LOCAL BREVITIES.

Delightful weather.

How about the telephone?

Still the cutthroats come.

Fruit and vegetable wagonsare getting numerous.

Peoples Mercantile Company ad changes this week.

The Democratic club meets at headquarters Monday night.

Republican primary at the Brick schoolhouse Wednesday night.

Rev. Hawkes of Salt Lake will preach at the Congregational Church Sunday.

As we have before mentioned, Coalville needs and will support a laundry. Chinamen barred.

"Silver King" at the opera house tonight. After the play Prof. Kronnein's Orchestra will give a grand ball.

Look over, in this issue, the large advertisement of John Hopkin & Son, Echo. They quote prices that will draw trade.

Mr. T. J. Alley came down yesterday and made many hearts glad with the checks for the last month's labor at the mine.

Read the notice in another column of Puskett, Young and Wright, who will make their first shipment of cattle to Omaha on October 11th.

Parents, go and visit the public schools. The teachers invite you and are anxious to have you go. Have your children start at once to avoid their getting behind in their studies.

The Star Theater Company have decided to put in the entire week in Coalville. Tonight, by request, they play "The Silver King." To-morrow Saturday night, "Hoodman Blind" will be given.

George Williams and William Johnston, two boys of this city, were yesterday released from the Reform School on parole, in answer to a petition sent in by several citizens some time ago, and will reach home to-morrow.

It was quite a surprise to see the ground covered with snow on the morning of the 12th of September. In the year 1893 on the 31st of August and 1892 on the 12th of September the white crystals covered the ground.

On the 9th the Marsa mill shipped west 19 bars of bullion, containing 16,563.46 fine ounces of silver. Following is the ore shipments from the Mackintosh sampler for the past week: Anchor concentrates, 487,000; Silver King concentrates, 147,000; Varela concentrates 8,000. Total pounds, 642,000.—Record.

The mail pouches got slightly mixed Tuesday, or rather, the mail got mixed in the pouches, for the Coalville mail was put in the Wanship sack and the Wanship mail in the Coalville sack, somewhere between here and Salt Lake. As a consequence, we were without eastern mail Tuesday.

Mr. James McGregor, inventor for the Utah Central railroad, together with two consulting engineers were in Coalville Wednesday. Considerable importance is attached to this visit, for these gentlemen made this trip on purpose to look over the route between Coalville and Park City with a view of extending the Utah Central to this point at an early date.

Officer T. A. Stagg on Tuesday received a dispatch from Evanston to the effect that a horse thief had disappeared from that place and was thought to be in this locality. Mr. Stagg had to go before the grand jury on Thursday as a witness, and accordingly put Deputy Branch after the horsethief, who is now supposed to be in the vicinity of Kamas.

Complaints still come in about the numerous and seemingly incorrigible "kids" who succeed in making night hideous by their capers and actions. Of late several windows have been shattered in different parts of the town, and if the parties are caught they are likely to be given an opportunity to try their skill in escaping from the county jail.

Hewett's Minstrels gave two very pleasing performances to very slim houses on Friday and Saturday nights last. The company is composed of ten four members, all of whom were superior performers to the average people carried by ordinary attractions. It is understood from the first, that a city the size of Coalville can rarely expect a first-class attraction to bill, but for the class who do come to places of this size, the Hewetts are certainly above the average. The free dance given at the close of the last performance was well patronized, and Mr. Hewett undoubtedly carried away the impression that either a goodly number who engaged in dancing bought their gall with them or else he miscounted the receipts of the evening.

Mr. Mark Hopkins yesterday presented THE TIMES man a load of coal from his mine, with a request that we sample it. The coal was not assorted, but taken from the dump, and it proves without doubt to be the very best quality, and cannot be beaten in any country. Mr. Hopkins is running a night and day shift at the mine and everything is going along satisfactory.

Allen Jacobs on Monday evening succeeded in murdering another chicken thief that had been playing hide-and-seek in his hencoop for several nights. He espied him on the hillside with a fat fowl in his grasp, and securing a rifle pumped him full of lead. The thief proved to be another wildcat. This is the second one that has been killed in this neighborhood during the past couple of weeks.

