ALL THE HORSES in Rochester are sick.—Press telegram.

So are all the Greeley politicians in Washington.

IN THE LATE PENNSYLVANIA ELECTION of the three Republican candidates on the ticket for Congressmen-at-large the returns show that the Hon. Lemuel Todd received the largest vote. He polled 360,546 votes, which gives him 46,707 majority. Mr. Albright's majority was 47,012, and Mr. Scofield's 43,900.

A FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT of an American newspaper calls attention to a recent article in the Journal des Debats, from the pen of one of the ablest of French journalists, M. John Lemoine, on the subject of the Geneva award. M. Lemoine considers Chief Justice Cockburn's argument "a marvel of legal learning and hard work, but what particularly impressed him upon its perusal is that the stronger its cogent argument, the weaker appears any foundation for English contentment, much less triumph, resting in the judgment of the court." The French journalist thinks that we have gained a decided advantage over England. To put it in his own language, "the real truth is, that it is a notable check for English diplomacy and policy, which have been defeated from beginning to end in the affair."

THE POSTAL TELEGRAPH SERVICE seems to be enormously on the increase in England. For the week ending October 6 the number of messages forwarded was 320,231, being an increase of 46,953 over the corresponding period last year. This shows conclusively that the people have confidence in the management of the telegraph by the Government, and are using it to a greater extent than ever before. The Postmaster General will, it is to be hoped, renew his suggestions and recommendations on the subject this year in his report to Congress. If he can only succeed in having it adopted it will be one of the greatest services ever rendered the country. Some of the large newspaper corporations are fighting the scheme, but that should not discourage him. The reason of their opposition is that they fear the adoption of the system will end the despotism of the Associated Press, the entire working of which is in the interest of half a dozen large papers in New York.

THE Evening Star believes that the Tribune has been "tolerably fair during the campaign, and though fathering some disreputable political canards, has at the same time utterly rejected many of the offensive personalities and political falsehoods deemed 'good enough in organs' by other papers on its side." We suspect that the Star has not read the Tribune since last May, or it would not have made so curious a statement. It has been "tolerably fair!" Why to this hour the Tribune has not printed the platform of the Republican party; it has never mentioned the party except as the "Renominationists;" there is scarcely a man in the party that it has not slandered and defamed in the most villainous manner. The President and his Cabinet have been singled out for especial abuse and assault. Let the Star read its article of yesterday on "Manifest Destiny" and tell us if it is "fair," or its article on the credit mobilier, in which it insinuates that Speaker Blaine and Mr. Colfax if allowed to appoint committees of investigation will so pack them that the truth cannot be ascertained.

THE SOUTHERN JOURNALS are beginning to see that the stories of poverty and misery in that section, which the Greeley organs are circulating for purely campaign purposes, are, in several ways, having a very detrimental effect upon the Southern States.

First of all emigration is hindered and driven away; again, traders who come North for goods have very great difficulty in obtaining credit excepting at ruinous rates, and so forth. To counteract all this leading Southern journals are now taking the utmost pains to deny the false reports of their political friends in the North in regard to the alleged destitution in that section. The Vicksburg Times, for instance, says there is no "abounding poverty" anywhere in Mississippi. "She has produced the largest corn crops in 1872 ever known in her history, and her other crops will bring as much money into her borders as that of any previous year." Of course, the idea was to represent the Southern people as suffering from starvation, all for the purpose of bringing odium upon the Administration. The other stories of despotism and so forth in the South have about as much foundation in truth as this one of Southern misery, which the Southern Greeley organs are now denying.

