SYLLABUSES

Of Some Appeal Cases Recently Decided by the State Supreme Court.

Syllabuses of cases recently passed on by the state supreme court are as follows:

McCoy vs. McCoy. Monongalia county. Affirmed. Judge Poffenbarger.

1. In the absence of a replication, the answer of a defendant in an equity suit is taken as true for the purposes of the case, if the defendant has not taken depositions as if one had been filed and thus submitted the case upon its merits.

2. Admission and agreements made in open court by the parties to the cause and acted upon by the court are binding and a decree founded thereon will not be reversed.

3. A husband's assent to his wife's separation from him exonerates her from the charge of desertion and bars his suit for divorce founded upon such charge.

Post, administrator, vs. City of Clarksburg. Order setting aside verdict, reversed and judgment in verdict. Judge Poffenbarger.

1. For the purpose of an action against a city for an injury alleged to have resulted from a defect in a sidewalk constructed along the side of a building and bordering on a public street, but on land belonging to the owner of the building, the sidewalk is sufficiently recognized as a public walk by the grant, by the city council, of a permit to the owners of the building to construct, maintain and operate in such sidewalk an elevator in connection with their use of the building.

2. An elevator for lowering goods from the sidewalk to a basement and lifting them from the basement to the sidewalk, so constructed as to leave no defect in the walk when lowered and not in operation, not dangerous to persons using the sidewalk as travelers whin in operation and not left such condition as to be dangerous to them when not in use, is not a public nuisance, an obstruction of the sidewalk nor a defect therein.

3. A city is not liable for the death, by the operation of such an elevator, of a person who, while traveling on the sidewalk and seeing it in use and raised, projected a portion of his bondy under the upper part of it and was killed by its rescent.

4. The statute imposing absolute duty upon municipal corporations to keep their streets and sidewalks reasonably safe for use by the general public does not make them liable for injuries negligently inflicted by persons lawfully using such public ways, upon one another.

South Side Bank vs. Center Wheeling Savings Bank. Ohio county. Affirmed. Judge Poffenbarger.

1. A creditor in a second deed of trust for the amount of his debt and cured by it and subquently purchased the property at a sale under the first and executed his note to the creditor in the first deed of trust for th amount of his debt and secured it by a third deed of trust on the property, instead of paying it to the creditor directly or through the trustee, the debt secured by said second deed of trust is not entitled to preference over the debt secured by the third one.

2. Equities being equal, the legal title prevails.

Wigal, administrator, vs. City of Parkersburg. Wood county. Affirmed. Judge Williams.

1. A municipality maintaining a water works system for supplying its inhabitants with water for domestic use, is not thereby performing a government function, and is liable for acts of negligence respecting such business just as a private individual.

3. A city is liable for injury caused by the breaking of its tank or reservoir in which it has collected water in large quantity to supply its water works system.

3. In the absence of proof that the breaking of the tank was caused by some superior force, such as an unusual and violent disturbance of the elements or an explosion clandestinely caused, negligence will be inferred from the breaking.

4. Restriction upon a city by its charter in the rate of water rent which it may lawfully charge consumers, does not affect the question of its liability.

5. It is not reversible error to exclude expert testimony presenting a possible, but highly improbable theory, not based on any particular facts in support thereof, especially if such testimony conflicts with other direct testimony negativing such theory.

In an action to recover for wrongful death, the jury is not limited to mere pecuniary damages, but may allow for mental anguish and suffering of near relatives of deceased, who are his distributees.

7. The damages in such cases are not confined to such as may have accrued at the death, but may include such prospective losses to the distributees as the evidence shows will actually and necessarily result from the wrongful death as the proximate cause.
