LETTER FROM NORTH CAROLINA.

The Annual State Fair—Misstatement Corrected.

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 15, 1873.

I noticed in the REPUBLICAN a letter from your Greensboro' correspondent, dated September 2, upon our approaching State fair. The compliments bestowed in that letter upon the present managers of the society are justly due, and are well-earned laurels. But for slight injustice done to the managers of last year's fair, and to correct the statement made by your correspondent why Mr. Voorhees was selected to deliver the annual address, I should have been content to have remained silent.

It is stated in the letter above referred to that

to attend the fair of 1872. This is a mistake. The President was cordially invited by letter to attend last year's fair. A committee, consisting of Mr. T. M. Holt, president of the society; Judge Thomas Settle, Senators Merrimon and Ransom, Governor Caldwell, Hon. W. A. Smith, Hon. S. H. Rogers, Hon. W. N. H. Smith, Colonel L. S. Young and Captain T. F. Lee, have been appointed a committee to wait upon the President in person and assure him that his presence at our State fair next month is greatly desired by the officers and members of the society, and that he would be received with open arms by the whole people of the State. While the management of previous fairs may not have been all that it should have been, I am free to say that "snubbing the President" has never been one of the features of the N. C. A. S.

In canvassing for a gentleman to deliver the annual address, the sole object of the executive committee of the society was to select widely known throughout the republic as an orator—one that would attract people to the fair, and deliver an address that would enchain the attention of the multitude who are expected to attend the fair, and leave impressions from which much good would spring. That the purest motives—such only as should move a committee desirous of building up a State fair—did govern and control in the selection of Mr. Voorhees, is patent when I state that the executive committee were of opinion that the interests of the society would be enhanced if either Hon. Charles Sumner, Hon. A. H. Stephens, or Hon. Mr. Voorhees could be induced to deliver the address. The secretary was instructed to correspond with these gentlemen, for the purpose of ascertaining which of them could attend. Mr. Voorhees replied that he could come.

THE SOCIETY IS REORGANIZED

at each fair. Last year it was thought desirable to reorganize by electing new officers entirely. A large number of the best men in the State were recommended to the society, and of this large number officers were selected whose fitness and capacity are unquestioned, the object being to secure the best talent and to effectually do away with the old cry that the fair is run in the interest of party. It is with pleasure that I state that this object has been accomplished. There is now a united effort among the people of the State to make the annual exhibitions a success by making the enterprise what its name purposes—a State fair.

Now, Mr. Editor, we are going to have the GRANDEST FAIR EVER HELD IN THE SOUTH.

Our grounds are the most complete, embracing seats for ten thousand people in the grand stand. Floral hall will seat two thousand people. Mechanics' hall is 250 by 45 feet, with shafting to test all kinds of machinery that may be on exhibition. Agricultural hall is 250 by 45 feet, three stories high. There are stalls to accommodate one thousand head of horses and cattle. There are two fine mineral springs on the grounds, besides eight wells of excellent water. We have the best half-mile track in the country, and the most liberal premium list that has ever been offered in the South, amounting to $11,000 in cash. The grounds are naturally beautiful—situated on a high location, commanding a view of the surrounding country for miles in every direction.

In hope to see strangers at the fair on the 13th of next month from all parts of the country I will vouchsafe them a hearty "Tar-heel" welcome. We have our faults, as all other people, but our hospitality to strangers has never been questioned. T.

CARPET-BAGGERS.

Who are Carpet-Baggers—Gov. Walker, of Virginia, "late of New York"—A Chapter for Virginia Conservatives.

A few days ago I heard a "manner-born" Conservative (who, by the by, in everything except politics is liberal, courteous and clever) denouncing the carpet-baggers in severe terms. I took the liberty to ask him to define his idea of a "bagger," and to point out and name a few from his knowledge and acquaintance. He replied: "A carpet-bagger is an adventurer, who followed the tracks of the Federal army, or came to speculate, get office, plunder, and then return to his former haunts." He then added: "There are none of this description about here; very few in this State, but plenty of them in South Carolina and further south."

AN ADVENTURER.

Now let us see how this definition will apply to Governor Gilbert C. Walker. From what I can learn, our worthy governor, in an early period of his life, left Binghamton, N. Y., for the express purpose of speculating—an "adventurer," if there ever was one. He made his bid in that capacity at Fortress Monroe, and there secured from General Butler—better known in Virginia and the South as "Beast Butler"—a permit to open a sutler's shop or stand. I will not testify to the truth of this statement, but such is the current report, and I have never seen the statement denied by his political friends and admirers.

This "adventurer" next turned up at Norfolk, and there formed the acquaintance of that wealthy, jovial, clever and accomplished gentleman, L. H. Chandler. Mr. Chandler then had an office in Norfolk, well stored with law books and legal documents, and Mr. Walker, having a studious turn of mind, and a desire to become a professional lawyer, asked the privilege of the obliging proprietor the use of said books, which was frankly granted, without money and without price. But yet, the "adventurer" said now

GOVERNOR WAS NOT SATISFIED.

