CONGRESS.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Senator Pomeroy Makes an Explanation and Demands a Committee of Investigation—The Committee Appointed—The Alabama Claims Bill Passed—The Bill to Increase Salaries—Miscellaneous Business.

SENATE.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1873.

Mr. Wilson presented the memorial of 1,000 clerks in the legislative and executive departments, asking the passage of the pending bill to abolish the sale of liquors in the District of Columbia.

MR. POMEROY'S EXPLANATION.

Mr. Pomeroy, rising to a question of privilege, said:

Mr. President, I embrace the first opportunity after being able to reach my seat in the Senate to arrest for a moment the business of the session in order to make a statement personal in its general character to myself, and one which, in justice, is due also to the members of this body, with whom I have so long been associated.

Senators as individuals, as well as the country, have had their attention called through the press to the late Senatorial election in Kansas, and have had some information of the conspiracy there, planned, plotted and executed for the purpose of accomplishing my defeat. Upon the subject-matter of that act of villainy, unparalleled in wickedness, my lips have heretofore been sealed for the want of a proper place and opportunity to speak. I now propose to break this silence.

In your presence, sir, in the presence of my fellow-Senators and before the country, I publicly deny the truth of each and every charge of bribery and corruption made by the chief instigator of this conspiracy or by whomsoever made. I deny each and every statement imputing to me any act inconsistent with moral rectitude and correct conduct, and declare all such statements to be totally, absolutely and wickedly false. And I further specifically deny that I ever entered into any contract or agreement, directly or indirectly, with any man (a member of the Kansas Legislature or not) for a vote in my favor, or that I ever, directly or indirectly, paid any individual one dollar or any other sum for his vote for me in the late Senatorial election.

I know the pressure of public business, and am mindful of the great labor imposed upon every Senator in the closing days and nights of an expiring Congress. Still I ask the subject of such serious charges, and shall so soon retire from the jurisdiction of the Senate, that I must now ask and urge, and, if deemed proper, demand, that a select committee be appointed, with full powers to investigate fully, thoroughly and quickly each and every charge of the above character made or even insinuated against me; and that the fullest authority be given them to send for persons and papers, and to compel the attendance of witnesses, even though they may be members of a State Legislature now in session, to the end that an impartial and unbiased judgment of the committee and of the Senate may be reached while I am yet a member of this body. And that there may be no possibility of any party bias in the composition of this committee, I should be especially gratified if gentlemen from the Gulf side of the chamber were largely represented on the committee, and that neither my self nor any political associate should be even consulted as to the members composing the committee, or as to who should be its chairman.

Under all these circumstances, is it too much to ask for this committee, suggesting its powers, duties and composition, knowing, as I do full well, that I have committed no crime, and asking only for a patient and fair investigation, that an impartial verdict may be rendered.

He concluded by offering a resolution for the appointment of a select committee of five to investigate his case.

THE BANNON BILL.

Mr. Patterson, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, submitted a recommendation for an appropriation of $95,000 to improve the sewer of Washington; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

POSTAL APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. Cole submitted an amendment, intended to be proposed by him, to the postal appropriation bill, directing the Postmaster General to invite proposals for carrying mails between San Francisco and Australia at a maximum annual compensation of $500,000, the Postmaster General to have power to terminate the contract by giving two years' notice, being what is known as the "Burnside subsidy bill," with its maximum of $500,000 increased from $250,000.

Mr. Sawyer, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, reported, with an amendment, the bill supplementary to the act of January 29, 1870, authorizing the Washington City and Point Lookout Railroad Company to extend its road into the District.

Mr. Patterson, from the same committee, reported, with amendments, the bill incorporating the Washington and Rock Creek Valley Railroad Company.

Mr. Thurman, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, reported adversely on the claim of Thomas Dowling to a portion of Goat Island.

Mr. Davis reported bill to provide for the erection of public buildings at Parkersburg, West Virginia. Passed.

Mr. Stevenson presented the credentials of W. B. Machen, now in the Senate by gubernatorial appointment, elected by the Legislature of Kentucky to fill the unexpired term of Hon. Garrett Davis.

The credentials were read and Mr. Machen was sworn in.

The Vice President submitted a letter from Hon. Henry Wilson, announcing that he had transmitted to the Governor of Massachusetts his resignation as Senator, to take effect at the end of this Congress.