THE FINANCIAL EDITOR of the Times, commenting on the recent action of the Treasury Department, says: "We have every reason to know that this action is generally appreciated; and in the spirit in which it was rendered by the Government. The hypercriticisms of part of the press that the Treasury had no business with the question and that the fears of panic should have been left to take care of themselves, have not been regarded by the public at large. They are not simply absurd and uncharitable, but are untrue in fact as well as in theory, and nearly every one of these captious journals would have been 'down upon Boutwell' had the pressure and inconvenience and growing feeling of alarm in the money market a fortnight ago been suffered to run into panic, with seventy-five millions idle gold in the Treasury and a discretionary control of forty-four millions of greenbacks in the will of the Secretary. The questions would have been sounded abroad and thundered against the whole Administration, 'Have we a Government?' And if so, what is it good for financially, if not to relieve trade from sudden embarrassment and support its own national banking system in seasons of trial by the whole power of the Government?" There can be no doubt that the Secretary of the Treasury acted entirely right in the matter, and that by his timely action he saved thousands of persons from commercial distress. No matter which side he took he was, as the Times says, certain to be criticised and abused. Whether the Secretary should have this enormous power vested in him is entirely a different question.

A DEMOCRATIC CHANGE OF BASE RECONMENDED.

The Chicago Times, the leading Democratic organ of the Northwest, if not of the whole country, has as little encouragement for Mr. Greeley as it had last July when the Democratic party surrendered to him at Baltimore. In a late number it analyzes the electoral vote and ventures to dispute the statement of Mr. Greeley's own newspaper in New York, that the Liberal candidate is certain to carry seventeen States and one hundred and seventy-eight votes. Its own estimate is that the Sage will get only eighty-six votes, and from the following States: Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. This it believes to be a most liberal calculation, for of these States, Delaware and Virginia may be fairly classed as doubtful, "because many Democrats there have rejected crow from the first." It also classes Arkansas, Missouri and Texas "doubtful," for the reason that "Greeley is already beaten and many voters will hasten to array themselves on the winning side." The Times is in favor of dropping Mr. Greeley altogether. It argues that in case he should be dropped, as he ought to be, matters would wear altogether a different face. It then goes on to say: "With the philosopher and his lost cause out of the way, it would be possible to carry Alabama, Connecticut, Florida, Louisiana, New Jersey, New York, West Virginia, Indiana, California, Nevada and New Hampshire for O'Conor, in addition to the States set down for Greeley in the above list, giving him 192 votes, or 8 more than enough to elect him. Dr. Greeley will carry fewer States and receive fewer electoral votes than any respectable Democratic candidate that might be substituted for him. He is merely a dead weight, and his candidacy from this time out will be more damaging to Democracy everywhere—in the local elections not less than the general—than it would be to finish the campaign without any Presidential candidate at all. The substitution of O'Conor and Adams for Greeley and Brown would in a great measure counteract the damaging moral effect of the October rout, inspire some hope of success by introducing the element of principle into the campaign and insure a larger measure of success in the State and Congressional contests than can be expected if the struggle is to be finished, as it has hitherto been conducted, on the basis of spoils. Let the Philosopher clear the track!"

The advice of the Times comes entirely too late to be accepted and acted upon. There can be no doubt that such a course has been in the minds of the leaders of the party, but no one of them was bold enough to take the responsibility of taking the lead in it. So far as the Republican party is concerned, it matters very little to it whether Mr. Greeley is thrown overboard or not. The result will be the same. The Democratic party is dead beyond all hope of resurrection, and can never get back into power. It will have lost everything in the present campaign, principle—such as it was—organization and the little prestige it possessed. Had it had the wisdom to select some such a man as Grosbeck at Baltimore instead of, as the Times says, taking Mr. Greeley merely for "the spoils," it would have made a pretty strong campaign and held its followers together. It would be in a position to maintain a strong opposition during the next four years; but the Baltimore business was so transparent a fraud and a humbug that it disgusted everybody and rendered the party powerless for good or evil in the future. The Democracy has gone into its last Presidential campaign. There is no possible way in which it can recover from the defeat that will befal it next month.

WASHINGTON.

The Philadelphia Press, in an article yesterday on the city of Washington, says:

"The progress of the city of Washington is of interest to the entire country. It is the national capital, and should be made the national pride. The old, silly cry for the removal of the capital is heard no more. The grounds around the noble Legislative building are soon to be enlarged and improved, and if the people show the public spirit Washington may yet rival the great cities of Europe. Nowhere in the old world are such imposing and beautiful structures as our capital can boast of. Let the good work go on, and we are sure that no man of sense and thought will object to any reasonable aid afforded by the Government. This renewed effort to secure manufactures indicates that the people are awakening from their lethargy. So long as Washington was the headquarters of the slave aristocracy it slumbered, but when that incubus was thrown off it moved onward. Its society in winter is the best in the world, and we can see that in the near future no man of wealth will consider his establishment complete without a winter home at the nation's capital."

