APPLICATIONS continue to be forwarded to the President and to the Department of State for appointments to the Vienna exhibition. We are requested to state that all the appointments authorized by law have been made.

NEW YORK'S CONUNDRUM — Why don't Tweed resign?

IN LESS THAN TWO WEEKS from now Connecticut holds her election, and although there exists little excitement over the coming contest the Republicans are buckling down to work with good earnestness, and are confident of carrying the State as a result of their labor.

THE Chicago Tribune says there has been "a feeble utterance somewhere of Mr. Colfax's name in connection with the next Presidency." It must have been a groan from some yawning chasm.—N. Y. Herald.

The Herald, for once, is wrong. There isn't a chasm near South Bend, and the groan could come from no other place.

THE REPUBLICAN need not be alarmed. We shall not change. We shall continue to cheerfully furnish news for the morning papers from our abundance.—Star of last evening.

Again we are disappointed in our little neighbor, whose attention we call to the story of Jones and Brown. Jones kept taking all Brown gathered, but B., being a big, good-natured fellow, always used to plenty, never murmured, and only hinted Jones' failing when J. himself announced his intention to reform. Jones replied: "Never fear, old boy; you shall not want. I shall cheerfully give you from my abundance."

THE PATRONS of the drama and of the opera in Washington have reason for the sincerest congratulation in the fact that a very high class of amusement has been afforded at Wall's Opera House by Mr. John T. Ford, its proprietor and manager. In the first place, he availed himself of the accumulated experiences of years in all the internal arrangements of the opera house with reference to its beauty, harmony and convenience, and adaptation to the purposes in view. He secured for the first engagement there Mr. Joseph Jefferson, the first comedian of the world. He was succeeded by Miss Charlotte Cushman, in the opinion of some the first tragedienne of the world. She was followed by Miss Agnes Ethel, a society star, in whom, in common with our friends, we found much to admire and sincerely praise. And now we have a season of English opera, to be followed by the appearance of stars eminent in their profession. All this has been done at expense, leaving for Mr. Ford a very small margin for profits—much smaller than warranted by his investments and the unselfish character of the risks he has assumed. His management is entitled to the most cordial support of the community, and we are glad to know that from all persons competent to judge it receives the praise that is due.

IT SEEMS that considerable feeling has been stirred up in New York about the burial of Foster in Greenwood cemetery. By a section of the charter of the cemetery company the burial within the grounds of any one who died in prison or was executed for a criminal offence is forbidden, so that the question is to be submitted to the directory board. Does it not seem hard that the terrible result of the legally expressed opinions of twelve men (although seven of them afterwards regretted, and made all possible amends for their action) should not stop with the gallows but follow its victim beyond the grave? Such bitterness of sentiment, such cruelty of action, find their birth in minds easily led astray by a low, revengeful howl for blood, or in hearts cold as they are cruel. It is a sentiment belonging to an age grown old by centuries, when even a poor suicide was denied Christian burial. An extract from the first scene of the fifth act of Hamlet, presenting the colloquy between the grave-diggers, is called to mind:

1st Clown. "Give me leave. Here lies the water; good; here stands the man; good; if the man go to this water and drown himself it is will he, nill he, he goes; mark you that; but if the water come to him and drown him, he drowns not himself: argal he that is not guilty of his own death shortens not his own life."

2d Clown. "But is this law?"

1st Clown. "Ay marry is't: crowner's-quest law."

Would not the rough logic of the clowns have some weight with the board of directors of Greenwood?

GEN. BUTLER UPON THE O'BRIEN CASE.

In another column this morning we print a letter from Gen. B. F. Butler to the Hon. Wm. E. Chandler upon the commutation of the sentence of O'Brien, the law and the evidence in the case, which will be read with interest. A good deal has been said and written on this subject, not only in our home papers, but in the press of the country. The President has been censured for having pardoned him and arrested the execution of the law, merely because O'Brien had "influential friends." Gen. Butler, it will be observed, declares that he never communicated with the President upon the subject, which sweeps away a whole batch of sensational stories.

THE CORRESPONDENTS VS. CONGRESSMEN.

The salary bill increasing the pay of Congressmen contained, it will be recollected, a clause allowing the clerks to committees at the Capitol an allowance of fifteen per cent. upon the compensation received by them during the last two years. A reference to the Congressional Directory shows that a large number of the gentlemen who act as clerks to committees are representatives in Washington of the journals that are now so soundly abusing Congress for its action upon this question. The arguments of these journals have had so sensible an effect upon the minds of these gentlemen that it is understood they will absolutely decline to avail themselves of the increased compensation. This is a gratifying piece of intelligence, and, in deciding to take this course, the correspondents have not only shown a singular consistency and reflected credit upon themselves, but set an excellent example to Congressmen.