Mr. Morrill, of Me., offered a resolution that the select committee appointed to consider the testimony transmitted by the House affecting certain Senators have leave to sit during the sessions of the Senate. Adopted.

Mr. Ramsey introduced bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to discharge certain obligations of the United States to the upper and lower bands of Sioux Indians. Referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. Carpenter introduced bill to abolish the Eastern judicial district of Wisconsin. Referred to Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. Sprague introduced bill to provide for the erection of public buildings at North Providence, R. I. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. Logan called up the House bill to provide for the erection of a prison at Rock Island, Illinois, which was discussed and laid over.

On motion of Mr. Sherman, the Committee on Printing was instructed to inquire into the best method of disposing of the public documents after July 1, 1873.

The Vice President announced as to investigate the charges against Mr. Pomeroy, Messrs. Frelinghuysen, Buckingham, Alcorn, Thurman, and Vickers.

THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE

The House bill extending the Southern Claims Commission for four years from March 10, 1873, was taken up, the question being on the amendment of the Senate committee extending it to January 1, 1876; which was agreed to.

The second amendment was to exclude all claims not presented on or before March 3, 1873. The amendment was opposed by Messrs. West and Hill, and the bill was then laid over without further action.

Mr. Morton, from Committee on Privileges and Elections, submitted a resolution relative to the electoral vote of Louisiana; which was laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Logan introduced bill to establish a post road in Beaufort county, S. C. Referred to Committee on Post Offices.

On motion of Mr. Sherman, the Vice President was authorized to appoint a teller on the part of the Senate to count the electoral vote on Saturday next.

The unfinished business, being

THE ALABAMA CLAIMS

bill, was then taken up.

Mr. Frelinghuysen argued against paying any portion of the fund to the insurance companies. He held that they had received their advance war rates, that it was their business to take such risks, and they charged accordingly. Besides, as all know, the stock of insurance companies and other corporations is constantly changing hands, and as a general thing the parties who paid the losses would not be the parties who would now receive this allowance. The ship owner has no legal claim because his property was destroyed by an act of war of a public enemy. The man who had a just claim was the merchant whose goods were destroyed and who had no insurance. Every intelligent citizen knew that the injury done us by Great Britain was of national injury, and it was perfectly absurd to make any argument on a point so plain.

Mr. Buckingham argued for a plan of distribution by which each case would stand on its own merits.

Mr. Morton called up House bill to provide for the appointment of a commission to complete the boundary line between the territory of the United States and the possessions of Great Britain not completed under the act of August 11, 1856, to carry into effect the first article of the treaty of June 15, 1846.

[The bill was passed. It appropriates $5,000 to pay the expenses of the commission.]

Mr. Stewart then took the floor and argued in favor of the pending bill and its provisions in reference to the insurance companies. He also held that they had no claim whatever.

Mr. Corbett also took the view that there was no just claim on the part of the insurance companies.

Mr. Bayard said that he would go so far as to insist that stockholders of insurance companies should have an equal right to claim the law with all other citizens. Many of the stockholders of these corporations were of that class which always challenges our sympathy, widows and orphans. They were no more responsible for the war than any other class of citizens. If the insurance rates were higher during the war they were lawfully higher. Their profits were just as legitimate as the profits of the merchants who made extra hazardous ventures during the war. Many shipping firms of the United States carry on no large a trade that they insure themselves.

Would it be right to say to one of this class of self-insuring merchants when he presented his claim for a vessel destroyed by one of the Confederate cruisers, would it be right to say to him, You made many other ventures which were profitable; you sold your goods at an immense advance, which was paid by the people; now, before you get anything for the vessel which you did lose, you must render an account of your profits from the fifty or more voyages which were successful. This would be applying the same principle exactly as is now sought to be applied to the insurance companies.

The Vice President announced that he had appointed Mr. Sherman as the teller on the part of the Senate to count the electoral vote.

The motion of Mr. Sherman to strike from the twelfth section the clause discriminating against insurance companies was lost—yeas 17, nays 28.

Mr. Bayard then moved an amendment, that in hearing the claims of insurance companies, each loss shall be considered separately, and the premium received on that particular loss shall only be deducted. [Rejected—yeas 18, nays 28.

Several other amendments were offered and rejected, and the bill was then passed—yeas 30, nays 19.

The Senate then, at 4:50 p. m., adjourned.
