OUR MUNICIPAL TRIUMPH—WHAT THE PAPERS SAY.

We were told during the recent campaign that "the eyes of the nation were upon us," and the result of the election would be signalled as a Radical Republican triumph, or a mongrel Democrat victory. The battle has been fought and the result is no optical illusion—the Reform Republicans did sweep the city, and here follows what the reflectors of public opinion elsewhere think of the result.

The special correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, one of my "two papers, both daily," says in relation to the election in his dispatches published yesterday morning:

The latest returns of the municipal election in this city yesterday gave so results differing from those stated in my dispatch of last evening. Matthew G. Emery, the Reform Republican candidate, is elected by a majority of 3,320, and only two aldermen and five councilmen were elected on the Boston ticket in the entire city. Though the political excitement ran high, it has been generally remarked that the election was the most orderly held in Washington for several years.

In the Chronicle, however, the other of "my two papers, both daily," instead of a "Reform Republican" victory, it was a straight-out Democratic beat. Under which king, Benzonian?

The New York Tribune says:

The official canvass of the municipal election shows that Emery, the Reform Republican "anti-Boss" candidate, received the handsome majority of 3,320. Bowen, the deposed Boss, the "King's" candidate for reelection, obtained by far the smallest vote ever cast for Mayor next to the first time in twenty years. He began as a Department clerk, and has occupied some responsible positions, including that of postmaster of Washington, and Forney's financial clerk in the Senate.

The Petersburg Courier says:

The municipal election came off in Washington on Monday, and resulted in the defeat of Bowen, who has been heretofore ruling that city—misappropriating its funds and earning the most clamorous censures upon its officers. Mr. Emery, who was elected, is a Republican, but not of the stripe of Bowen. He has the reputation of being a capable and upright man, and thoroughly identified with the interests of Washington. He was supported by the anti-Bowen Republicans and the Democrats, and has majorities in regards of three thousand. We congratulate the people of Washington on their emancipation from the control of the corrupt ring who have been lording it over them so long.

The Albany Evening Journal informs its readers that—

The election in Washington yesterday passed off with comparative quiet, notwithstanding the intensity of feeling manifested throughout the canvass. The result is a decided triumph for the "Reform" Republicans, who completely swept the city, electing their candidate for the Mayoralty, Matthew G. Emery, by a large majority, and securing a majority of the Boards of Aldermen and Councilmen. Six colored men were chosen to the City Council.

The Baltimore Sun says:

"All, whether white or colored, who have aught at stake in the welfare of society, and who depend upon themselves for support, instead of being fed at the public crib, must naturally feel concerned in being relieved of such an incubus upon the prosperity, order, and good name of a city as that which has been lately taken from the shoulders of Washington. In some late comments upon the prospect of reform in the capital, we ventured to inquire whether it proposed to remove Bowen and the municipal republican also. We are not sorry to see that this latter object has been effected without the necessity of the former."

The New York Post says:

"The defeat of the City Hall 'ring' at the municipal election in Washington yesterday was complete. The Reform ticket carried every ward in the city, and Mr. Emery's majority over Mayor Bowen is 1,200. There is great rejoicing among Republicans over the result."

"Dixon" writes to the Boston Advertiser:

"The election to-day has resulted in sweeping Bowen and his whole City Hall 'ring' out of power. Our new Mayor is Matthew G. Emery, the nominee of the Reform Republicans, a gentleman formerly from New Hampshire, but for many years past a citizen of this city, whose stands high for integrity and business capacity. He will have the support of a good majority in the Council. The police had excellent arrangements for keeping the peace, and there has been comparatively little disturbance."

The New York Times says:

"The reform Republicans have made a thunderous sweep of the city to-day, and elected Mayor Bowen, whose M. G. Emery his successor, and carried a majority of the Councilmen."

The New York Herald says:

"The main contest was between Bowen, the present Mayor, and Matthew G. Emery, also a Republican. The Emery men claim the election of their candidate by over three thousand majority, together with their candidates for City Comptroller. Returns are being fired to-night, and bonfires lighted by the victors."

