AMUSEMENTS.

The National Theatre.

This evening inaugurates the regular season of 1872-3 at the National theatre. The community is hungry for amusement, and they will be with to fill the theatre to-night. They will be surprised and gratified by the new decorations and general changes for the better, and they will thank Mr. Saville for appreciation on his part of the rightful demands of his patrons. In any role assumed by Mr. Florence, he is always good. In Washington he is a popular favorite, and though it will seem a little odd to see him without his charming wife, he will have in May Saville a competent support.

The new Irish drama of "Eileen Oge" vividly brings before an audience all the rich and joyous scenes of early autumn country life. It is elevated in tone, and conveys a most excellent moral lesson. In London "Eileen Oge" has proved highly successful, and doubt need not be entertained that it will be successful here.

The company playing the piece with Mr. Florence and May Saville include the names of Misses Harris, Gifford, Roberts, Adams, and Thomas, Messrs. Edwin Thorne, Vining Bowers, W. J. Gilbert, John Matthews, A. H. Hastings, H. J. Broughton, Parkhurst, Lyth, Butler, Duffield, Johnson, Barry, Burke, and Keane. New scenery has been painted for the drama by Ryan, and we can see no reason now why the opening night should not be a brilliant one, and the "run" of the piece all that could be asked for.

Criticism.

We recognize it as the duty of a theatrical critic to tell the truth. It a play is faulty in its construction, stale in its ideas, and uninteresting in its plot it is the fault of the author and he should be condemned. The best interests of the stage and of the community demand this. If it is a good play, but ruined by being shabbily put on the stage and by incompetent actors, it is the fault of the management, and that should likewise be condemned. The true and conscientious critic writes for the information of the community, and not to bolster up an undeserving theatre.

Criticism does not altogether consist in faultfinding by any means. When and by whom judicious encomium is deserved a theatrical writer is in duty bound to give it. So we say, in fully opening this column for the season, that mere personal and business considerations will not control a single line of critical remark. We shall endeavor to tell the exact truth.

The Theatre Comique.

Success and prosperity still continue to crown the liberal efforts of the manager of the Theatre Comique. Nothing is allowed to curtle about that establishment. Fresh novelties are rapidly brought forward, and the weak fairy Celeste, queen of the air, the woman who flies through space without wings, will be on the boards. She is to be assisted by Mr. Matthews, and their feats of aerial navigation are remarkably sensational.

The Daly brothers, song and dance men, promise something amusingly fine. Vokes' Illusion remains another week, together with Sallie Apt, Dick Parker, Burbank and Gallatti, Davis and his wonderful dogs are still on the programme. For a day performance there is the most meritorious in the world. They have a budget of new tricks for this week. The announcement is read with pleasure that Mr. Stanford will reproduce his "Uncle Tom, or Kentucky as it was twenty years ago." This faithful portraiture of plantation life will be put before the audience. Stanford's delineation of Uncle Tom's character seldom fails to evoke tears as well as keen laughter, and everywhere it has received the highest praise.

Metropolitan Variety Theatre

Since the remodeling of this favorite place of amusement, Manager Hanna has left nothing undone in the way of affording good plays and fine performers, in which he has been highly successful, as the crowded audiences which assemble nightly amply testify. The bill for this evening embraces, in addition to the popular favorites now playing at this theatre, Mr. Sidney Franks, the great London comedian and vocalist, and Miss Ella Saunders, and Messrs. Healy and Conway, who were the recipients during their engagement last week of round after round of applause. We doubt if the entertainments now given at the Metropolitan can be excelled by that presented by any theatre of its kind in any part of the country.

RIOTOUS CONDUCT.

A Disorderly Negro Shot.

