The Louisiana Lambs.

Washington correspondent to the Cincinnati Enquirer: The enterprise of the newspapers in publishing the efforts of President Hayes to interpose the influence of his position to stop further proceedings against members of the Louisiana returning board has only added to the aggravations the unpleasant circumstance the indictments have caused him. Just now the organs may be expected to deny that he has any interest, one way or the other, in the matter, but still it remains a fact that President Hayes has shown a remarkable solicitude in putting a stop to the prosecution. He is advised, however, that the district attorney at New Orleans will discharge his duty fearlessly, and that public sentiment is such in that city that Governor Nicholls will not care to run antagonistic to it, by endeavoring to smother the prosecutions, though he might be ever so willing. It is said here to-night that J. Madison Wells has telegraphed the President that it is his purpose to come to Washington on business specially connected with criminal information relating to matters of the late returning board. The National Republican recently contained an interview with Marshal Pitkin. The sole effort of the interviewer seems to have been directed to discredit the Enquirer's special, printed last Saturday, concerning evidence of a damaging nature in possession of Pitkin and Packard. The only denial that is drawn out of Pitkin is that he is not responsible for the indictments against the returning board. He admits that he has been in correspondence with friends in the north concerning the vote of Louisiana, and, inferentially, that he has letters and documents which will make music in high quarters if they see the light of day. Pitkin leaves here to-morrow for New Orleans. He has been the guest of Ben Butler to-day. Advices received from New Orleans are to the effect that if the returning board members are found guilty, information will be filed against several prominent gentlemen who were on hand in New Orleans to see a "fair count." The plan then is to ask the governor for requisitions for their presence. It is also ascertained that one of the members of the late returning board is ready and willing to turn State's evidence. Wells has written a confidential letter to a friend here, in which he rather broadly intimates that if there is to be punishment for the deeds which made Hayes President, that punishment will not be borne by the returning board members alone.

ONE OF THE TRINKETS

which Marshall Pitkin brought with him from New Orleans is a miniature coffin, with ghastly trimmings, which he alleges was sent to the colored postmaster at Bayou Sara, who had been commissioned by Hayes, but who, upon the receipt of the token of death, declined to fill the office. Pitkin today gave the ornament to Ben Butler, who says that during his first speech he makes in the house of representatives he will expose the death-box, as an exemplification of how the peace-policy of Hayes works in the south.

PERJURY AND FORGERY.

New Orleans Item.]

If the crimes of perjury and forgery can be regarded as political offenses, Wells and his crowd may claim exemption from legal prosecution. But until that question is so decided, they will have to answer like other people for their violation of the criminal law of the State, which defines perjury and forgery to be felonies, and not political offenses. It will be in vain for the returning board to look to Hayes for assistance and interference in their behalf. The President cannot afford to involve himself in such a foul and disgraceful affair, although he is the chief beneficiary of the crimes of its members. He profits by the fraud, but is powerless to protect the perpetrators when pursued by the officers of the law.

MORE RASCALITY—A FORGED ELECTORAL CERTIFICATE.

Washington special to the Cincinnati Enquirer: "It is just reported, on good authority, that when the electoral college of Louisiana met, Levissee, one of the electors, was not present; that he did not vote, and never signed his name to the electoral certificate, but has been content thus far to be silent under the forgery of his signature. He is the man who says he was offered and refused one hundred thousand dollars to vote for Tilden. A Republican of Louisiana, who was here recently, says there are several witnesses who will testify under oath that he never signed the electoral paper. If this fact should come out under the present investigation, Hayes will feel that he made a mistake in not giving Levissee the 'pap' he asked for."

PACKARD AND PITKIN.

Cincinnati Enquirer.]

