Fit of Anger Hastened Death of Li Hung Chang.

A violent dispute with Paul Lessar, Russian minister to China, over the Manchurian treaty, appears to have been the immediate cause of the death of Li Hung Chang.

A fortnight ago the Japanese legation secured a reliable outline of the terms of China's treaty with Russia, and thereupon demanded that the Chinese plenipotentiaries officially lay before them the text, basing this demand upon the allegation that Japanese interests were involved in any change of the status of Manchuria. The Chinese plenipotentiaries refused to comply with the demand.

Thereupon the Japanese government from Tokio, communicated with the southern viceroys and induced them to use their influence with the empress dowager against the treaty. In the meantime the empress dowager instructed Li Hung Chang to communicate the treaty, after certain modifications, to the ministers of the powers and, if they did not object, to sign the same.

Li Hung Chang visited M. Lessar and explained to him his instructions. The Russian minister strongly objected to revealing the text of the treaty to the ministers of the other powers, and a stormy interview ensued. Li Hung Chang went home in a violent passion and had a hemorrhage, which the doctors attribute to the overexertion of a weakened system.

Free Milling Gold Ledge Found in Basement of Government Building at Helena.

A ledge of free milling gold ore was struck Friday while grading the foundation for the United States federal building at Helena, Montana, which is now under construction. The ledge is a very strong one of iron-stained quartz, containing free milling gold. The government, when letting the contract for the government building, explicitly stipulated that any finds of mineral by the contractor should go to the government.

This is the second rich strike of ore made within the Helena city limits within the last thirty days. The ledge extends across the street under the residence of Colonel Thomas Cruse, and is shown up again while grading for a street at a point about 1,000 feet northwest of the government building site. The ground through which the ledge runs is the best residence district in Helena.

There are a series of these big ledges running northwest and southeast across the site of the city. The diversity of interests in the ground has been the difficulty in the way of development.

COUNTERFEITING BILLS OF SALT LAKE BANKS

Texas Photographer Engaged in Wholesale Money Making.

M. J. Lemon, a prominent El Paso, Texas, photographer, was arrested Thursday by the secret service, the United States officers claiming it to be the most important arrest of a counterfeiter that has been made in many years, and they have been over four years in collecting the necessary evidence. In his operating room were found the following photographic plates:

Five dollar notes of the Nevada National bank of San Francisco. No. 5101.

Ten dollar notes of the —— National bank of Salt Lake. No. 5100.

Ten dollar notes of the Deseret National bank of Salt Lake.

It is also said that he operated in co-operation with Defoustaine, who received a five years' sentence in 1898 for passing exactly the same kind of paper as was found in Lemon's possession.

Text of Buller's Message Advising Surrender of Ladysmith.

The London Daily Express, on the authority of Dr. Miller, a famous military coach, gives what it alleges to be the authentic version of the heliogram sent by General Buller to General White during the siege of Ladysmith. It is as follows:

I have failed. Unable to try again without siege operation methods. Can you hold so long? If not, I suggest your firing away as much ammunition as possible, and finally making the best terms. If you have any other alternative to suggest, I can remain where I am as long as you suggest.

Further dispatches were exchanged, adds the Daily Express, and, learning that Sir George White was able to hold out, General Buller settled down to prepare to cross the Tugela.

Mr. Maguire, through whose hands half the officers of the British army have passed for study, professes to have acquired the information without seeking it some months ago.

Bapst, counselor of the French legation at Constantinople, and was obliged to file all dispatches at the island of Syra.

When the trouble began the rebellious prisoners had only two revolvers, these revolvers having been secreted in one of the walls of the building by some unknown person. There are two walls partly completed and the rest of the site of the building is surrounded by a high wooden stockade.

At quitting time one of the guards was held up and the main entrance rushed. The convicts were soon lost in the woods, but it is expected all of them will be retaken.

According to information received at the headquarters of the National Livestock association in Chicago, congress will have the eastern public land situation brought to its attention this winter in a new and startling manner. A number of prominent cattlemen of the west, who have been quietly investigating, are prepared to show that during the past five years there has been an enormous decrease in the number of cattle in this country, a decrease which seriously threatens the beef food supply, and that unless speedy action be taken by congress, in the course of a very few years beef will be selling at such fabulous prices that only the wealthy can afford to indulge in the luxury of a beefsteak.

Anaconda Boy Wanders From Home and is Given up for Dead.

The relatives and friends of little John Glynn of Anaconda, Mont., who wandered from home a week ago, have given up hopes of ever finding the boy, either alive or his remains. The little lad was 12 years of age, and left his home at dusk for the purpose of visiting a friend's house. That was the last seen of him, and although searchers have been out each day since his disappearance and have hunted the hills for miles about, no trace whatever of the boy can be discovered.