Saturday night, about 8:30 o'clock, information was sent to Officer Saffell, of the second police precinct station, that a man had been shot on G and Fifth streets northwest. The officer immediately started for the scene, where he found a crowd of some eight or ten colored men congregated and behaving in a disorderly manner. Upon inquiring, he learned that a gentleman had been shot by one of the party with a pistol in the hand, and had been carried to a drug store on the corner of Sixth and N streets, where his injuries were dressed. He further learned that the party who fired the shot was in the crowd, and he forthwith made an effort to arrest the ringleader in the disorderly gathering, and he stepped up to the man, and arrested him in the name of the law, and started for the station house with the prisoner, followed by the crowd. The prisoner, while on his way to the station, turned and struck the officer under the jaw with his fist, and the officer in endeavoring to extend himself was attacked by the crowd and the prisoner released, during which time he lost his baton. Finding himself powerless, he fell back on the crowd and emptied his revolver of all its seven loads, causing them to scatter to the right and left. He then returned to the station and reported the facts to Lieut. Johnson, who immediately sent a squad of officers on the hunt for the parties, particularly the prisoner, and up to last accounts had not gotten on their track with a fair prospect of making arrests. It is reported that one of the party was shot in the side by the officer.

The Visiting Commanderies.

The committee of arrangements appointed by the several commanderies in this city to prepare for the reception of the visiting commanderies from Hartford, Conn., are busily at work perfecting their plans, and promise to give their guests a most enthusiastic welcome. The Hartford commandery will leave home on the 30th inst., arriving here on the following morning, instead of extending their trip to Richmond, they have decided to spend the two days in and about Washington. A visit to Mount Vernon and an excursion down the river will be included in the proffered pleasures. The commanderies here are now preparing for the reception, having already commenced drilling, and for the purpose the Sir Knights of Washington Commandery are requested to assemble at the Temple this evening at 8 o'clock. The Knights have considerable jobs in the matter, and on parade desire to acquit themselves as handsomely as their guests.

HOMICIDE.

A ROWDY KILLED BY AN OFFICER

A Full Statement of the Affair.

Coroner's Inquest and Verdict.

The Officer Exonerated from All Blame.

Yesterday morning about 1:30 o'clock, Private Chase and Whiting, of the Metropolitan police, doing duty in the Second precinct, while patrolling their beat, saw a suspicious colored character prowling about the vicinity of Twelfth and Q streets, better known as "Bill's Bottom." They approached him and asked his business, but he gave no satisfactory reply. The officers then told him to go away, when he replied he would not, as the streets were free, and he would remain as long as he pleased. The officers arrested him and started to the Second precinct police station with the prisoner, when they were attacked by six or eight men and women, who rescued the prisoner, and upon his becoming free started to run. Officer Chase followed him into the yard of Mr. Thos. Hertsley, on the opposite corner, when a colored man named W. H. Jones interfered with the officer. The man then got away, and Jones went back to his house on the opposite side. When the officer crossed over the street to Jones' house a shot was fired, and the officer returned the fire, striking Jones in the breast, killing him instantly.

THE OFFICER.

Officer Chase is a colored man, and is young in police duty, having only been on the force about three weeks. His comrades speak in the highest terms of him, and say he is one of the calmest officers on the force. He is young, about twenty-five years of age, and very respectable in appearance.

THE VICTIM

is a yellow man, about twenty-five years of age, five feet five inches in height. He had just been discharged from the United States navy, in which he had served three years. Before enlisting in the navy he had borne a very bad character, and the officer had been on the lookout for him for petty stealing.

After the killing the body of Jones was removed to the house near the corner of Twelfth and Q streets, and left in charge of Officer Carruthers. Dr. Winters was summoned, but before he arrived Jones was dead.

THE INQUEST

Yesterday morning Coroner Patterson held an inquest upon the body, and Officer French summoned the following jury: Wm. Proctor, Robt. Brown, J. Lomax, S. T. Trene, W. H. Bruce, B. Keeney, Marshall Brown, Henry Hopkins, P. Dexter, Wm. Dennis, G. Radcliff, and W. Watson.