The actual disposition to be made of the fifteen per cent. has not yet been determined, but it is believed that it will be somewhat as follows. The illustrious Major Ben Perley Poore, who is clerk to the Joint Committee on Printing on the part of the Senate, intends, it is said, to present his to St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum; Mr. L. L. Crounse, of the New York Times, who is clerk to the Pacific Railroad Committee of the House, and Mr. Justin E. Colburn, of the same paper, who is clerk to the Pacific Railroad Committee of the Senate, have signified their intention of giving their increased compensation to the Young Men's Christian Association; Mr. Bridgman, of the Boston Advertiser, will imitate Mr. Ames' example, and place it where it will do the most good; Mr. D. W. Bartlett, the clerk to the Election Committee of the House, and the correspondent of two exceedingly indigorant papers—the Springfield Republican and the New York Independent—will send his to the consolidated fund. Mr. Macfarland, of the Philadelphia Press, will contribute the amount coming to him to the centennial fund, or to a testimonial for the Hon. Simon Cameron. Mr. Ramsdell, of the New York Tribune, gives the sum that Congress has so generously voted him to the Greeley memorial fund, while Mr. U. H. Painter, of the Philadelphia Inquirer, says he does not think he is entitled to his allowance, and has turned it over to the chairman of his committee, Mr. Farnsworth, who is not troubled with any such conscientious scruples. Mr. James R. Young, the clerk to the Committee on Naval Affairs of the House, has announced that he will send his compensation to the Washington Monument Association. Messrs. Vance, McKee, Smith and others will also make an equally appropriate disposition of their allowances.

THE WORKINGMEN AND THE EMPLOYERS.

If we may believe the New York papers, a very uneasy feeling exists in that city between the workingmen and their employers. The two parties would seem to be gradually assuming an attitude of formidable hostility, and to be preparing to measure their strength some time during the coming summer. Mutterings of discontent come from the ranks of the workingmen; secret meetings are being held, and money raised to support a strike.

Upon the other side, we are told that the Master Carpenters' Association have resolved that they can be no longer governed by the eight-hour rule, and have so notified the journeymen. The Carpenters' Union have the proposition of the master workmen now under consideration, and will take definite action thereon this week. Meanwhile all the other employers' associations are closely watching the different leagues and trades unions, which, in turn, are holding secret meetings, the result of which, if they have any result at all, is carefully concealed. All manner of rumors fill the air, the most important and alarming of which is that all the workingmen will strike at the same time, either for the eight-hour rule or an increase of pay. Of course the employers denounce the contemplated action of the workingmen, and declare that, rather than yield to their demands, they will close their shops and suspend business altogether.

We observe in our exchanges a disposition to read the old stereotyped sermons about the evils and iniquities of strikes in connection with the above facts and events of the same character in other sections of the country. Our cotemporaries might as well save themselves all this trouble. These homilies were in order twenty or thirty years ago, but they are entirely out of season now. The workingmen of the present generation—the American workingmen particularly—are an intelligent, and, for the most part, educated body of men, who fully understand what they are doing and the consequences of their action. As to their being led away and unduly influenced by demagogues, and so forth, it is the sheerest nonsense.

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL RAILROAD CASE.

While the country is awaiting with much anxiety the result of the action of the railroad companies in refusing to run postal cars after April 1, unless their demands are acceded to, it may be some consolation to know that one of the roads, the New York Central, is being made to feel the firmness of the law's execution even after years of delay. The collector at Albany recently seized seventeen locomotives, which were sold on Saturday last to help liquidate a claim the United States has for unpaid taxes. The treasurer of the road was the only bidder for these cumbersome iron horses, and they were knocked down for $17,000. The amount due the Government is still about $450,000, and if the company was to be the only bidder the entire road might be seized and sold and yet the Government would be unrequited. But Mrs. Toodles is not the only person who can go to auction. Uncle Sam has a right to bid under the law, and when the passenger depot or round-house at Albany is offered under the auctioneer's hammer, and a bid not less than one half its fair valuation is offered, the collector is instructed to bid it in on behalf of the Government and hold the property subject to the order of the Treasury Department. Commodore Vanderbilt may be a shrewd financier, but the "collected wisdom of the land" has enacted a statute that all the Vanderbilts in the country cannot evade.