The World says:

"To-day passed off peacefully, and, after a most exciting contest, which brought out nearly every white and colored voter in the city, the result is an average majority of about 1,500 for M. G. Emery, the Reform candidate for Mayor, and for the city council. The reform party, with the Reformers have carried every ward in the city. The victory gives the City Hall Ring and the Bowenites is being jubilant in anticipation of a contest with the Reformers in all parts, by indications, about one-third of the colored vote, seized the municipal reform."

The Metropolitan Police Force.

nobly on Monday, and deservedly won the highest praise from all classes of our citizens. Their untiring efforts and ceaseless vigilance intimidated the reckless and mob-like spirit of many of the men gathered about the voting precincts, and when called upon to discharge their duty, the promptness with which it was done fully convinced others of the folly of attempting to create a disturbance. Those who had occasion to go to the polls felt a security in the presence of the force assembled, and the number of votes polled, especially, convinces us that none staid away for fear of violence.

There is not the slightest doubt but what it was intended to make the voting precincts in the Third and Fourth wards places of terror, but the plans were too well known and the characters too well watched to have made it healthy for any of the desperadoes to have carried out the object for which they had assembled.

The following is the commendatory order of Major Richards:

DEPARTMENT OF METROPOLITAN POLICE,
OFFICE OF MAJOR AND SUPERINTENDENT,
No. 501 LOUISIANA AVENUE,
WASHINGTON, June 5, 1872.

General Order No. 728.

LIEUTENANT: The successful efforts of yourself and the members of your command, in preserving the peace in your precinct on Monday last, and in protecting the citizens while in the exercise of their rights at the polls on that day against anticipated violence from gangs of desperadoes, deserve special recognition.

On no previous occasion of the kind has there been a more intense feeling or more bitter contest. An injudicious word or a slight lack of vigilance might easily have resulted in riot and bloodshed.

For your excellent judgment, your constant vigilance and the unclaiming praiseworthy conduct of your command in the discharge of duty on Monday last, the Major and Superintendent returns you his congratulations and assures them, as he does you, that it is to you the approved assistance of all classes of our fellow citizens. By order

A. C. RICHARDS,
Major and Superintendent.

WAYNE MCVEIGH, the new American Minister resident at Constantinople, will sail from New York on Wednesday, June 15. He will visit London, Paris and St. Petersburg, and thence proceed direct to his post of duty. Mr. McVeigh seems determined to inaugurate a new regime in the diplomatic policy between the United States and the Government of the Sublime Porte. His instructions will have in view the present relations between Turkey and Egypt and other parts of the Empire, and will take a more decisive stand than has hitherto been the case in our diplomatic intercourse with this nation.

ONE OF HON. JOHN COVODE'S peculiarities is that he prides himself upon the beauty and symmetry of his arm, and he wants others to admire it. To this end he exhibited it in the House of Representatives yesterday, by rolling his shirt sleeve up above his elbow. The style contributed, perhaps, to Mr. Covode's comfort, but it was certainly not very elegant.

MR. J. J. STEWART, of Baltimore, has accepted an invitation from the president and faculty of Mount Union College, Ohio, to deliver the annual address before the alumni of that institution on the 27th of July next, and also to speak to the graduating class at commencement on the following day.

THE FINANCES.

(Special Correspondence of the National Republican.)

RAMSON, ME., June 4, 1872.

To an observer at this distance, it appears as if the distinctive and strong point of General Grant's administration is its policy in respect to the public debt, and that that is about to be sacrificed by men in Congress who ought to be friends of the Administration, and whose political interests are bound up with its success.