The following witnesses were sworn:

Bella Wittington, colored, was sworn and testified that between 1 and 2 o'clock yesterday morning Jones was in her house, and the officer tried to arrest a man on the pavement, a stranger to her, and dragged him out into the street. He then got away from the officer and ran through the yard. The officer came into the yard and fired a pistol. Jones, witness' husband, and the officer were on good terms, and never had any difficulty.

Mary Foster was sworn. She lives in a house at the corner of the same lot where Mrs. Jones lives. When she first heard the noise it was in Q street, opposite Jones' house. Witness saw an officer; he had hold of a man, and the man got away from him and ran into the yard. After he went into the yard witness saw Bill Jones and two officers. The two officers were walking behind him. Bill Jones stepped and stood beside the officers. The officers said something to Jones that witness could not understand. The officer who was standing by the party shot off a pistol. Witness saw the two officers have pistols, and saw no other person have a pistol. The shots she heard were fired close together. At the time there was a crowd of women around the man, and witness thought they were trying to get the prisoner away. The crowd were talking very loud. Witness saw the man when he jerked himself away from the officer. The officers fired both shots—each one.

John Henry, colored, sworn: Lives on the corner of Eleventh and Q streets. About 12:30 o'clock saw a man in light clothes and one in dark, whom he supposed to be a policeman, scuffling in a fight with a man. After a minute or two the man became disengaged and ran into the yard, and the officer followed him; saw the flash of a pistol from the yard towards the street and the officer. Immediately after there was a shot fired from towards the street by the man whom witness supposed to be an officer. Witness knew the first shot came from the yard. The man who was with the officer had on light clothes, and he looked as though he was a tall grown man. The officer was a tall man. Witness' first idea was, that the man who ran away from the officer fired the first shot. Witness heard a woman say, "You have killed him" and heard the officer say, "He shot at me first."

Francis Porter, sworn: Lives in the yard where Jones was shot. Sunday morning, about 1:30 o'clock, witness was sitting beside the gate, on the step; heard the officer say to the man, "What are you doing with that pistol?" Witness did not know the man who was talking to the officer. Jones was close to witness when the first shot was fired, said he, Jones, fired it. The man who ran away from the officer had on dark clothes. The shooting was all in the yard, and not in the street at all.

Dr. J. F. Hartigan, sworn: Made a post mortem examination of the body, and found an opening about the middle of the breast, on a line with the third rib. He followed the opening and found that it penetrated the aorta a little above its origin; the pericardial and right pleural cavity was filled with blood. A ball was found lying in the free cavity of the chest; it had evidently expended its force when it penetrated the artery. The death was no doubt the result of hemorrhage. All the other organs of the body were healthy.

Dr. John T. Winter, sworn: Was called to see a man about 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning who had been shot. On arriving at the house found him already dead. The ball had penetrated his breast bone. The shirt had not been scorched, but there were marks of powder upon it. He assisted Dr. Hartigan and corroborated his statement.

Catharine Akers, sworn: Lives on Q street, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets. Witness was going down the yard near the privy; Mr. Jones started to go to the privy, and she was just behind him, when the officer ordered him, fired a shot, which took effect on Bill Jones. The powder flashed in her face. Jones did not get into the privy.

Ellen Jones sworn: Lives in the lower house in the yard, about thirty feet from where the man was shot. Witness came from the store some time before the shooting. Saw Jones coming up the yard. After this witness saw the flash from a pistol; did not know who fired it.

