THE GRAND DEMONSTRATION LAST NIGHT.

In another part of this issue will be found an extended report of the procession and demonstration by the Boys in Blue last night in honor of the ratification of the fifteenth amendment, and at the same time in favor of a change of government for the District of Columbia. The spectacle was not only imposing, but respectable in point of numbers, and in the behavior and conduct of the immediate participants as well as by those who lined the sidewalks as spectators.

The quiet, dignified decorum of the proceeding was a subject of general remark by all who witnessed the procession. The sidewalks were crowded with spectators, attentive to any and every incident that might possibly occur, and an universal plaudit was bestowed upon the good taste and good order exhibited in carrying out the programme. The bearers of the torches and transparencies evinced a knowledge of drill commendable in soldiers, and much more to be appreciated in an improvised procession.

While the procession was for the purpose of celebrating the fifteenth amendment, its personnel gave it a deep local political significance, and it could not fail to strike terror to the hearts of Mayor Bowen and every member of the City Hall ring. But best of all, it was a voluntary display.

In the demonstration on Wednesday, which was intended to show the strength of the City Hall ring, the crowd was largely made up of Corporation laborers, who in the matter of participating had Hobson's choice. On that occasion the crowd was augmented by the Fire Department, and the line was extended by a display of Corporation carts.

It was understood that the Bowen adherents were not to turn out last night, under penalty, and it is therefore certain that every man who participated last night is an anti-Bowen man, and will vote a square ticket for reform in city affairs at the ensuing June election.

Besides those in the procession, the respectable multitude of the prominent citizens and of the newly enfranchised class on either side of the line of march evidently meant something in the way of city government reform, in their voluntary effort on this grand and brilliant movement.

Mr. Bowen and his friends had done all in their power to belittle and ridicule this demonstration, but the result was glorious in spite of them. The demonstration was in all respects a success. A large number turned out. An equally large number lined the sidewalks to encourage and cheer on the Boys in Blue. The Vice President illuminated his residence for the occasion, and the President addressed to them words of encouragement; while the lateness of the hour alone prevented addresses from distinguished gentlemen at the Capitol.

Now we don't mean to be misunderstood in these remarks. We don't want any of Mr. Bowen's bugle-men or sycophants to say that we mean to convey the idea that because Vice President Colfax illuminated his house, or because President Grant addressed the Boys in Blue, they by that act placed themselves in sympathy with Mr. Bowen's opponents, or intended to meddle in our local political quarrels.

They recognized this as a demonstration in favor of the fifteenth amendment, and the President's remarks were thus directed. But we do mean to repeat here, what we say in the beginning of this article, that while this was a fifteenth amendment and territorial government celebration combined, its personnel had a practical significance in favor of reform and in opposition to the City Hall ring, and all other corruption in our municipal affairs.

Late Information From Cuba.

Letters brought from the vicinity of Colon, on the island of Cuba, state that the sugar planters in that vicinity have been compelled to abandon their sugar plantations in consequence of the advance of 3,000 insurgents, and the retreat of the Spanish troops. Friends of the Cubans here do not place any confidence in recent reports of disasters to the patriot army, Spanish telegrams to the contrary notwithstanding.

On the contrary, reliable information has been received here that the Spanish General Goyenecke has been twice defeated, and driven back to Puerto Principe by the Cuban patriots.

Colon, upon which the insurgents are advancing, is situated in one of the richest sugar districts in the world, and is nearer to Havana than the insurgents have yet reached.