COLUMBUS, O., July 9.—I have just had an interview with a gentlemen who left Washington yesterday, and who talked with Pitkin. Pitkin, he says, told him there was no doubt but Wells and Anderson would be tried and convicted of forgery and perjury in making the returns of Louisiana, and he believed, further, that proceedings would be instituted in a circuit court as to the validity of Hayes' title to the Presidency. Packard, he further said, will make it his business to travel through the western and central States to work up an anti-Hayes sentiment, as he did in Iowa; and it will be his special aim to divide the Republicans there, while Blaine and Chamberlain will do the same thing in Maine and the other eastern States, in the hope that Ohio will go Democratic. Then, when congress meets in October, the fight against Hayes will be relentless. He further said this unearthing of the Louisiana frauds was done from New York, to gratify the disappointed ambition of Conkling and his friends, who would rather destroy the whole party than have a rival succeed. Hayes, this gentleman said, would go to the White Sulphur Springs on the twenty-eighth of this month, to meet with the southern politicians who are announced to be there, in hopes of making terms with them. He sees that his last hope with his own party is gone, and will endeavor to hedge with the southern Democrats for support.

Election Notice!

On the first Thursday in August next I will proceed to open and hold an election at the election grounds of the different civil districts of Maury county, Tennessee, for the purpose of electing one school director for each civil district.

Chancery Sale.

State of Tennessee vs. Mrs. Sarah F. Servin and others.

By virtue of a decree of the Honorable Chancery Court at Columbia, Tennessee, rendered at the April term thereof—April 7, 1877—in the above styled cause, I will proceed to sell at the court-house door in the town of Columbia, to the highest and best bidder, on the 18th day of August, 1877, the following described house and lot, situated in the town of Columbia, on South Main Street, and bounded as follows: Beginning at T. J. Alexander's corner in said street, formerly Green Graham's corner; running west with the south boundary line of said Alexander 311 feet to a rock corner; thence south 62 feet to a hole in a rock; thence east 256 feet to a rock corner; thence south 7 feet to a rock corner; thence east 55 feet to a corner in the street; thence north 67 feet to the beginning; it being the same purchased by W. R. Kent from M. Helm. Included of which is registered in the Register's office of Maury county, in Book 21, No. 2. Said house and lot will be sold on the following terms: One-fifth cash, the balance in five equal yearly installments. The purchaser or purchasers will be required to execute notes with good and approved security, interest bearing from date, and a lien retained for the payment of the purchase money.

July 13, 1877. D. B. COOPER, C. & M.

Notice to Tax-Payers.

Owing to the postponement of the collection of the taxes, and for the benefit of persons who may desire to pay their State and county taxes, I will stay my office in Columbia, on every Monday until this date until the 26th of October, 1877.

J. W. DOLBEAR,

Author of "Dolbear's Science of Penmanship," No. 15 North Summer St., Nashville, Tenn.

Book-Keeping, in all its varieties, practically and thoroughly taught, without expense to pupil for useless books, but with free access to all the best authors on the subject, without deceptive show or waste of time on that which is utterly useless. The pupil is, in a few months, put through a course of practice far greater in variety and extent than occurs in any business house in five years. Each business house is confined to a repetition of the small variety of transactions in that particular house, and to one form of keeping books, while teaching should include all varieties and forms. The learning of book-keeping is an excellent exercise of the mind and constant practice in Spelling, Writing and Arithmetic, and for these reasons ought to be taught at an early age.

Writing, the Dolbears have, by thirty years experience, reduced to the certainty of science and they have invented a system of hand training which removes most cramped condition of the hand, and makes success certain to all who follow its instructions. Persons from six to sixty years of age can, in a short, learn to write with ease and elegance, however cramp and stiff the writing may be at first.

Phonography is easily learned, and reporting is very profitable, and the most improving business a young man can be in. Some ladies are now receiving ten dollars per day as reporters.

TERMS—Payable in Advance.

Business Writing	$20
Usual time twenty lessons of one hour each, but the lessons not limited. No extra for pens, books, paper, etc.
Book-keeping, single entry	$20
Full course single and double entry	$50
This includes books and stationery. No extras. Usual time one to three months.
Phonography	$20

Pupils pay for the books used in this art. Board and lodging from $5 to $7 per week.