Officer J. G. Whiting sworn: Yesterday morning, about 1:30 o'clock, Chase and myself had just taken a prisoner to the station, and stopped on the corner of Eleventh and Q streets, near Frank's store, when we heard a man walking back and forth near Nutt's store; witness and Chase watched their movements; witness went over and asked what they were loafing around there for—said that it was no place for respectable people at this time of night; witness asked them if they had any home; they replied, "Yes;" witness said if you have any home you had better leave here—you can't loaf around this corner; they replied, "This is a free country, and they would loaf where they d—d pleased; witness replied, "If you repeat that again I'll find a home for you;" he replied in same manner as before, and started up the street, and witness after them, and caught one of them, when he showed fight; Chase and witness both got hold of him, and a crowd got around them and took the man away from the officers. The man ran through the crowd and witness followed him, and the crowd also followed witness, who ran up the steps that led into the yard, and when witness got about the centre of the yard witness heard a shot at the prisoner. Officer Chase was right behind witness at the time; Jones was standing at the left corner of the house at the right hand gate going into the street; witness saw Jones fire at Chase, and witness told Chase to take the fire; he did so, and the ball took effect in Jones' breast; after he fired he ran out of the yard and stood in the middle of the street; witness told Chase to blow his whistle for the sergeant; he replied he had no whistle, so witness blew his whistle; the sergeant appeared in about three minutes, when witness told him the circumstances; by this time a crowd had collected, and he ordered them to disperse.

Officer A. C. Dyson was called, and at this point the jury and witness went into the yard to examine the premises where the shooting took place, and found that one of the balls first had lodged in the house at the corner. The ball in the house tavern strongly the ball taken from Jones' body. The pistol fired by the officer and produced in testimony is Colt's make and of the ordinary size. The jury returned, and Dyson's testimony was continued. He testified that about 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning he rapped for Chase and Whiting, and they answered the rap at Eleventh and Q streets. Witness went up Eleventh to Rhode Island avenue, and by that time heard a shot fired, and immediately afterwards heard a distress call. Witness found the two officers in a crowd on Q street, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets. Witness asked Chase what was the matter. He said a man passed a shot at him and he returned it. Witness saw two women and one man dragging the man Jones to the steps. Jones was on the north side of the steps and they were trying to get him to the south side toward the privies. Witness heard one of the women say, "Did you get what he had?" and the other replied, "Yes." Witness asked what they referred to, and could not get an answer that was satisfactory.

Officer Chase sworn: Went to the gate near Twelfth street, and as he passed the gate the man Jones caught hold of witness and asked where are you going or what do you want here. Witness replied that he was a United States officer, and he broke loose from him. The dead man fired at witness and witness turned and fired at him. The balls were then sent to a drug store opposite to be weighed, and they were found to weigh as follows: The one taken from body 2 drahms 9½ grains and the other 2 drahms.

George Harris was then sworn and said he knew Mr. Jones, the deceased; he saw deceased with a pistol about three weeks ago. Has seen him take it out in Mr. Hall's store at thought he was going to shoot somebody; at this time he had some words with parties in the store; the crowd around made him put the pistol back in his pocket.

The coroner then gave to the jury, when they returned the following verdict: That the said W. H. Jones came to his death about 1:30 o'clock, a. m., on the 23d day of September, 1872, near the corner of Twelfth and Q street, in the city of Washington and county aforesaid, by reason of a wound inflicted by a pistol shot in the hands of one Daniel Chase, an officer of police, who was at the time in the line of his duty and trying to arrest a prisoner.

The jury further believe from the evidence that the said Jones first fired at Chase and that Chase's shot was fired in self defense.

The body was then turned over to his friends, who will give him a respectable burial.

The affair created quite a stir in the neighborhood, as both parties were colored. The sympathy, however, appears to be on the side of the officer.

Death of Andrew R. Hewitt.

Mr. Andrew R. Hewitt died at his residence, on Missouri avenue, between Four-and-a-half and Sixth street, very suddenly on Friday night last, of heart disease. He retired about 10 o'clock in the evening, feeling well, but was soon after attacked with pains about the region of the heart, and was raised up in the bed to relieve suffocation, but failed to rally and died within an hour after the attack. He has been engaged for many years as bookkeeper in the National Metropolitan Bank, and was a very faithful and capable man, and endeared himself to those about him by his quiet and gentlemanly deportment. The officers of the bank held a meeting on Saturday and passed resolutions expressive of their regret at his death and of sympathy and condolence with the family. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon from Trinity church, and the remains were interred in the Congressional cemetery, to which place they were followed by a large number of his relatives and friends.

