☞ Under the provisions of the act of Congress approved February 21, 1871, a Territorial government was organized in the District of Columbia. Its results have thus far fully realized the expectations of its advocates. Under the direction of the Territorial officers, a system of improvements has been inaugurated, by means of which Washington is rapidly becoming a city worthy of the nation's capital. The citizens of the District having voluntarily taxed themselves to a large amount for the purpose of contributing to the adornment of the seat of Government, I recommend liberal appropriations on the part of Congress, in order that the Government may bear its just share of the expense of carrying out a judicious system of improvements."—President Grant's Message.

THE REPORT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COMMITTEE.

The report of the District of Columbia Committee upon the investigation ordered some three months ago into the administration of the District government, which we printed in full yesterday, is, on the whole, favorable to our authorities. Indeed, when the mountainous accusations of illegality, fraud and corruption that were charged by the memorialists are compared with what they succeeded in proving—which is absolutely nothing at all—the result must be regarded as a very great triumph and a complete vindication of the gentlemen whom it was sought to inculpate and convict. The petition of the memorialists embraced some sixteen different heads, all of which have been patiently investigated by the committee. Ninety days were given to the inquiry; more than two hundred witnesses were examined; thousands of pages of testimony were taken; both sides were represented by counsel, and the widest latitude of investigation and inquiry was allowed. It cannot certainly be alleged by the gentlemen who carried their grievances to Congress that the committee did not patiently listen to all they had to say, and give them ample opportunity to make good their charges. They have been treated with the utmost courtesy and consideration, and if they have failed, as they certainly have failed, to make out their case, it must be set down to the fact that their cause was, from the very beginning, weak and worthless.

THE FIRST COUNT in the indictment charged a violation by the Board of Public Works of one of the sections of the fundamental act; with a usurpation of authority in making improvements not intrusted to their charge by the law-making power. Upon this the committee find that while the Board of Public Works did make contracts for some improvements which were not specified in the plan presented to the Legislature, they cannot in that be said to have violated any law or usurped any authority, for the reason that the Legislature had, in a great measure, left the entire matter to the discretion of the board, and that the work thus ordered was entirely in accordance with the original plan and within its scope. The legislation upon the subject was loose; the new government was almost in a condition of chaos; the desire for progress and advancement was universal, as the committee report: "the new authority was intoxicated with the spirit of improvement." This was in brief the situation when the alleged usurpations took place. The report very properly throws out that charge, and returns a verdict of "not guilty."

THE second, third and fourth counts are disposed of by the committee as follows: "The board acted entirely in good faith and with proper discretion." The fifth accusation sought to bring censure upon the District government for abandoning the City Hall and hiring the Four-and-a-half-street building. The committee believe that such action was justifiable and expedient. The sixth bore upon the four million loan; that the Legislature had passed two bills providing for four millions each, &c. It is unnecessary to comment upon so silly and ridiculous a charge. It was answered and disposed of long ago. The seventh and eighth specifications related to the printing and the number of officers employed by the new government. The amount of the one and the number of the other the committee believe to have been unnecessary, but at the present time the number of employees is not larger than is required to do the business of the District properly.

THE NINTH, tenth, eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth and fifteenth specifications, bearing upon elections, "enormous" contracts, the alteration of grades, the parking of streets in opposition to the wishes of property-owners and to the detriment of property, about which we have heard so much during the last six months, are dismissed with the opinion "that there is no just ground for any censure of the Board of Public Works." The fourteenth related to that terrible subject, the Washington canal, the bare thought of which makes us shudder. Oceans of ink have been wasted in writing about this infernal nuisance; the whole circle of the arts and sciences has been searched to find a means whereby we could get rid of it; doctors, chemists, engineers, reporters, editors and Congressmen have held solemn inquisitions upon its filthy banks, and turned away from it in despair. It has disgusted every one except the memorialists. The memorialists loved every foot of its sacred soil, and are inconsolable that a portion of their treasure has been buried in the earth. The committee, in deference to the petitioners, give a good deal of consideration to the canal, and come to the conclusion that the Board of Public Works did the best thing that could be done with it. There was a little too much delay and expense attending the burial, but the people of Washington will hardly complain, now that they shall see it no more forever.

