OBITUARY.

Died in this city, April 27, Mrs. ELIZA McLEZAR GURLEY, the wife of Rev. R. R. Gurley, in the 80th year of her age.

Mrs. Gurley came to Washington as a bride nearly forty-five years since, and has thus been a resident among us for almost half a century. In passing from us to the great unseen she leaves a large circle of loving attached friends who can feel consoled in their loss only by the reflection that she has laid down the burden of life here to enter into the perfect rest of the blest.

Her character was one of rare excellence. To remarkable beauty of person she united much sweetness of disposition and refinement and grace of manner that all were attracted to her. Her mind was at height with intelligence as her heart was full of pure affection. In the relations of wife and mother she was the idol of her husband, and the unfailing source of happiness to her children. Of her numerous children only two survive her, yet none were very tender years, and some in the maturity of their powers, having preceded her to the tomb. But in all these circumstances of sorrow there are mitigations and compensations in her having passed her soundness in the wisdom and goodness of that Father who directs all our affairs. Her own expressed wishes (she did not but fulfil the duties and fragmitiness of the grief of others. If, on the contrary, seemed to lend her out of her own home circle into the tenderness sympathy with other desolated homes. Hence she was loved so often in the abodes of poverty, and in the midst of sickness and of death—not as one who commiserated simply from the impulse of the immediate waste of the suffering, and ministering to them—she was loving, compassionate, and tender, but was ready to perish came upon her, and she caused the widow's heart to sing for joy. She was a mother to the poor, and the cause that she knew not she searched out.

There was a brief period of her life when great physical prostration, united with a native distrust and depreciation of herself, led her to doubt the genuineness of her own Christian character, and she was in the midst of great darkness and despair. It seemed for a time, indeed, as if her reason would be overwhelmed by the mighty waves of darkness that rolled over her. But careful and skilful nursing gradually restored her health, and a clearer apprehension of the Christ gave her back her reason and her faith, and she in a cheerful hope of Divine favor and to that sweet and abiding peace which her so characterized the past year or three years of her life. Yet her only intimate friends how much like the Saviour himself she seemed to be! What gentleness in her ways! How charitable in her judgments of others! How thoughtful of the wants and convenience of those who attended to her! How self-forgetful in her plans—study to bless those who were about her! Her last words, "I come not to be ministered unto but to minister."

The last weeks of her life only brought into clearer view the beauty of her character. The fruits of the promises of the gospel were taken into her heart more confidingly than ever, and the sting of death was taken entirely away. When not able to speak through her voice, and her eyes were closed upon all earthly objects, her ears were still opened to every word that spoke to her and her mind evidently were thought that was uttered. As her soul lifts rose superior to the weakness of the body, it seemed to assert its divine origin and prove its own immortality. Her memory friends looked on in joyful triumph as she spoke of Christ as her own redeemer, and could tell herself only to him to comfort the hearts of the relief of the attendant of death, while all felt the truth and pertinency of the words of the officiating minister of Christ to her, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth; yea saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them."