Total Abstinence.

The first public temperance meeting of the season, under the auspices of Central Catholic Temperance Union, was held last night at Carroll hall, Rev. Father Keane presiding. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Father Keane, J. L. Kidwell and D. F. Peck. That of Father Keane was particularly impressive, embodying his experience of the numerous classes, each class embracing his thousands, who have been ruined from the use and abuse of intoxicating drinks. Messrs. Kidwell and Peck were equally happy in their allusions, the latter especially, who denounced as folly the theory that the introduction of what is called the light wines would diminish the consumption of stronger liquors. Over a dozen persons took the pledge. The next public meeting of the Union will be held on the fourth Sunday of next month at St. Dominic's church, South Washington, due notice of which will be given in the Republican.

THE GRAND GIFT CONCERT

A FIXED FACT.

September 28 the Day.

YOUR TICKETS NOW OR NEVER

THE vast sales of tickets already made, and the rapidity with which they are being disposed of, have determined the Trustees that the Grand Gift Concert for the benefit of the Public Library of the City of Louisville, advertised for the 28th of September, 1872, shall positively come off on that day, without postponement, the management being confident of good reasons for believing that they should pay their tickets at sacrifice. Drawings for a few days second sales who wanted tickets at the second hand, or who had lost theirs, and were living in Louisville stated until sales were closed, expecting, no doubt, as a consequence, and then offered at sacrifice, at not even twenty-five cents on the dollar for tickets which the day before were offered to purchasers at the regular price. Others living at a distance saw thousands of tickets by mail and express, which got here after sales were closed, and had to be sent back. These disappointments need not occur again if the warning now given in due season is heeded.

The drawing will begin precisely at 6 o'clock SATURDAY MORNING, September 28, 1872, in the great hall of the Public Library building, and continue until the one thousand gifts are drawn.

The Concert itself will be the most brilliant musical display that ever occurred in the West, the highest performer, gathered from all parts of this country and from Europe, under the direction of Theo. Hast, will contribute to this great musical carnival. And we shall employ room for every ticket (after to-day) with an organ, and the grand concert hall will be given in Central Park, where arrangements have been made to accommodate all who may come.

Persons holding whole, half or quarter tickets will be admitted to both the Concert and Drawing, and none without such tickets will be admitted.

PRICE OF TICKETS.

Whole tickets, $10; halves, $5; quarters, $3; 11 whole tickets for $100; 22 whole tickets for $200; 55 do. for $500; 100 do. for $1,000; 200 do. for $2,000; 500 do. for $5,000. No discount less than $100 worth of tickets at a time. Large orders should be addressed to the undersigned, arrangements have been made with all the railroad and steamboat lines leading into the city for the sale of round-trip tickets at half fare to all persons purchasing tickets and the concert or drawing, such tickets will be furnished by the Louisville and Nashville railroad, the Louisville, Cincinnati and Lexington railroad, the Louisville, Indianapolis and Madison railroad, the Ohio and Mississippi railroad, the Louisville and Nashville, and the Louisville, Evansville and Henderson Mail Line Packets.

All agents are required to close sales and make their returns in full close on each day, so that they may depositary 25. To do this successfully, those located at great distances must show some sense and foresight.

All tickets to which gifts are awarded will be paid without discount by the Farmers' and Drovers' Bank, and the Public Library, or by sight draft on the Merchants National Bank of New York, at option of the holder. The tickets must first be presented at this office, or at the Public Library Building, before they will be paid by the bank.

Half Alive.