The Webster Literary Society met last Monday night with a fair attendance, as usual, and the following exercises were carried out: Address, T. L. Allen, Jr.; select reading, J. T. Carruth; a brief description of Mexico by A. W. Steele; reading of the Literary paper, H. S. Calderwood. The following program was then read for next Tuesday night: Address, J. T. Carruth; reading, James Calderwood; parody, Thomas Salmon; declamation, John Calderwood; debate, "Resolved, that the Negroes Are Human;" affirmative, John Callis; negative, A. W. Steele. The society has changed its meeting night, and will hold its next on Tuesday night at 7:30 instead of Monday.

If there is a doubt lurking in the minds of Summit county people as to whether the finest vegetables in the land can be raised here, they can have it readily dispelled by calling at this office and examining some specimens we have in our window. The latest addition to our collection are two of the largest and finest onions the writer has ever seen. One weighs 2¼ and the other 2¼ pounds. The largest is eighteen inches in circumference, and as solid as a rock. They were raised by Mr. Thomas Beard, within two miles of Coalville. They should have been sent to the territorial fair, and Mr. Beard would in all likelihood receive a flattering reward for his skill in gardening. Who can beat them?

The Star Theater Company held the boards at Cluff's Hall all of this week, commencing Monday. The opening play was "The Silver King," which was greeted by a very small house. The play was well put on, and three of the company proved themselves very clever on the stage. Manager T. J. Quinn and his wife and V. E. Laubert are better artists than usually visit small towns, and at the close of the "Silver King" it was evident that very satisfactory entertainments would be given. On Tuesday night the "Galley-Slave" was presented, the house being very comfortably filled. The audience gave ample evidence that they were pleased. On Wednesday night "East Lynne" was given, and no better evidence of good playing could be had than the audible sobs throughout the audience and the tears that nearly every lady present failed to keep back. As Isabelle, Mrs. Quinn instantly grand. Mr. Quinn is a good Levison, and Mr. Laubert a strong Archibald. The house was fairly well filled, and although all went away sad and sobbing, they were pleased with the people who made them so. "Mazeppa" was played last night, and tonight, by request, "The Silver King" will be given. This is one of their strongest pieces, and will undoubtedly draw a good house. Professor Kronnein's Orchestra will give a grand ball after the play tonight, Friday, charging only 25 cents per couple. To-morrow night this company close their engagement with "Hoodman Blind." They have furnished a week of solid enjoyment to our theater goers.

A Great Feature

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla is that while it purifies the blood and sends it coursing through the veins full of richness and health, it also imparts new life and vigor to every function of the body. Hence the expression so often heard: "Hood's Sarsaparilla made a new person of me." It overcomes that tired feeling so common now.

HOOD'S PILLS are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, always reliable and beneficial.

Republican Primary.

There will be primary of the Republicans of Coalville in the Brick schoolhouse, on the evening of Wednesday, September 26, 1894, at 8 o'clock sharp. The purpose of this primary is to nominate a Justice of the Peace and a Constable. Also to elect six (6) delegates to attend the county convention to be held in Park City, September 29, 1894. The county convention will nominate three Selectmen, Probate Clerk, Recorder, sheriff, Prosecuting Attorney, Assessor, Treasurer, Surveyor and four delegates to the constitutional convention, to be held for in the coming election, November 6, 1894. By order of the precinct committee.

WILLIAM PARKETT, Chairman.
L. E. ELDREDGE, Secretary.

Cattle Bought or Sold on Commission.

We will make our first shipment of cattle this season to Omaha on October 11, 1894. Our object is to furnish a market for all kinds of fat cattle. Our experience last fall in shipping the largest number of cattle at one time brought better returns, especially on cows, bulls and stags than any other shipment from summit county. John Puskett of Hoytsville will look after our business in the north end, F. H. Wright of Coalville in the center and Robert Young of Wanship in the south end of the county. We guarantee correct and prompt returns. For commission rates see

ANOTHER ESCAPE

During a Half Hour's Absence the Whole "Pack" Got Out

It's an uncommon thing to hear of star boarders who admit that their fare and treatment is of the best, and who are never asked to pay up, jumping their boarding house, but Sunday the second case of this kind was put on the register of the Hotel d' Branch. And this time it was apparently a connected scheme to burst the hotel, for the boarders deserted in a body. The ungrateful scamps had never been asked for a cent and had no kicks coming, but they evidently considered that things were coming too easy, and therefore "cramped their style." They ate their breakfast Sunday with evident relish, and nothing that would indicate that the steak and coffee savored of the boarding house brand or that the milk was watered.