THE F-STREET IMPROVEMENT, about which so many unpleasant insinuations have been made, which has occasioned so much heart-burning and ill-will, was investigated and personally inspected by the committee, who sum up their verdict: that the improvement "was judicious, and fully justified the expenditure." Some valuable suggestions are made in reference thereto, which will, it is to be hoped, be embodied in legislation as soon as possible. Tiber creek, Slash run, and other historic streams and places come in for a fair share of consideration, with results more to the credit than otherwise of the Board of Public Works. In reference to the paving of the avenues and streets, the committee came to the conclusion that it was a manifest injustice to ask the citizens of Washington to bear the entire burden of keeping them in repair, an opinion in which, it is to be hoped, Congress will coincide.

THE INDEBTEDNESS OF THE DISTRICT, which is set down at $9,931,397.37, and the question whether the improvements that are being carried out and that are contemplated will not result in too great taxation and too heavy a debt, form an interesting chapter of the report. It is only natural that there should be many and different views upon this subject. The committee believe that the District will be able to sustain a debt of ten millions of dollars, which, in our opinion, is rather within than above the limit. The report closes with a deserved tribute to Gov. Cooke and the members of the Board of Public Works for "the zeal, energy and wisdom with which they have started the District upon a new career of improvement and prosperity." We are satisfied, as all our people are satisfied, that in all they have done they have acted for the best interests of the city. It needed not the report of the committee to convince all who know them of their honor, honesty and integrity.

MR. GREELEY IN OHIO.

The weekly New York Tribune for years past has had as general a circulation in northern Ohio as in any portion of the country of the same size. There are but very few Republicans on the Western reserve who have not read and studied Greeley, who do not know all about his principles, his doctrines, his peculiarities and his isms, and it might be supposed that his nomination would in such a locality and under such circumstances cause something of a stampede from the Republican party, but what are the facts?

The Cleveland Herald has taken the pains to learn the sentiment of the people of the rural districts of the whole reserve, and there is not a single Republican paper that supports the Cincinnati movement there; but all, without exception, have promptly repudiated a nomination so "shamelessly made," as well as the nominee. It says also that the report comes up from every township—from the Republican masses—"No takers here" of Greeley stock.

When the Whig party was betrayed by John Tyler, and Daniel Webster remained in his Cabinet and Tylerized, there was a deep and universal feeling of indignation all over the country against the great Whig leader for what seemed to be treason to the Whig party. So intense was the feeling against him in his own State that Massachusetts Whigs, who before that event had almost worshiped him as their leader, would not even give him a hearing in Faneuil hall, and it was not until his abandonment of Tyler and his "return to his first love" that he was again established in the affections and confidence of the Whigs of his own State and the country.

The Cincinnati leaders will do well to read the history of the past, and remember that the Republican masses are just as strong and stern in their devotion to principle as ever the Whigs of olden time, and they will rebuke treason just as promptly and with much more earnestness and effect.

HERE is the way the Tribune disposes of Mr. Voorhees' speech:

"Mr. Voorhees, of Indiana, yesterday gave in his adhesion to Gen. Grant in a high-flavored speech. He finds the Democratic party is losing its old pro-slavery and secession character, and properly concludes he has no longer any business in it.

Mr. Voorhees did not "give in his adhesion" to Gen. Grant, but he declined to give in his adhesion to Mr. Greeley, and announced that he would stand by his party and his principles. It is a pity that Mr. Greeley does not do likewise.

IT IS SELDOM that any community, and particularly Washington, is startled by so cold and brutal a murder as that which occurred in our city yesterday morning, and which will be found fully reported in other columns. At this writing the murderer is still at large, but it is hoped that the officers of justice, who are on his track, will succeed in arresting and bringing him to speedy punishment.

GENERAL HAWLEY has been defeated for the Senatorship of Connecticut by means which reflect no credit on those who opposed him. He was nominated by the Republican caucus of the Legislature, but seventeen men bolted and formed a coalition with the Democrats to elect Senator Ferry.
