A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of patent medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by makers of patent medicines; for instance, he has published frankly and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. This he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. This he it has proven to be, a most effective means of allaying prejudice, and has made the reputation of Pierce's Compounds, as

PEOA

Peoa, Dec. 17.—Our town is again free from measles much to the delight of one and all. During the past six weeks there have been 87 cases of measles in all; 50 families having had it. School was closed for two weeks in November owing to the fact that a great many of the pupils had been taken with the disease. Unfortunately the disease was spread among the pupils before it was reported to the proper officers. It is well for parents to understand that they are liable to prosecution if they do not immediately report all contagious diseases that may break out in their families; and if they would do this, means could be taken to prevent the spreading of any contagious disease.

J. A. Marchant went to Salt Lake last week on business and pleasure.

The members of the Twenty-second Quorum of Seventies who reside in Oakley, Peoa, Rockport and Wanship are now holding regular class meetings every Sunday morning at the residence of O. F. Lyons, in Peoa. These meetings are of great benefit to the members of the quorum and the interest taken in them is most marked. It is the desire of the class leaders that all members make it a point to be prompt in attending the class so that all may receive the same benefits.

Duncan W. Marchant was called to Salt Lake City last Saturday owing to the sickness of his wife and two of his children who are visiting friends there.

Before an other issue of The Times, Christmas will have passed, therefore I now wish the readers of your valuable paper a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year with all that the term implies.

"He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." While we may be having "a good time" during Christmas tide, we should not forget the poor; it is our duty to see that they are made comfortable and happy during the coming week of festivities. See that the children are not neglected and that the little ones hearts are made glad with what we can do for them. "It is better to give than to receive," hence we should look up the poor and contribute with a liberal hand to their wants and pleasure. Try it and see how much happiness you will be and with what peace will be your rest. Open your purse as well as your sympathy; seek out the poor; they do not not always wear their poverty on their sleeve; and if you contribute to the comfort and joy of but one of God's children you have done something towards making life brighter and happier.

My young friends, have you a grandpa and grandma? If so do not forget them on Christmas day. Do you know with what pleasure they receive any little gift from you and with what delight they show their friends what John, Robert, Mary and Jane gave them? It may be ever so little, but be what it may, it warms up the old hearts and renews old times long past and gone. Grandpa and Grandma will not be with us very much longer, therefore brighten up their declining days all you can; and do not forget father and mother, the names most dear to us in youth or old age, they deserve all we can give them in love, obedience and kind remembrances. You may be sure that father and mother will not forget you; see to it that you do not forget them.

A little child, one of twins, daughter of A. W. Marchant, has been dangerously sick for the past three or four weeks but is now some better. The child's mother is dead and it is being taken care of by Mrs. J. A. Marchant.

[illegible] morning, and he felt more than content as he squatted in the sun on the back kitchen step. Suddenly, in turning his head to the left, he spied a tempting red object peeping up from a great, round, whitish looking surface. The gosling made a dash, and splash! he went under the shining white surface. He had that red bit, however, and as he swallowed it he instinctively struck out with his legs. What a delightful