The great and dominant idea of the financial portion of President Grant's annual message of last December, was that the present reduction of the national debt should not be arrested by any diminution of the national revenues, until so much of the debt as remained outstanding could be funded at a moderate and reasonable rate of interest. Undoubtedly, taxes are onerous, and this policy involves a relief of any postponement from them, but this postponement would not probably be a long one, and the advantages to be gained by submitting to it, are of transcendent importance. The people understand that relief from taxes is illusory if they are left to be devoured forever by a permanent debt and exorbitant usury, and they know well that a high rate of interest upon the public debt keeps the rate of interest high upon the much greater mass of private debts.

The banking classes dread the reduction of the principal and interest of the national debt, and it is they who have instigated that clamor of rival newspapers in favor of reducing taxes, which is mistaken for real public sentiment.

Nothing made General Jackson's administration so strong as the fact that it paid off the then existing national debt. The Administration of General Grant will be invincible, if it succeeds in reducing and satisfactorily funding the present debt, and the re-election of General Grant involves the continuance in power of the men and party men controlling the country.

Mr. Boutwell may be able to fund the debt at a low rate, even after all the reductions of revenue, which seem to be on the point of being hurried through Congress. The probabilities, however, are all against it. But, with another year's continuance of the present large surplus revenue, and the certainty that it is to be maintained until the object is accomplished, Mr. Boutwell can certainly replace all our matured debt with four per cent. bonds. An achievement like that would not only reconcile the people to temporary burdens, but would assuredly re-elect General Grant.

The Democratic clamor for reduced taxes is politically intelligible, but it is passing strange to those who watch proceedings in Washington from a cool and tranquil distance, that those whose political and personal interests are bound up with those of the President, should be found co-operating with those who will profit by his downfall. W.

The Rev. Dr. Boynton's Lectures at Oberlin and Elyria.

A correspondent of the Cleveland Herald, writing from Elyria, Ohio, under date of June 1, thus speaks of Rev. Dr. Boynton's lectures on woman suffrage:

There has been quite a fever in this county for some time past on the woman suffrage question, and it has affected in no little degree the centre of the system—Elyria the county seat. The advocates of the movement have, until very recently, had things their own way. Men and women seemed to be rushing into it without much examination of the question, or much thought as to the ultimate workings or effects of such a dangerous issue.

Rev. Dr. C. B. Boynton, pastor of the Central Congregational church of Washington city, had given the subject a thorough examination, and had preached a series of sermons on the question to his congregation, which had excited great interest in that city, and which some of our citizens had listened to. The Young Men's Christian Association therefore invited him to speak in Oberlin. He accepted their invitation, spoke there, and was invited by prominent citizens of Elyria to speak here. His first lecture was delivered on Monday evening in the Town Hall. Mayor Gates presided. There was a very large crowd present, and intense interest manifested. Last night he gave the second part of the argument against woman suffrage, and to a crowded house. It was conceded that the latter comers were almost crowded that comfortable position.

Among his audience were nearly all the prominent citizens of Elyria with their ladies. They listened to the arguments of the speaker with the closest attention, for every sentence contained an important idea, and his whole lecture was so prepared, and his arguments so presented, and so beautifully illustrated, as to elicit from men and women of mind and thought the highest approval and praise. But few speakers have so happy a faculty of getting at the very foundations of a question with the character, and show its bearings upon society and its ultimate effects. We are persuaded that very few in that vast audience went away last night unconvinced not only of the importance of the issues involved, but also that this outcry for woman suffrage is made in direct conflict with the great order which the Creator Himself has established, and with some of the plainest precepts and principles laid down in his word.

On the conclusion of the lecture last evening, the Mayor, Hon. N. B. Gates, presented the following resolution; which was adopted:

Resolved, That having listened to the two very able lectures of Rev. Dr. Boynton, this audience now tender him their heartfelt gratitude as a feeble earnest of their appreciation of his unanswerable arguments.

THE Montreal express train on the Harlem extension railroad met with an accident yesterday morning at Clarendon, where the bridge had been washed away by the heavy rain the night before. The engine and three cars ran into the river. The fireman is missing, and is supposed to be killed; the engineer broke his leg, and is otherwise severely injured; and the baggage master was slightly injured. No other casualties are reported.