The future of our city rests entirely with ourselves. During the last eighteen months no city in the Union has made more rapid strides in nearly all that goes to make a community great and prosperous. Our streets and avenues have been improved in a style that rivals any city in the world; numerous blocks of new houses have been erected in every section, and plans have been laid for a still greater development in the future. The capital never had such an opportunity as she has now and as she will have during the next four years. In the first place we have the sympathy of nearly the whole country; the Administration desires to do all that it can do to make Washington worthy of her place in the Union, and last of all we have, and shall continue to have, a friendly Congress. There is nothing that the national Legislature ought in justice to give that will not be given if we only seek it as we should. The curse of this town now, as in the past, has been a set of men who will neither do anything themselves nor permit others to do it. Look at the scenes that have been enacted here during the last twelve months. For three months the work of improvement was suspended in order that two or three men might ventilate their private and personal grievances before Congress under the pretense of investigating fraud and corruption. The result is known to everybody.

The next session of Congress will last only about ninety days, and then we shall have no meeting until the following December. When it meets we trust that every one of our citizens will consider himself a member of a committee to make our representatives understand the wants and necessities of the city, so that we may obtain what we are so fairly entitled to. For instance, there is the question of the schools. The District of Columbia is the only portion of the Union that has not had some portion of the public funds for the establishment of agricultural or other schools, and a moment's consideration will convince any one that there is no place more entitled to a grant of this character. A large number of the children at our schools belong to parents who are citizens of the States and Territories, being temporarily resident in Washington. So it is manifestly unfair that our citizens should be taxed for the education of these children. And so on of a dozen other questions. The General Government has done really very little for Washington. All the moneys that have been expended are purely for its own accommodation and that of its servants. So long as it retained the jurisdiction over our avenues they were the disgrace of the republic. We are not disposed, however, to indulge in any vain complaints. The General Government, in giving us jurisdiction over our own affairs, made one step in the right direction, as the results all around us we think abundantly testify. If we do our whole duty now and in the future, we have no doubt that Congress will do all that it should do, and aid in giving the United States a capital of which they may be justly proud.

AFTER a great deal of study and a close examination of the Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania papers, the Boston Journal has made up its mind in relation to the cause of Greeley's ill luck in the recent elections. It finds the almost universal use by his friends of the title "Uncle Horace." A man who was thus by implication accused of having several million nephews was naturally regarded as a dangerous person.

THE Lincoln (Nebraska) Statesman, the central organ of Greeleyism in that State, thus philosophically accepts the situation: "We have met the enemy and we are his'n. Nebraska, Pennsylvania has gone back on us, but there is this consolation—we've got Injuny. Our 'rustler' is sick. Too much 'crow' is not the cause—in fact, he hasn't crowed for lo! these many moons. The last 'caws' he had anything to do with proved too much for him."

DAYS OF ABSENCE.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean is responsible for the following clever hit:

"The incorruptible Fenton has also betaken himself to arithmetic—reform arithmetic, of course. Fenton has ciphered out the following time-table of days lost by President Grant and his Cabinet by absence from Washington since January 1, 1871."

"This is nothing to the record we can make up against President Greeley and his Cabinet for the four years following next 4th of March. The number of days of non-service by them during that period will stand as follows:

	Days.
President Horace Greeley, 4 years, equal to	1,461
Secretary of State C. Schurz, 4 years, equal to	1,461
Secretary of War Jefferson Davis, 4 years, equal to	1,461
Secretary of Interior D. W. Voorhees, 4 years, equal to	1,461
Secretary of Treasury R. E. Fenton, 4 years, equal to	1,461
Attorney General Jos. N. Palmer, 4 years, equal to	1,461
Postmaster General John Cochrane, 4 years, equal to	1,461
Secretary of Navy Raphael Semmes, 4 years, equal to	1,461

"There is a case of absenteeism worth the virtuous Senator's attention."