Probably no landlord was ever more attached to his guests than Deputy Branch had even set up with them nightly since their names were added to his register, carrying always a trusty Winchester to guard against their slumbers being disturbed. He could hardly be induced to leave them for a few minutes during the day.

But Sunday morning, after they had all eaten heartily and had lazily thrown themselves down on their downy couches to roll and smoke the festive cigarette, Mr. Branch surveyed with satisfaction the picture of contentment and concluded to tear himself away from them long enough to attend Sunday school. Also for the sacrifice! Pity the ingratitude of these soulless boarders. Their inhumanity to man at least made Branch mourn; for no sooner had he taken off his hat and smoothed his disordered locks in the house of worship, then he was apprised, by courier, that his pets had flown and were even then scurrying across hill and dale in opposite directions—three in one direction and two in another. In vain he tried to divide himself in order to give chase to both parties. With all speed he rushed to the jail and quickly viewed the ruins. A hole in the hall floor told the tale. Despite the soothing effects of the Sunday school text, Mr. Branch waxed exceedingly wrath, and the place we often read about was likened unto an ice cream freezer compared with the temperature of his life blood after his exercise up to the courthouse. Ye reporter was there, and in his innocence remarked that indications and appearances pointed strongly to an escape. Branch answered in a foreign tongue, which up to date we have failed in having interpreted. It sounded something like "Any——fool can see that," and on inspection of the cell certified his remarks. No last, loving farewell message had been left by the prisoners, not a token of esteem rewarded the officer's search. They had responded to his call of "all promenade," and had circled both to the right and the left, even beyond hearing of the music.

As before mentioned, Mr. Branch had not been away from the jail to exceed thirty minutes when he received word of the escape. Lonsdale Allen saw the men hurrying away and immediately sent word to Branch. With all possible speed Mr. Branch made tracks for the courthouse, and in a few minutes the courthouse hill was covered with citizens. Branch and others started for the three who were seen to go east over the the hill, while others took after the two who struck out down the river. In a short time Marshal John Salmon overtook and headed the first three on the back track, and they were again placed in jail. A party of at least twenty searched the river up and down between Coalville and Echo for the other two, and men were stationed at every place of egress in the canyon. The search was kept up all Sunday afternoon, but the birds were not recaptured. Branch took the train for Evanston and Officer Stagg for Morgan, and a close watch of all trains kept. Rumors were current that the train escaped up Grass creek, and another circulated to the effect that they boarded a train out. At any rate they have not been recaptured at this writing. The two at large are the ones who were bound over for the hold-up at Park City.

The three who were retaken were shackled together, the cross being riveted on by Mr. George Ruff.

One of the prisoners told the writer the plan of escape as follows: On Saturday, when one of them was brought up with the slops, he espied a saw sitting in the corner of the hallway. He was closely followed by Officer Branch, but on his return succeeded in reaching the saw and carrying it alongside of him back into the cell, unobserved by the officer. On Sunday morning, after eating breakfast, and the moment after Mr. Branch had locked the outside door when he went to Sunday school, they began to saw through the partition which leads from the large to the smaller cell. This partition is about eight inches thick, made of boards set edgewise. They obtained a starting point for the saw by burning a hole with a wire they took out of the stove. The prisoners said it took them about twenty minutes to do this sawing job. The small cell was unlocked, and after they had gotten through the partition they had an unobstructed outlet to the hallway. In the under hallway they found a heavy timber which they used as a battering ram, and quickly succeeding in loosening the single boards of the upper floor. Another board was then sawed in two, and in two minutes they were in the hallway of the ground floor. A pick proved a good tool for their use, and with it they pried open the hall door and were free.