It is a sad thing to pass through life only half alive. Yet there are thousands whose habitual condition is one of languor and debility. They complain of no specific disease; they suffer no positive pain, but they have no relish for anything which affords mental or sensual pleasure to their more robust, and energetic fellow beings.

In nine cases out of ten this status, lassitude and torpor arises from a morbid stomach. Indication—the energy of both mind and body. When the waste of nature is not supplied by a due and regular assimilation of the food, every organ is starved, every function interrupted.

How is this desirable object to be accomplished? The answer to this question, founded on the unvarying experience of a quarter of a century, is easily given. Infuse new vigor into the digestive organs by a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It will prove a sure, though lingering temporary remedy, but make the system up by invigorating the vitalizing fluid of physical strength and activity, the great organ upon which all other organs depend for their nurture and support.

By the time that a dozen doses of the great vegetable tonic and tasty cordial have been taken the feeble frame of the dyspeptic will begin to feel its benign influence. Appetite will be created, and with appetite the capacity to digest it will quickly follow. Persevere in the tonic—persevere—until healthful blood, fit to be the material of flesh and muscle, bone and nerve and brain, flows through the channels of circulation, instead of the watery pabulum with which they have heretofore been perfectly nourished.

THE GRAND GIFT CONCERT

A FIXED FACT.

September 28 the Day.

YOUR TICKETS NOW OR NEVER

THE vast sales of tickets already made, and the rapidity with which they are being disposed of, have determined the Trustees that the Grand Gift Concert for the benefit of the Public Library of the City of Louisville, advertised for the 28th of September, 1872, shall positively come off on that day, without postponement, the management being confident of good reasons for believing that they should pay their tickets at sacrifice. Drawings for a few days second sales who wanted tickets at the second hand, or who had lost theirs, and were living in Louisville stated until sales were closed, expecting, no doubt, as a consequence, and then offered at sacrifice, at not even twenty-five cents on the dollar for tickets which the day before were offered to purchasers at the regular price. Others living at a distance saw thousands of tickets by mail and express, which got here after sales were closed, and had to be sent back. These disappointments need not occur again if the warning now given in due season is heeded.

The drawing will begin precisely at 6 o'clock SATURDAY MORNING, September 28, 1872, in the great hall of the Public Library building, and continue until the one thousand gifts are drawn.

The Concert itself will be the most brilliant musical display that ever occurred in the West, the highest performer, gathered from all parts of this country and from Europe, under the direction of Theo. Hast, will contribute to this great musical carnival. And we shall employ room for every ticket (after to-day) with an organ, and the grand concert hall will be given in Central Park, where arrangements have been made to accommodate all who may come.

Persons holding whole, half or quarter tickets will be admitted to both the Concert and Drawing, and none without such tickets will be admitted.

PRICE OF TICKETS.

Whole tickets, $10; halves, $5; quarters, $3; 11 whole tickets for $100; 22 whole tickets for $200; 55 do. for $500; 100 do. for $1,000; 200 do. for $2,000; 500 do. for $5,000. No discount less than $100 worth of tickets at a time. Large orders should be addressed to the undersigned, arrangements have been made with all the railroad and steamboat lines leading into the city for the sale of round-trip tickets at half fare to all persons purchasing tickets and the concert or drawing, such tickets will be furnished by the Louisville and Nashville railroad, the Louisville, Cincinnati and Lexington railroad, the Louisville, Indianapolis and Madison railroad, the Ohio and Mississippi railroad, the Louisville and Nashville, and the Louisville, Evansville and Henderson Mail Line Packets.

All agents are required to close sales and make their returns in full close on each day, so that they may deposit on 25. To do this successfully, those located at great distances must show some sense and foresight.

All tickets to which gifts are awarded will be paid without discount by the Farmers' and Drovers' Bank, and the Public Library, or by sight draft on the Merchants National Bank of New York, at option of the holder. The tickets must first be presented at this office, or at the Public Library Building, before they will be paid by the bank.
