WEDNESDAY MORNING.....JULY 18, 1866.

HIGHER THEATRE.

BY JOHN PARKER PLATT.

After Winter lines were cashed, and the last spark, vanishing
From the embers on our hearthstones, flew into the sky of spring;
In the night-time in the morning—when the air was hushed around—
Thrilling vaguely on the silence, came a dull, mysterious sound.

Like the solitary hum of thunder, at the sullen close of day,
Out of clouds that brood and threaten on the horizon far away.
"Tis," I said, "the April thunder," and I thought of Spring to come that up lies,
And of trees that stand in blossom, and of birds that fly and sing.

But the sound, repeated often—nearer, more familiar grown,
From our chimney seem'd descending, and the swallows, wings were flown.
Where the little flames leap'd and lighten'd, charm of hearth and cover of gone;
There the green grass of Summer chose its homestead, built its nest.

Then I seem'd of poets dwelling, like the swallow, long ago,
Overhead in dusky places are their songs were heard below;
One had dwelt in humble attics, ministers of higher things;
Unknown with were busy people, overhead were heavenly wings!

And I bought of homely proverbs that on simple lips had birth,
Born of gentle superstitions at old firesides of the earth:
How, where'er the swallow built'ded under human roofs, home!
Something better, purer, higher, in the house became a guest;
Peace, or Love, or Hen'th, or Fortune—something proper to from the air
'Lighting with the wings of swallows, breathed divine protection there.

"Friendly gods," I said, "descending make their gentler visits so,
Fill the air with benedictions—songs above and songs below!"
Then I murmur'd, "welcome, swallow! your landlord, stand content!
Even if song were not sufficient, higher tenants pay your rent!"

Trying the Presidential Hands.

Short-sighted and petty indeed must be the minds of public men who cannot see that disgust rather than satisfaction will be excited by their efforts to forbid President Johnson's exercising the executive right of removal from office, in the interval between the present session of Congress and the next. The matter was thoroughly discussed in an early Administration, and the President's prerogative, derived, like the legislative authority of Congress, from the Constitution, was then conceded on all sides. Since then the practice has abundantly confirmed that early decision of the men who took part in the framing of the Constitution and in setting it in operation. At first the power of removal by the President extended to judicial as well as executive officers of the Government; but that was afterwards changed, the reason being that since the President was responsible to the country only for the conduct of the executive department of the Government, and not of the judicial, much less of the legislative, he ought to have and should have an absolute power of removal.

In Jackson's administration the hampering process was again tried, and a great stir was made over his removal of Secretary Duane; but, after all the debate and excitement, it was conceded by leaders in the opposition, like Mr. Webster, that President Jackson had exercised no other right than one which was his under the Constitution. But the restless and reckless radicals of to-day seriously propose to legislate so as to forbid President Johnson's making a single removal! Was there ever so pitiful an attempt to degrade the Presidential office? It can no longer be doubted, we think, that office and power is the great end of these progress-professing radicals. For this they would make the session permanent, if they dared. For this they keep the eleven southern States unrepresented in a Congress which is still national. For this they would peril all that is of value within the Union, and trample Constitution and laws under foot. And it is for this, too, that the people will soon dismiss them from their places, and summon in their stead a new class of servants whose patriotism will be well assured.—Boston Post.

THE INDEPENDENT ORDER OF RED MEN.—The semi-annual convocation of the Great Council of Maryland was held in this city during the past week, and was quite largely attended by delegates. The proceedings are said to have been of the most harmonious character. Mr. C. Davis Irelan was elected Great Chief of Records of the Grand Council of Maryland, and Mr. Wm S Quigley Great Representative to the Great Council of the United States. During the past week a delegation of the Order, numbering about sixty persons, visited this city from Petersburg, Va. They were received and handsomely entertained by their Baltimore brethren. On Thursday last they were taken to Druid Hill Park, Greenmount Cemetery, and other places of interest, and in the evening partook of a sumptuous entertainment. The party left for their home on Friday evening, apparently much pleased with their trip.—Baltimore Sun, 16th

CLOTHING.

STRANGE METAMORPHOSE.

Sure Bridget's me wife; and see she "me dear Teddy
Yer the joy of me life and I love yer already;
But much harder I'd love you from yer head to yer toes,
You swate Turtle-dove you, if yer'd get some new clothes."

So I wint down the streets, just to hunt up a store,
Which she should I mate but Timothy Moore;
"For new clothes I'm fretting, Tim, where shall I go?"
"Why yer next yer'll be getting at Smith Brothers & Co."

Thin for four I'd be late I made haste to Smith's store,
It is on Sixteenth street, number four eighty-four;
And for mighty few greenbacks I got a whole suit,
With none of yer seam-cracks—and handsome to boot.

I hav'n't been dhrinking, but fair I must laugh—
Ha, ha, I am thinking of me fooled brither half,
As I walked in me house, in me Smith Brothers suit;
Sez I "Kiss me, swate mama!"—sez she "Get out, yer base brute."

She didn't know me from Adam, so to keep up the joke
Sez I "Me dear madam me poor heart you have broke;"
This she whacked me a scoring across me pug nose,
Out the blood came a pouring and ran down to me toes.

"Och, Biddy, how strange its yer own Teddy yer've pounded,
Me nice clothing, swate jewel, yerself has confounded."
If yer'd enjoy metamorphose, there's but one plan I know—
Get a suit of nice clothes at Smith Brothers & Co.

THE REPUBLICAN
under the present management, commenced in the midst of the Rebellion, January, 1860, and if it has not been the ablest it has been as earnest and sincere in its support of Abraham Lincoln and his War Policy, Emancipation Proclamation, and all, as any journal printed inside the Federal lines. Taking that ground, then, and finding Andrew Johnson standing firmly in the footsteps of the same principles, we have no other duty to perform, or deed to be grateful, than to "Fight it out on this line" until the rebellion armed or disarmed, is wholly and permanently put down!