There are, however, conflicting stories in regard to the manner in which the saw was procured. One prisoner told Deputy Branch that he slipped the bar across the cell door up and went up and got the tool on Saturday, but when shown that this was impossible, said that a small boy had handed him the saw through the jail window.

This is the second successful escape from this jail in the past two weeks, and it may soon dawn upon the minds of the citizens that a new and safer structure of this character is necessary.

THE RAILROAD.

Every Reason to Believe That the Road Will Be Built At Once

The Utah Company have not yet, we understand, decided upon the route they will adopt for their railroad to Coalville, but there is little doubt but they will decide on coming up the Weber, and it is thought by many that they will buy or absorb the Bamberger road.

This is undoubtedly the most feasible route, and in the end would prove the least expensive, especially in operating. Besides this, a great deal of grading has been done on this route and considerable track has already been laid. We understand that representatives of the company are already out looking over the route, and that business will be pushed at once.

W. W. Cluff already has about ten men and three teams at work on the survey and grade up Grass creek, and will soon have this part of the extension in shape. The remainder of the road will be about six miles up from the junction on Grass creek.

The following, taken from the Salt Lake Tribune of Wednesday, the day after the above was written, will convince all that there was ample foundation for our surmises:

A corporation which will make the first move toward tapping the coal mines northeast of Salt Lake which another railroad has prepared articles of incorporation. The name of the company is the Grass Creek Terminal Company, and the stock which consists of 1200 shares of a value of $100 each, is divided among the following persons:

Wilford Woodruff, 250; George Q. Cannon, 250; Joseph Smith, 250; William W. Cluff, Coalville, 150; James Jack, Salt Lake City, 100; Frank J. Cannon, Ogden, 100; Arthur Winter, Salt Lake City, 100.

The aim of the company, as set forth in the articles of incorporation, is to run a line of railway from the Grass Creek Junction of Echo & Park City Railroad, in Summit county, and running thence easterly up Grass Creek canyon to section 10, township 3 north, range 6 east—the coal mines. The length of the proposed railway is six miles, all being in the county of Summit.

It is estimated that the cost of construction and of purchasing the right of way will be $120,000. The surveyors are now at work, and they expect to be able to secure a 2 per cent grade. Construction will not begin until Messrs. Cannon and Clayton return from the East. One of the important effects of the road will be to supplant the wagons, which now haul coal from the mines to the Union Pacific road.

The directors of the Grass Creek Terminal Company are: Wilford Woodruff, George Q. Cannon, Joseph F. Smith, William W. Cluff and James Jack. George Q. Cannon is president; Joseph F. Smith, vice-president, and Arthur Winter secretary and treasurer.

This is undoubtedly the first step in the construction of a line from the coal fields to Salt Lake City. The Grass Creek Company is composed of the same gentlemen who incorporated the Utah Company last week and this is but one of the many enterprises contemplated by the company.

In addition to the above the Herald of the same date says:

In response to an inquiry put by a Herald reporter yesterday afternoon, Mr. Jack stated that within the next few days the first dirt on the grade for the road would fly and the work of construction be fairly commenced. It is the intention of the company to inaugurate operations on the coal field and work down the canyon for the six miles already provided for. On account of the failure of the company to select the route for the main line between Grass Creek and this city the provisions of the articles of incorporation were not made broad enough to take in the entire system, but another sub-company will take up this work. Messrs. Cannon and Clayton of the executive committee of The Utah Company, who left for New York last week on a special business trip, will return to this city by the first of the coming week and with them will come the engineers who last summer went over the route and laid out the road. These experts will give their opinions upon the best route for the continuation of the road and then the further plans of the company will develop.

It is stated that the visit of Messrs. Cannon and Clayton to the east was very successful and should this prove to be the case the construction of the road to Grass Creek and the extension of the Salt Lake & Los Angeles to the coast are matters which will claim the attention of the company at once. The promoters of the great aggregation of enterprises are keeping pretty much in the dark regarding their future intentions, awaiting the return and official report of Messrs. Cannon and Clayton.