He longed for office—a fat office. He wanted to be United States district attorney, and made the attempt to have Mr. Chandler, the man who befriended him, turned out, in order that he (Walker) might fill his place. And what do you imagine was the charge preferred against Mr. Chandler to get him out and put Mr. Walker in? Because he did not confiscate rebel property fast enough. Make no the Federal official and I will put the rebels through."

I will not testify to the truth of this statement, but I heard the charge made in plain, positive language at a public meeting, and to a large audience, and I have never seen the slightest contradiction as to its truth. Let its truth be established beyond a shadow of doubt, still in the eyes of the Conservatives Mr. Walker is no carpet-bagger or adventurer,

BECAUSE HE VOTES RIGHT.

If the angel Gabriel should come down and vote the Republican ticket he would be denounced as a carpet-bag devil by the Conservative editors and leaders. It is immaterial whether the adventurer comes from the North, East or West; Irish, Dutch or Mexican; civilized or savage; a worthy and useful citizen or a candidate for the penitentiary, if he is only "sound on the Conservative goose," he receives a hearty welcome. Oh! conservatism! what a multitude of sins thou will hide!

As an evidence of

CONSERVATIVE HATE AND DUPLICITY,

I will take the case of the Radical candidate for Lieutenant Governor. Mr. Hamsdell, hails from the Keystone State. Several times he was honored with a seat in its Legislative body. There his honor, his integrity, his patriotism was never questioned. He took a fancy to Virginia, exchanged his fine property for cash to seek a home in a more congenial clime. He settled in Surry county. He erected a mansion for his family, farms for his crops, and stables for his stocks. He subscribed liberally for churches, school-houses, and public improvements. Yet, what peculiar pains were taken by all the Conservative editors and telegraph operators to announce his nomination as which, in plain English, meant he is a carpet-bagger; a part and parcel of the "Northern scum." Who ever heard of a Conservative describing Governor Walker as "late from New York," notwithstanding he came as an adventurer, and for the purpose of "confiscating rebel property and putting the rebels through!"

"Late from Pennsylvania," forsooth! What a blessing it would prove to the noble old Commonwealth if ten thousand Hamsdells would come within its borders with money, energy and a will, not to "confiscate," but to build up and make it what nature intended it should be—the empire state in wealth, honor and population; and none more active than the honest and consistent foes of Conservatism would seek to know from whence they came or how they voted.

TROBRIGNS.

GEN. McCOOK'S DEATH.

The Last Moments of a Brave Man—"Ed. McCook Dies Game."

A gentleman who was an eye-witness of the fatal encounter between Gen. McCook and his assassin, and who attended the General during his expiring moments, writes:

"The plucky General by this time weakened rapidly, and was conveyed to his room. The wound was examined by a physician, Dr. Berlein, who at once saw its fatal character. His patient inquired:

"'Doctor, how is it with me?'

"'I am afraid, General, the shot will prove fatal.'

"After but a moment's pause the General responded: 'All right. If my time has come I am ready to go. Ed. McCook dies game.'

"From this time, 10 o'clock, the wounded man suffered much pain until 1 o'clock in the morning, when he sickened, and attempted to vomit. The exertion created fresh hemorrhage from his wound, and from that time he sank slowly until 7 o'clock, when he expired.

"Almost the last words he uttered were, 'I never knowingly wronged a man in my life. If I could have died in battle, or in some other way than at the hands of a miserable assassin, I would die without a murmur.'

"There were present at his death his devoted wife and darling boy, his wife's mother and father and several personal friends. It was a trying scene to see a man who but a few hours before was in sound health and the vigor of life so suddenly pass away, and to think that, after having gone through half a hundred battles almost unscathed, he should fall in such an ignominious encounter. Even the strongest men present wept and sobbed like children."

A LIBEL case growing out of the misuse of the postal card is decided in England. A vicar having quarreled with a wealthy member of his flock, the latter refused to pay his Easter dues for two years. The clergyman in June last took his revenge by sending by a circuitous route a postal card bearing the following words: "Your love of money is notorious. To acquire it has been the sin and object of your life, but it is you and it must soon part. Will it avail you where you are going? This propensity of yours, so insufferable in one so old, explains your unjustly withholding my Easter dues for the last two years. Well, instead of taking you into the County Court and enforcing them, as I could do, I make you a present of them. Once more you have your own way, but a greatly mooted question whether the recollection of this transaction will make your dying pillow easier or the great change that awaits you more welcome." A suit for libel was brought against the vicar by his unruly parishioner, who laid his damages at $2,500. The case went against the defendant by default, went to a sheriff's jury for assessment of damages, and the tender of an apology being proved the jury let him off at $60.
