for schools and colleges during the past week, and by the end of another week there will be nothing but an empty void where they have filled the time with merriment.

* * *

There is some talk of organizing a sort of an exploring expedition to Provo, a town to the south of us famed for its beauties. There have been so many exquisite samples of feminine beauty from that direction recently that a certain degree of curiosity has been aroused to see just what the region promises.

* * *

There is one autumn wedding coming up which will be a surprise to a good many who have thought things were shaped in an entirely different fashion. The trousseau is already ordered and it is to be one of the most elaborate ever seen locally.

* * *

There was one very artistic announcement made during the week to only a dozen intimate friends. Of course the thing will remain a dead secret among a dozen. Anyway, the happy pair may rest assured that the handsome hat pins are already announcing the coming marriage as O. K.

When a fair singer tends to impair the vision of a man, can she be said to be a prima donna, or should it be bella donna?

CURRENT EVENTS IN LOCAL SOCIETY

The Music Festival of the end of the week is to be a social affair as well as an artistic one. The stalls and the loges have all been taken by parties, and the first night the house will be one worth seeing. Colonel and Mrs. Holmes will entertain a party in one stall, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Geoghegan will entertain another, Senator and Mrs. Smoot have engaged a stall, Senator and Mrs. Sutherland another, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Cutler and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Nibley will entertain parties as well. At the matinee Saturday Miss Sybella Clayton will entertain a party of twelve in two stalls, and Miss Rhea Nibley will entertain a similar party on the other side of the house.

* * *

Miss Helen Boxrud entertained yesterday afternoon at a bridge tea for nearly fifty of her friends. Twelve tables of the game were played, and a number more came in later for tea. The house was gay with flowers, sunflowers and nasturtiums decorating the parlors and deep red dahlias and red shaded lights making the dining room most attractive. Here Mrs. William C. Druehl poured at the tea following the game, and Mrs. John W. Delano, Miss Eleanor Stewart and Miss Grace Bettles assisted.

* * *

One of the most important matrimonial affairs of the autumn will be the marriage tomorrow morning of Mrs. Winnifred Sprague Walker to Herman Alfred Prosser. The marriage will take place at noon, only the two families of the bride and groom being present. It will be a real country wedding at the bride's country home, Idlewild, and the ceremony will be performed by Rev. Elmer I. Goshen. The mother and brothers of the groom are expected from New York tonight.

* * *

Mrs. M. A. Stingley entertained about forty of her friends yesterday afternoon at a tea at her apartments in the Bransford. Red and white asters made the rooms cheery and bright, and here Mrs. Stingley was assisted in receiving by her daughters, Mrs. George C. Moore and Mrs. Richard Stingley. Her granddaughters, Mrs. J. J. Campbell and Miss Mary Moore poured tea and coffee, and Miss Georgeida Moore served punch.

Women's Clubs.

The opening of the club year was celebrated last Friday with one of the largest opening meetings ever held in the Ladies' Literary club house. The hall was well filled and a general air of deep interest pervaded the club despite the fact that it was the first meeting since the long vacation. The president's address, the only literary part of the program, was replete with helpful suggestions for a year of good work. Mrs. Sanford's main plea was for a greater and more united co-operation along lines of club work, and after a brief review of the splendid work done at the Boston biennial, which she attended, she closed with a strong plea for more united work on local subjects. She said, among other things:

"The Literary is now too large a club to be longer a conservative club. We should make it an incentive for those outside our portals to want to join us in our forward march. There are many women in the city who, were they members of the club, working members, would strengthen our organization. There are others to whom we might be a help. Seneca says 'God made man into men that they might help each other.' There is not one of us who cannot give something to some one else. There is not one of us who cannot gain. We get out of a club just what we put into it, and the club represents only the status of the members.

"Perhaps one thing more than all others that women need to learn is to believe in one another and to maintain a certain loyalty toward the principles for which the club stands. Let us have faith in each other and in ourselves. Your president is only a figurehead. She is absolutely powerless without the support of the organization at whose head she stands. I want you to remember this and to give to the club and to the officers who have been elected to serve you the coming year your loyalty, your fealty and your support."

Before beginning her talk Mrs. Sanford gave to the club a kindly message from Mrs. Royle, whose regret that she could not be with the club, as usual, at its opening meeting was shared by all the members. The music of the afternoon was particularly pleasing, Mrs. J. M. Davis giving two fine piano numbers and Albert Houghton, a new baritone, delighting his hearers with his vocal selections. Mr. Houghton sang "His Lullaby," by Carrie Jacobs Bond, and later "Marching Along." He was greeted with such an insistent encore that he responded with "Three Little Chestnuts."

The next club meeting will be the celebration of the wedding day of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning, and the day will be devoted to a study of Browning and readings.

* * *

The monthly meeting of the Spirit of Liberty chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was held last Thursday with Mrs. F. S. Bascom, when Mrs. C. S. Kinney was the chairman of the afternoon. Mrs. Thomas Weir read some of her own verses from "Kinnikinnick," and Miss Florence Allen read from her recently published book, "Patris." Miss Helen Hartley played the little lullaby written by Mrs. Weir as a violin solo, and short addresses were made by Mrs. Kinney and Mrs. Henry LaMotte, the chapter regent.

The Sixth Annual Fall Opening of Ourfalian's Collection of Oriental Rugs

OURFALIAN'S COLLECTION OF ORIENTAL RUGS

A cordial invitation is extended to our many patrons in and about Salt Lake City to visit the store upon the occasion of the annual fall opening of P. S. Ourfalian's collection of Oriental rugs and rare brasses.

Mr. Ourfalian's reputation as a connoisseur of Oriental art is well known. His recent journey to the Oriental rug markets of the east resulted in the addition of many valuable and antique specimens of woven art to his already large collection.

Realizing that shipments from Persia are at the lowest point in many years, and fearing, owing to the trouble in that country, that shipments might be altogether stopped, Mr. Ourfalian has been the largest buyer of these goods in the market this year. Inspection will prove of interest.

Absolute satisfaction is guaranteed our patrons on all purchases made in Mr. Ourfalian's department.

Keith-O'Brien Company

Salt Lake City, Utah,
