THE COURTS.

EQUITY COURT—Judge Olin.—This court during a short session yesterday made the following orders:

Norris G. Starkweather et al. vs. Anthony Pollok. Order revoking former order, dismissing bill and of leave to plaintiff to file replication within five days.

Stephen Dorsey vs. R. M. Willett et al. There being an infant defendant in this case, J. P. Willett was named guardian to defend the infant's interest.

Adjourned.

CRIMINAL COURT—Judge Fisher.—This court held but a short session yesterday.

Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company indicted for nuisance in obstructing the highway in the northern part of the city. This case came up by assignment, but after a statement by counsel that it was supposed the case would be settled amicably, the court postponed the consideration of the case until the 8th of December next.

Adolph Getty, indicted for keeping a disorderly house. The District Attorney declined to prosecute further in this case.

James Kelley, convicted of the murder of Mardie. Mr. Barrett, for the defence, filed the following reasons for a new trial.

1. Because the Court erred in refusing to let the witness, R. M. Millee, answer the question as to how many glasses of liquor he had taken on that day, the day of the homicide.

2. Because the defendant was taken by surprise by the appearance of witnesses at the trial whose names did not appear on the back of the indictment.

3. Because of newly discovered evidence, proving that at the time of the homicide the prisoner was not of sound memory and discretion.

CASES TO-DAY.

The following cases are assigned for trial to-day: Benjamin Washington, assault and battery; George Wesley, petit larceny; Willis Allan, assault and battery; Thomas Bowie, assault with intent to kill; M. Washington and Jane Thomas, petit larceny.

Adjourned.

CIRCUIT COURT—Judge Cartter.—This court was occupied as follows yesterday:

Keefe vs. Van Riswick. This was an appeal from a justice, and it was submitted to the court by consent. Judge Cartter gave judgment for appellee, Van Riswick, for $116. The case arose out of the renting of some property by Van Riswick to Keefe, and the controversy arose as to what amount remained due.

HOW MANY SHINGLES MAKE A THOUSAND?

Bragg vs. Bletz. This is an action for the value of certain shingles shipped from Maine under a order sent from this city. The defendant sought to recoup, and diminish the amount of plaintiff's claim, by showing that although the purchase was of shingles by the thousand, yet the four bundles furnished as containing one thousand did not in fact contain that number, but a lesser amount. The plaintiff contended that in the usage of the trade in Maine, the terms "thousand shingles" meant not that number, but four bundles of shingles each of certain cubic content; although in fact four bundles only contained 940 shingles.

E. L. Stanton for plaintiff, Bradley Jr., for defendant.

Judge Cartter instructed the jury as follows:

If the jury shall find from the evidence that the defendant, Bletz, ordered from the plaintiff, Bragg, of Maine, the shingles in controversy, and if they shall further find that the quantity of shingles constituting a thousand was regulated by a uniform and well-settled custom establishing a package twenty inches in width and twenty-three or twenty-four courses in thickness as the equivalent of a quarter of a thousand, or if they shall further find that in pursuance of the order drawn by the defendant upon the plaintiff that they were to be shipped by the plaintiff at a price agreed upon between the parties at the cost of the defendant, they will receive the measurement established by the custom of Maine as conclusive of a thousand shingles.

2. If the jury found that the defendant received the shingles and appropriated them to his own use, they will find for the plaintiff under the measurement regulated by the custom of the State from which they were shipped.

3. If the jury find that under the custom a thousand of shingles is not determined by count, they will inquire what constitutes a thousand, and measure the rights of the parties accordingly.

4. If the jury find that the plaintiff has failed to deliver the quantity of shingles charged, they will credit the defendant therewith and find the balance, if any, that shall then be due. If none, then a verdict for the defendant.

The jury were directed to find a sealed verdict and return it this morning.

Pifferling vs. Shreeve. This was an action of replevin for a cow which the defendant held and disposed of, but which the plaintiff claimed as his property. The case was submitted to the court, and Judge Cartter gave judgment for the plaintiff in the sum of $20.

Squier vs. Dockstader. Judgment by default on the motion of Mr. McCutchen.

Salter vs. Kimmell. In this case a rule to employ new counsel was laid on the defendant.

Bamberger vs. Pubram, and Pratt vs. Miller. Judgment confessed.

Brown vs. Baar and Hutchins Bros. vs. Turton. Judgment confessed in each case, with a stay of execution for sixty days in the first and thirty days in the latter.

CASES TO-DAY.

The following numbered cases are assigned for to-day: Nos. 119, 122, 123, 125, 129, 130, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 146, 148 and 151.

Adjourned.

Adjourned until to-morrow, at 11 o'clock.

The Washington, Alexandria and Manassas Railroad.

The Alexandria Gazette of yesterday has an account of the condition of the above road, and the state of its affairs for the past year. The Gazette finds, on examination, that the receipts are larger than have been realized during any preceding year, and amount in the aggregate to something over $800,000; working expenses are reported at $500,000, leaving about $400,000 of net revenue. This exhibit does not embrace the business of October and November, two of the heaviest months of the year—the receipts of the former being over $100,000, and those of November, not yet concluded, estimated at not much less.

Since the road reverted to its present management, shortly after the close of the war, not only has the main line been in a large measure reconstructed, including the erection of new bridges, station-houses, depots, &c., but the Manassas branch has been rebuilt from its junction with the Orange and Alexandria road to Harrisonburg, a distance of one hundred and twelve miles, at a cost of over a million and a half of dollars, thus securing a railroad communication of nearly three hundred miles through the most fertile portions of the State.

The interest on the several mortgages has been promptly paid at maturity, and a very large amount of the floating debt, and that incurred for construction, liquidated and retired within the past fiscal year.

The recent contract entered into by New York capitalists for the completion of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad from the White Sulphur Springs to the Ohio river must add largely to the business of the Orange, Alexandria and Manassas railroad, when completed, and the extension from Lynchburg to Danville will perfect this great through line of direct communication between the North and South.

JUSTICE IN NEW YORK.—A gentleman who was passing through New York with his family having been grossly insulted by the driver of one of Dodd's stages, which transfers passengers having through tickets, did not bandy words with the man, but remained in New York, and stated the case to Mr. Dodd. He has since been informed that although the driver complained of had been ten years in Mr. Dodd's employ, he was promptly dismissed, a proof or determination to secure civil treatment from subordinates which merits commendation. It is refreshing to know that the proprietor of one class of vehicles in Gotham endeavors to protect those who ride in them from overcharge and insult.—Wash. Correspondence Boston Journal.
